UPHOLDS WORK OF HIS PARTY

President in Vigorous Defense of Mexican Policy and War Attitude.

RECORD IS CLEAR AND CONSISTENT

Enthusiasm Marked Among Ten Thousand Gathered at Shadow Lawn.

The complete text of President Wilson's speech of acceptance will be found on page 11 of The Sentinel.

Long Branch, N. J., Sept. 2.—President Wilson formally accepted his renomination here this afternoon with an address recounting the legislative record of the democratic party, a vigorous defense of his Mexican policy, his dealings with the European belligerents and an outline of his view of America's obligations for the future.

With the members of the notification committee, headed by Senator James, grouped about him at Shadow Lawn, the Summer white house, the president declared the republican party was "just the party that cannot meet the new conditions of a new age" and that the day of Little Americanism when "methods of 'protection' and industrial nursing were the chief study of our provincial statesmen" was past and gone.

"We can no longer indulge our traditional provincialism," said the president "We are to play a leading part in the world drama whether we wish it or not. We shall lend, not borrow; act for ourselves, not imitate or follow; organize and initiate, not peep about merely to see where we may get in."

Record Clear and Consistent.

Speaking of his diplomatic negotiatinos with the European belligerents the president followed a declaration that while property rights might be vindicated by claims for damages, the loss of life and the fundamental rights of humanity never could be, with this statement:

"The record is clear and consistent throughout and stands distinct and definite for anyone to judge who wishes to know the truth about it."

Immediately afterward he said:

"I am the candidate of a party, but I am above all things else an American citizen. I neither seek the favor nor fear the displeasure of that small alien element amongst us which puts loyalty to any foreign power before loyalty to the United States."

His Mexican Policy.

Regarding his Mexican policy the president reiterated that the people of Mexico were struggling "blindly it may be—and as yet ineffectually" to free themselves from alien interests "some of them Americans pressing for things they could never have gotten in their own country," and that he would do everything in his power to prevent anyone standing in their way.

"It is hard doctrine," said he, "only for those who wish to get something for themselves out of Mexico." At another point the president said:

"Mistakes I have no doubt made in this perplexing business, but not in purpose or object." He declared at another point:

"I am more interested in the fortunes of oppressed men and pitiful women and children than in any property rights whatever."

Reviews Party Accomplishment.

At the outset of his references to the ~~legislative~~ achievements of his party, the president enumerated the laws placed on the statute books relating to business including tariff revision, anti-trust laws, revision of the banking and currency system, rural credits, rehabilitation of the merchant marine and creation of the federal trade commission.

"What other party has understood the task so well or executed it so intelligently and energetically?" he asked. "What other party has attempted it at all? The republican leaders apparently know of no means of assisting business but protection. How to stimulate it and put it upon a new footing of energy and enterprise they have not suggested."

At the conclusion of his review of the party record the president declared:

"This extraordinary recital must sound like a platform, a list of sanguine promises; but it is not. It is a record of promises made four years ago and now actually redeemed in constructive legislation." Then, later he said: "We have in four years come very near to carrying out the platform of the progressive party as well as our own; for we are also progressives."

The president's address was some five thousand words long, one of the most lengthy he has delivered on any occasion since taking office.

NIEZER NEW MEMBER BOARD OF DIRECTORS

The county commissioners of Allen county have appointed Maurice Niezer as a member of the board of directors of the Anti-Tuberculosis hospital. He will assume his duties at once. He was recommended to the commissioners several weeks ago but the appointment was only made Friday.

Miss Byron, in charge of the anti-tuberculosis work in Fort Wayne, states that the league is planning at the present time to get another wagon to help gather up the waste paper and rags. It has been found that it is impossible for one wagon to do all the gathering.

No selection has been made as yet by the committee appointed to select a site for the open air school. The site that was being considered can not be secured, it is thought.

RAIL LINES LIFTING BAN

Freight Embargo is Removed as Peace Nears in the Railroad Crisis.

Action, Starting in West, is Being Rapidly Followed in the East.

Chicago, Sept. 2.—Railroads of the country abandoned preparations for war today and reverted to those for peace. From all over the country railroad heads announced that embargoes placed on shipments as a war measure were revoked.

In Chicago the usual meeting of railroad presidents was not held. It was assumed that the Adamson bill would pass the senate tonight, that the strike order would be recalled and that trains would run as usual Monday morning, the day set for the walkout.

Orders here today lifted the embargoes on the following roads:

Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, Chicago & Alton, Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, Chicago & Northwestern, Monon, Chicago & Eastern Illinois, Chicago, Great Western and the Illinois Central. The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy revoked its order last night. Western railroad heads said they understood eastern roads would take similar action in the course of the day.

Other railroads are preparing to curtail the restrictions on freight shipments today and officials predicted that practically normal conditions will prevail on all lines within thirty-six hours.

Railroad executives, although expressing the belief that passage of the eight hour bill by the house of representatives and the prospect of its passage by the senate tonight, had practically removed all danger of a strike at present, announced many desertions from the ranks of the brotherhoods in the middle west and announced they had sufficient men to operate trains on most of the roads in event of a strike.

On several of the big middle western roads, general managers claimed as high as twenty-five per cent of the engineers and conductors have given assurance that they will remain at work even though the strike is put into effect.

HUGHES GETS A WARM WELCOME AT ST. LOUIS

Nominee Addresses Business Men as Wife Receives Suffragists.

St. Louis, Sept. 2.—The republican nominee for president, Charles E. Hughes, and Mrs. Hughes, accompanied by a party of twenty-eight, arrived in St. Louis from Kansas City early today. At the station a large reception committee of republicans, progressives and suffragists had gathered to welcome the party. Justice and Mrs. Hughes breakfasted in private and during the forenoon Mr. Hughes held a public reception at the Planters hotel.

The nominee will be taken to the new quarters of the Missouri Athletic association, where he will be the guest of the Business Men's League and where he will make his first speech of the day. Meanwhile a committee of suffragists will confer with Mrs. Hughes at the Planters hotel.

Later in the afternoon Mr. Hughes is scheduled to speak at Clayton. This speech will mark his last appearance in public until he goes to the Coliseum in the evening to deliver his main address.

37 NARROWLY ESCAPE DEATH

Runaway Freight Cars Dash Into Passenger Train at Lafayette.

Empty Steel Cars at Rear Save Lives of Sleeping Passengers.

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 2.—With the breaking of a coupling and air knuckle on a Lake Erie freight train while standing on a steep grade at Altamont, two miles east of here today, fifteen cars came thundering down the incline and crashed into a Big Four passenger train standing on the main line in front of the local passenger depot, piling up many cars.

With the clearing away of the wreckage it was learned that no one had been killed. William Krueger and Roy Stinger, Rock Island business men, were slightly crushed, but their injuries are not serious and they left here this morning. Three passenger coaches, two "dead heads" at the rear and the Pullman which was the third car were derailed, one of the dead heads being turned over.

The fact that the empty steel cars were at the rear of the train probably saved the lives of many of the thirty-seven people who occupied the sleeper. The caboose of the cut of freight cars was demolished as were four other cars. The end of a gondola car rested on the top of one of the empty passenger coaches.

The wreckage was not cleared away until this afternoon. Three wrecking crews, the Big Four, Lake Erie and Monon, did the work.

TWO MEXICAN ENVOYS ARRIVE IN NEW YORK

Third Commissioner in the Border Dispute Comes During Day.

New York, Sept. 2.—Two members of the Mexican commission, appointed to confer with representatives of the United States to settle the differences between the two countries arrived here early this morning and the third member is expected during the day.

Ignacio Bonillas and Alberto J. Pani are here accompanied by members of their families and a retinue of secretaries and servants. Luis Cabrera, minister of finance, in the Carranza cabinet, and head of the Mexican commission, will come it is said, in time for the first meeting of the two commissions on Monday afternoon.

The Mexican commissioners were welcomed at their hotel by Secretary of State Robert Lansing and J. Brooks Parker, assistant secretary of the American commission. Eliseo Arredondo, Mexican ambassador designate, who came here from Washington, Friday afternoon, also greeted them.

MILLION FLIES COST JUNKER SIX DOLLARS

A. S. Heiligeman Pays Fine for Violation of Sanitary Order.

A million flies buzzed about the manure heaps in the back yard of the property of A. S. Heiligeman, 1723 Lafayette street, junk dealer, when Charles Broecking, sanitary officer, visited the place on August 14, Broecking testified in police court Saturday morning.

Heiligeman was fined $1 and costs, amounting to $6, for failure to comply with the health notice that manure should be kept in closed boxes.

Fifty Days for Being Drunk.

Jacob Oppenheimer, 62, who had many previous convictions on drunk charges again him, was sentenced to thirty days in the county jail and fined $10 and costs. He will be in jail fifty days.

Other Police Court Cases.

George Aimes, who came to Fort Wayne from West Lafayette two weeks ago and has been employed at the Centlivre hotel, was fined $1 and costs after pleading guilty to a drunk charge.

Harold Deutchman, 16, charged with stealing bicycles, was bound over to the juvenile court.

WELL KNOWN RESIDENT IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

W. S. Sponhauer Passes Away After An Illness of Two Years.

Widler Stees Sponhauer, well known citizen and prominent in the Masonic circles of the city, passed away Saturday morning at 4:20 o'clock at his home, 917 Union street, after an illness extending over two years. Bright's disease is given as the cause of death. He was 67 years old.

WIDLER STEES SPONHAUER.

The deceased was born in Juanita county, Pennsylvania, June 30, 1849, and came to Fort Wayne from Galion, Ohio, in the spring of 1875, and for several years was with the firm of Rogers, Duck & Lewis, dealers in saddlery and hardware on Columbia street. With E. F. Yarnelle and Frank Alderman he assisted in the establishment of the Fort of Alderman-Yarnelle company in 1885 which was later succeeded by the firm of Mossman-Yarnelle company. He retired from that company in 1895. For years he was custodian of the Scottish Rite cathedral.

The deceased always took great interest in Masonic work and was at the time of his death a trustee of Summit City lodge, No. 170, Free and Accepted Masons. He was also a member of Fort Wayne consistory, Scottish Rite, Fort Wayne commandery, No. 4, Knights Templar, and Mizpah temple, A. A. O. N. M. Shrine.

The deceased is survived by the following relatives: Widow, Mrs. Lydia A. Sponhauer; one daughter, Mrs. John J. Ladig; three sons, Roy, Stees and Ralph; father, Martin Sponhauer, of Galion; one brother, Henry Sponhauer, of Galion, and one sister, Mrs. Ureth Smith, of Cleveland.

Funeral services at the Scottish Rite cathedral Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. Arthur J. Folsom, of the Plymouth Congregational church, officiating. The Knights Templar will officiate at Lindenwood cemetery.

SCHOOLS MAY OPEN BEFORE OCTOBER 1

Quarantine is Very Apt to Be Raised if Cool Weather Continues.

"Schools are very likely to open before October 1, if the cool weather continues," Dr. J. H. Gilpin, secretary to the health board, said Saturday.

"The whole question of dropping the quarantine will depend upon developments fro mday to day. If no new cases develop there is little need of keeping children penned up. The cooler the weather the better are chances for turning the boys and girls free."

A meeting of the city and county boards has been called for next Tuesday evening. The question of infantile paralysis is to be the subject of discussion. The fact that there is a call to have schools opened sooner is said to have caused the meeting of the two boards.

County schools may also open before the first of October. Schools will not open at scheduled time of next Tuesday, however, health board members say. The county board will govern its action on opening schools by the decision of the city board

BANK CLEARINGS.

For the Week Ending Saturday, September 2, $1,442,157.34.

The bank clearings for the week ending Saturday, September 2, amounted to $1,442,157.34 in comparison with $1,475,877.20 last week and $1,113,541.20 with the corresponding week last year. The amounts each day are as follows: Monday, $253,649.45; Tuesday, $325,725.95; Wednesday, $213,143.30; Thursday, $181,419.57; Friday, $205,018.62, and Saturday, $263,200.45. The balance amounted to $350,864.22.

BEATEN BACK BY TEUTONS

RUSSIANS CLAIM A SUBSTANTIAL GAIN

Violent Fighting Rages in Direction of Lemberg and Further South.

Today's War News Given in Summary

The Rumanian advance in Transylvania has been checked by the Teutonic forces, an official statement from Vienna asserts. This announcement relates the check of the Rumanians near the iron gates of the Danube in the vicinity of Orsova. It is probable the Rumanians are encountering more severe resistance in this region and further south for an important advance from this quarter would threaten the communications of the central powers with Bulgaria and Turkey.

The Teutonic plan for shortening the front apparently contemplated the holding Orsavo region and resting the southern flank of the new line there.

Further north the Austrian evacuation of Transylvania territory is being carried out without serious fighting.. Vienna announces the abandonment of Hermannstadt, one of the most important towns of Transylvania, fifteen miles from the border and of a town north of Kornstadt.

The Austrian communication indicates the new offensive of the Russians in Bukowina and Galicia was inaugurated over a wide front. In one sector alone north of the Dniester river the Russians advanced along a line of fifteen miles.. Most of their assaults failed, Vienna announces. It was in this fighting that the Russians, according to yesterday's Petrograd communication, took more than 15,000 prisoners.

The Bulgarians renewed their attacks last night along the western end of the Macedonian front. The French war office asserts they were repulsed by Bessarabians.

The part Greece is to play in the Balkan campaign has not yet been cleared up, although a report that King Constantine had abdicated and that Greece would join the entente allies at once has not been borne out.. An official dispatch from Athens, filed yesterday, says King Constantine received Premier Zaimis on Thursday and that the premier then announced Greece would maintain her policy of friendly neutrality toward the entente powers while awaiting events.

The Germans attacked the French on the Somme front last night and re-occupied trenches south of Estres taken recently by the French. A small British gain near Delville wood is announced in London.

Berlin, Sept. 2.—The Austro-Hungarian troops on the Rumanian front again repulsed the Rumanians near Orsova and Hercules Fuerdoe on August 31, says the official statement issued by the Austro-Hungarian army headquarters under date of Septtember 1.

The statement adds that the Transylvania towns of Ngay-Szben, Hermannstadt and Sepsi-Szent-Gyorgy, north of Kronstadt, already had been evacuated by the Austro-Hungarians on Wednesday.

Lively fighting is in progress between the Germans and French and British in the region north and south of the river Somme in France, says the official statement issued today by the German army headquarters staff. The Germans last

DISTRICT TOUR TO START ON MONDAY

John A. M. Adair, of Portland, democratic candidate for governor, will leave Fort Wayne Monday morning with a party of democrats as the start of his tour of the Twelfth district. He will probably be accompanied before the tour closes Wednesday night by several state candidates. Martin H. Luecke, Twelfth district chairman, and Stephen A. Callahan will be among those from this city making the trip.

DATES ARE FIXED FOR TOWNSHIP INSTITUTES

Dates for preliminary township teachers' institutes have been fixed by D. O. McComb, county school superintendent. The meetings will be held in the assembly room of the court house.

The Eel River, Perry, Lake, Aboit, Springfield and Scipio township institutes will be held September 6.

On September 7 the institutes of Lafayette, Pleasant, Marion, Madison and Jefferson townships will be held.

On September 8 teachers of Monroe, Jackson, Maumee, Milan and Cedar Creek townships will meet.

The teachers of Adams, Wayne, Washington and St. Joseph townships will meet September 9.

All of the institutes will start at 9 o'clock and the county superintendent urges the teachers to be present at that hour.

FIELD DAY MEET AT FOSTER PARK

Festivities Will Be Held Under Auspices of the A. C. W.

Many of the usual Labor day events, in which every class of workmen and their families take part in a day of general amusement, have been called off because of the quarantine of children, due to infantile paralysis in the city. This includes the picnic and outing that was to have been given under the auspices of the Federation of Labor. The Federation will have no celebration, the plan to give a Labor day parade being abandoned some weeks ago.

The holiday will be marked by general business suspension. Sport making of the day will consist of the athletic meet of the A. C. W. at Foster park, the tennis tournament for the city championship at the Country club, horse racing at Centlivre park and base ball game at the League ball park.

Several family reunions scheduled for the day have been abandoned because of fear of the paralysis plague. Park celebrations have been declared off.

Practically all factories will shut down to give their employes a full holiday. Most of the down town stores will be closed for the day. Banks will suspend business. Union barber shops will not open.

Holiday at Postoffice.

At the postoffice the usual holiday custom of practically suspending service will be observed. Although the lobby will remain open during the entire day, the general delivery, stamp and money order windows will be closed at 10 o'clock in the morning.

The court house and city hall will be deserted. All city officials will close their offices.

Prepare for Field Meet.

Committees in charge of the A. C. W. field day have completed arrangements for a big gahering in Foster park during the afternoon. Several hundred young people are expected to gather for the athletic events and speech making. A loving cup will be given the society winning the most points in the field contests. There will be events for both girls and boys.

Not only the young people will be on hand, but the older ones are also invited. Te plan is to make this picnic one of the largest affairs of its kind the organization has ever held. The program will start promptly at 1:30 with a grand balloon ascension, after which there will be a ball game between two of the societies, and then the ten track events for the loving cup. These consist of a 220 yard dash, shot put, 50 yard relay, as well as seven other events. They will be followed by potato races, sack races and other contests, into which every one present may enter. Mr. Arthur Parry will deliver the address at 3 o'clock. After this a string orchestra will entertain the crowd and supper will be served.

Each person is requested to bring his or her lunch and a fork and spoon in a basket. These will be checked at the stand and all put together for the evening meal.

To Decide City Championship.

The tennis tournament, in which the finals will be played at the Country club during the afternoon, will determine the city tennis championship. Semi-finals in the annual event were carried on Saturday.

Three Races on Card.

Three fast races, one offering a field of six entries, make up the program offered by the Driving club at Centlivre's park. There will be two trots and a pacing race. Some fast time is expected as local horses have been given ample

ONLY AWAITS SENATE VOTE

Garretson Statement Shows House Bill Pleases the Brotherhoods.

ARE PREPARED TO ACT ON INSTANT

Senate is Expected to Give O. K. to New Law During Afternoon.

Washington, Sept. 2.—"Just as soon as the house bill, unamended, becomes law," A. B. Garretson, spokesman for the brotherhoods, today, "the strike order will be recalled."

That was all Mr. Garretson would say regarding the probable time of calling off of the strike. This was the first official statement showing that the house bill was wholly satisfactory to the brotherhoods.

From other sources came persistent reports that an arrangement might be perfected whereby the strike could be called off officially before President Wilson actually affixes his signature to the bill.

Peace Seems Assured.

With the senate at work on the Adamson bill, passed by the house late yesterday, and with an agreement for a vote not later than 6 o'clock this evening, the prevention of the railroad strike seemed assured today.

Any amendment to the house bill in the senate would throw all the negotiations in the indefinite stage and with this in mind, administration leaders used every effort as the debate in the senate progressed to induce passage of the house bill in its original form.

House is Prepared.

When the house convened democratic leaers dhad arranged a program to insure final disposition of the eight hour railroad bill by tonight if the senate acts.

"We are first taking up some private bills, and will then recess until we get the eight hour bill back fro mthe senate," said Democrat Leader Kitchin.

"We are keeping in touch with the senate and will be ready to finally dispose of the bill as soon as the senate votes."

Hope to Obviate Delay.

It was the belief of administration leaders that the Adamson bill as it passed the house late yesterday, approved by President Wilson and formally accepted by the labor leaders as meeting their demands, would eventually be accepted by the senate, thus obviating a delay in conference to reconcile differences with the house.

As soon as the perfected bill finally is passed a special messenger will carry it to the summer white house at Shadow Lawn so the president may sign it at once and end the menace of a general paralysis of the country transportation lines at 7 o'clock Monday morning.

Code Messages Ready.

Heads of the four brotherhoods, anticipating such action, had code messages to local union officials ready, revoking the order sent broadcast early this week for a strike starting at 7 a. m. Monday. If the bill is passed, it is believed they will not wait until it is signed by President Wilson, who was at Long Branch, N. J., to receive formal notification of his nomination. The senate convened early today after a prolonged session last night which ended in an agreement to vote at 6 p. m. this evening or before.

Debate continued over the amendment proposed by Senator Underwood to give the inter-state commerce commission authority to determine wages of interstate railway employes. Its opponents urged that its adoption might render the bill unsatisfactory to the brotherhoods and that consequently the strike order would be allowed to stand. They contended also that it was unnecessary as an emergency measure.

What Bill Provides.

The Adamson bill provides that beginning Jan. 1, 1917, the standard work day for employes on steam roads more than one hundred miles long, engaged in inter-state commerce, shall be eight hours; that a presidential commission of three shall investigate conditions under the eight hour basis for a period of between six and nine months; that daily wages shall not be reduced below the present amount for a longer day during the investigation and overtime pay shall be prorata. The bill was passed in the house by a vote of 239 to 56, and sent to the senate, where at the night session, it was substituted for a similar measure prepared by the interstate commerce committee. In both houses the measure was debated hotly.

Official vote in House.

The official vote in the house on the final passage of the amended Adamson eight hour day bill was:

Ayes, 239; nays, 56; present. Two democrats, Black, of Texas, and Steele, of Pennsylvania, voted against the bill.

ORDERS POUR IN FOR NEW STYLE IN DIMES

Ten Million to Be Coined Within Next Four Months.

Philadelphia, Sept. 2. Orders for the newly designed ten cent pieces are being received daily at the United States mint here, but the coins will not be placed in circulation before the 15th or 20th of this month. Two hundred and fifty thousand of the new coins are coined daily, 150 men being employed exclusively in this work. Adam M. Boyce, the superintendent, said today that ten million of the new dimes will be turned out within the next four months. The new piece bears the figure of a Grecian lady on the obverse side and the bundle and rods and the ax of the Roman lictors on the reverse. Supt. Joyce also announced that within the next two weeks work will be begun on the new twenty-five cent pieces while the making of the new design half dollar will not be started until the early part of October.

The newly designed quarter on one side has the full figure of a woman coming through a gate in a wall, the reverse side shows an eagle in flight. The fifty cent piece bears a full length figure of the Goddess of Liberty, holding olive branches, while the reverse design is that of a spread eagle standing on a rock.

JOKE IN COHAN SHOW KILLS INDIANA MAN

Chicago, Sept. 2.—Here is the joke that killed a man:

Harry Bulger, who plays the part of an ammunition king in Cohan's Revue, has been separated from his wife. He drinks a "Fair and Warmer" cocktail which revives his old love and as he clasps his wife to his breast he ardently exclaims:

"I have a strange feeling coming over me—kiss me, sweetheart. I want to be kissed."

Charles Spencer, an attorney from Monticella, Ind., was convulsed with laughter which he could not check. He was carried to the manager's office, where he died.

STATESMEN EAGER TO GET AWAY FOR HOME

Washington, Sept. 2—Democratic leaders of both houses said today that congress could not be held in session after settlement of the railroad crisis longer than necessary to dispose of the revenue and general deficiency appropriation bills. These, they thought, could be passed by next Wednesday.

It was generally agreed that efforts in the senate to force action on the corrupt practices and immigration bills would be blocked by majority of votes, and that an exodus of members bound for the national campaign would be on before the end of the week.

MANY LESS THAN FIVE YEARS.

Three-Fourths of Plague Victims in New York Mere Babes.

New York, Sept. 2. More than three fourths of the children who have died of infantile paralysis in New York city in the epidemic which has prevailed for the last three months, were less than five years old, according to figures issued by the department of health. The total number of deaths fro mthis disease for the three months is given as 1,922. Of these 1,499 were of children less than five years old. The figures show that apparently the most susceptible age is between one and two years. Despite the belief at the beginning of the epidemic that negroes were exempt, 29 of them were victims.

GEN. PERSHING IN COLUMBUS..

Commander Comes from Mexico to Inspect Command in New Mexico.

Columbus, N. M., Sept. 2.—Gen. J. J. Pershing, commander of the American punitive expedition, is here today from field headquarters in Mexico, to review the regulars stationed at this point, to inspect the new camp site of the Massachusetts national guard. The new army road from field headquarters was in excellent shape and the general made the trip here in less than 15 hours, actual running time.

SUICIDE, IS NOW REPORT

London, Sept. 2—(1.20 p. m.)—Reports have been received in Amsterdam that Gen. Jostoff, chief of the Bulgarian general staff, committee suicide over Bulgaria's delay in declaring war on Rumania, says a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company from that city.

Dispatches from Sofia which reached Amsterdam yesterday, attributed General Jostoff's death to appendicitis.

URGE CHANGE IN FIVE OF TEN COMMANDMENTS

Episcopal Churchmen Plan to Revise and Shorten First Half of Them.

New York, Sept. 2. A proposal to revise and shorten the first five of the ten commandments will be submitted to the next general convention of the Protestant Episcopal church. The proposed changes are recommended by a commission of bishops, clergy and laymen, which has been sonsidering the project. It is proposed to eliminate portions of the first five commandments on the ground that arguments for the observance of divine law are not essential to the laws themselves. The revised version of the commandments as proposed is as follows:

First—Thou shalt have no other gods but Me.

Second Thou shalt not take unto thyself any graven image, nor the likeness of anything that is in the heaven above, the earth beneath or in the water under the earth. Thou shalt not bow down unto them, nor worship them.

Third Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord, thy God, in vain.

Fourth Remember that thou keep holy the Sabbath day.

Ayes—Democrats, Barnhart, Cline, Cox, Cullop, Dixon, Gray, Rauch, Lieb, Moss.

Ayes—Republicans, Wood.

Present, but not voting, Moore, Morrison.

First Amendment Proposed.

Washington, Sept. 2.—The first amendment proposed came from Senator Shafroth, democrat. He proposed to fix Senator Underwood's amendment empowering the inter-state commerce commission to make wage schedules so that no employe would be compelled to work for the rate prescribed.

Senator Newlands offered an amendment to make it a misdemeanor for any person to interfere with the operation of trains punishable by a fine not to exceed $100 or imprisonment not to exceed six months or both. This, he said, followed exactly existing law relating to interference with transportation of the mails.

The brotherhood leaders still decline to say whether they will send the code word meaning "satisfactory settlement" to their general chairmen immediately upon passage of the bill or hold it off until it is signed by the president. It is generally believed, however, that the message calling off the strike will go out as soon as both houses have acted. They have no fear that the president will not sign the bill if it takes the form now indicated.

Urges Underwood Amendment.

Senator Hardwick, democrat, declaring congress was being held up by the railway employes spoke for the adoption of the Underwood amendment.

"We will not measure up to what is required of us," he said, "unless we not only bridge over this crisis but also provide that there never can arise again in this country an opportunity for any man or set of men, railroad managers or workers, to seize this government by the throat as is now being done. If we do not do this, I for one will feel that we have made a sorry trade as well as a sorry spectacle of ourselves."

Senator Thomas also proposed an amendment to make it a misdemeanor for any person to delay or obstruct the operation of trains punishable by a fine of not more than $500 or imprisonment for not more than one year or both.

W. O. McGinnis, of the receiving department of the Bowser works, will not be at his desk next week. Instead he will be at the lakes enjoying a vacation.

Defy Drizzling Rain.

The day upon which President Wilson is to be formally notified of his renomination is being celebrated with enthusiasm by more than 10,000 persons, including democratic leaders from all parts of the country. A drizzling rain fell throughout the morning, but did not dampen the spirits of the assembled democrats. President Wilson himself rose early and spent the forenoon shaking hands with party leaders and renewing friendships with New Jersey members of his party. The notification ceremonies were set for late afternoon at shadow Lawn, the president's summer residence.

The president's magnificent white summer home surrounded by sixty acres of lawn presented a beautiful picture as the arrangements for the ceremony were completed. The house was literally covered with American flags and bunting and from a tall flagpole floated the flag of the president of the United States. Chairs to accommodate 5,000 persons were grouped in a semi-circle about the house and there was room for 20,000 more within hearing distance of the president's voice.

A Call to Service.

Senator Ollie M. James, of Kentucky, in his address notifying the president of his renomination for the presidency, recounted the enthusiastic demand of the voters for Mr. Wilson's renomination, and continuing said in part:

"They do not make this call upon you for the purpose of honoring you, for you have already had bestwed upon you by your countrymen the greatest honor within their gift. They call you for service to America and mankind; a service you have so amply proved to be of the highest type known to just governments among men; a service that has given justice to all men upon free and equal terms; a service that has restored taxation to its historic and constitutional function; a service that has freed trade to individual and honest endeavor; a service that has lifted from the tables and homes of the plain people of America a burden of taxation which they have unjustly borne for more than a half century and placed it upon the wealth and fortunes of the land; a service that has driven monopoly from its rendezvous of taxation; a service that has denied to the trusts of republican creation a hiding place in our economic life; a service to the toilers of America that litfed them from the despised level of a commodity to the high plane of a human unit in our industrial life; a service that has dignified them—the great army of workers of the field, factory, and mine; a service that opened the courts to all men upon equal terms of justice and constitutional liberty; a service that freed the money of a nation from the control of a 'money oligarchy' and lodged it in the hands of the government; a service that at once destroyed two trusts, a money trust and a panic trust, where the business cannot be oppressed or destroyed by the manipulation of the money market, nor legislation controlled, intimidated, or suppressed by the panic trust. These two trusts that your service and matchless leadership destroyed live only in memory, as contemporary with the malodorous rule of the boss-ridden and monopoly-controlled stand-pat republican party.

Some Further Achievements.

"It is a service which has prepared the nation for its defense; a service to fair and equal treatment to all men by destroying a subsidy fed to an American monopoly; a service to the farmers of our country who yearn for a home and fireside to call their own by enacting into law a federal rural credits system that makes credit and home-building easy to the tillers of the soil; a service that in the stormiest hours of America's life and the bloodiest days of the life of the world, you have kept our people at peace with all the earth a service that has kept homes happy, family circles unbroken, while the Old World staggers beneath its weight of sorrow, mourning, and death; a service whose victories for the freedom of the seas, the rights of neutral life, the protection of American citizens and American rights stands resplendent in the world's international law and in the earth's diplomacy. This great triumph which you achieved for America and the world gave protection to non-combatants and neutrals that war-mad countries must respect, and this diplomatic achievement will be the guiding, protecting precedent to millions of lives of the innocent and unoffending long after you are gone. This triumph of yours will ot be told in history by a great war debt, a mammoth pension roll, vacant chairs at unhappy firesides, and Decoration day services to place flowers upon the mounds of those who achieved it, but it will be told in the victory of matchless diplomacy and of irresistible logic, presentingg in an unequaled manner the everlasting principle of justice.

preparation during a good training summer.

Base Ball Game.

The Colored Giants, wth several men from the fast Colored Giant team of Lima, Ohio, will meet the Fort Wayne City team at the League base ball park.

Picnic at Sheldon.

All arrangements are now complete for the annual Labor day picnic of St. Aloysius' church, Sheldon. An elaborate feast is prepared for all those who will come at the small sum of 25c, which includes a chicken dinner or supper. All interurban cars, Bluffton division, will stop at No. 16. Come one, come all, and celebrate Labor day at Sheldon in grand style.

BATTERY D PREPARES TO BE MUSTERED IN

Indianapolis, Sept. 2.—Battery B, of Lafayette, is expected to arrive at Fort Benjamin Harrison some time next week. Copies of orders directing it to return here were received yesterday by Adjt. Gen. F. L. Bridges. The battery will be held at the fort pending further orders, which are expected to muster out the officers and men, as they are students of Purdue university. The orders also state that no more individuals will be discharged because they are students, teachers or because they have dependent relatives. It is pointed out that the new federal act provides $30 a month for a dependent wife and $10 for a dependent child. Battery D, of Fort Wayne, now at the fort, is busy getting its papers fixed up preparatory to being mustered into the federal service. It is thought that it will supplant battery B at the border. Examinations will be conducted for non-commissioned officers, who wish to try for the positions of second lieutenant on Oct. 16. It is not yet known where the examinations will be held.

HAVE DECIDED TO BUY GARBAGE TRUCK

Will Use Auto for Hurry Up Calls and for Scavenger Duty.

The board of works has decided to buy a light auto truck for use in answering calls for garbage collection and to gather up dead animals over the city. The truck, which will be hurried to any part of the city when a call to have garbage collected is turned in, is expected to serve as a check on present garbage collectors and to make the garbage collection system complete.

A chasis will be purchased for about $600. The body will be built on the truck from plans being drawn by the mayor and members of the works board. A large steel tank for holding garbage will be placed on the back of the frame and will be built so that it can be emptied hurriedly at the crematory.

Promise Elevation Action.

As soon as the strike situation is cleared up the Pennsylvania railroad will take action on completing plans for elevating its tracks over Lafayette and Hanna streets, according to the message received by the board of works, Friday afternoon. Officials from the Pittsburg office expressed the hope that work of raising the tracks might be started this fall.

ALL READY FOR PICNIC.

With announcement that Sunday will be fair and warmer, Al Keller, head of the committee on arrangements for the council picnic, has made final preparations for a grand outing at the Symposium club grounds. One hundred city officials are expected to attend the annual affair. George Fry will be in charge of the eats. There will be orchestra music during the day. Baseball games and other sports will make up the amusements.

MRS. NESBITT LEAVES.

Mrs. Josephine Nesbitt, who conducted the city health and beautification campaign during the past summer, left for her home near Springfield, Ohio, Saturday, where she will enjoy a month's vacation. She will return to Fort Wayne to be present when prizes for winners in the city contest are given out. Awarding of the ten ward prizes and the grand prize of $50 to the seven children of Mr. and Mrs. William Westner, will be accompanied by an elaborate program and will be held in October, after schools are opened.

BUILDING PERMITS.

Building permits were granted to A. G. W. Curdes to erect a residence at 2023 Garden street at cost of $2,000; at 2503 Florida Drive, $4,200; at 2723 East Drive, $5,200; 2523 West Drive, $3,800; to William Wolks, to build a frame garage at 827 West Creighton avenue at cost of $180, and the Indiana Engineering and Construction company to construct the No. 12 engine works for the light company at a cost of $45,000, and a factory for the same company at the corner of Wall and College, at a cost of $20,000.

FIREMAN RECOVERING.

John Hilgemann, at station No. 4, is improving from injuries sustained while fighting the fire at the Central foundry last week. Hilgemann's leg was lacerated when struck by a falling plank, and after a few days the wound became serious. He has been confined to his home during the past week but expects to return to duty Monday.

RUSHING WORK AT OSAGE.

Workmen for the New York Central railroad have finished forms for the abutments at the Osage street subway and will start on Tuesday to pour concrete into the moulds. All the north walls, north of Burgess street, have been completed.

STATION WILL CLOSE.

The offices of the Fort Wayne navy recruiting station will be closed Monday, September 4, Labor day, in accordance with an order from the department of recruiting for Indiana at Indianapolis.

DR. J. H. GILPIN ILL.

Dr. J. H. Gilpin, secretary to the health board, was confined to his home Saturday with a severe cold.

TO START PAVING.

The Grace Construction company will start on Monday to spread concrete on the north end of St. Joe boulevard, between Forest and McDougal streets.

WAS CITY PAY DAY.

All city employes received their salaries Saturday. There was the clatter of silver all over the city hall.

SUBWAY COMPLETED.

Sidewalks are complete through the Taylor street subway. All work on the subway is now finished and the street opened for traffic.

INDIANA ROUTE IS CHOSEN.

New Auto Highway is Mapped Through This State.

Evansville, Ind., Sept. 2.—In a meeting with Mayor Bosse, a committee of the St. Clair-Wabash trail, an auto highway connecting this city with St. Louis, Mo., selected the following route through Indiana: This city to Armstrong, Cynthiana, Poseyville, Stewartsville, Griffin, Hovey and by ferry across the Wabash river to Grayville, Ill. Dr. H. C. Mose, Albion, Ill., president of the trail association; V. C. Michels, Albian, and Paul R. Blood, Grayville, represented Illinois at the meeting.

Railroads with headquarters in St Louis announced that beginning today they would accept freight of any kind for any destination on their lines or branches. Railroads which have already modified the embargoes, as announced several days ago, and which are today working under more nearly normal conditions, included the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, Chicago & Northwestern, Union Pacific, Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, and Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, in the west, and the New York Central and the Erie in the east.

Railroad passenger traffic through Chicago for the last two days has been heavier than for many months, the large increase being attributed to anxiety of tourists to reach their homes before next Monday, the time set for the strike.

SITUATION IN NEW YORK.

New York, Sept. 2.—Abnormal conditions in traffic and commerce due to the fear of a railroad strike stood stationary here today, pending developments at Washington. Although the railroads promise that their freight embargoes will be lifted as soon as the danger of a strike is definitely ended, only slight modifications have been made in the embargoes now in force.

A threatened shortage of food stuffs was materially relieved by the action of the New York Central in lifting its ban against the receipt of meats, fish and all dairy products. Food prices, after their sensational jump on Thursday and Friday, showed more stability. This was accounted for partly by improvement in the prospects that there would be no strike and partly by the district attorney's threat to indict dealers charged with lifting prices without reasonable grounds. The district attorney announced that he stood ready to investigate complaints from customers.

PAPER QUITS PUBLICATION.

AUSTIN COOK DIES

Second Death in Whitley County From Infantile Paralysis.

Columbia City, Ind., Sept. 2.—Austin, the 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Cook, of Thorncreek township, died of infantile paralysis, Friday afternoon about 2 o'clock, or about 36 hours after his younger brother, Perry, passed away from the same dreaded diseases.

As near as can be learned Austin became indisposed Monday night or Tuesday morning of this week. He had fever and complained of pains in his head and spine. Wednesday he seemed somewhat better and that night he perspired freely and his fever went down somewhat, but Thursday there was a change for the worse. The left arm became paralyzed and later on the right arm and right leg became paralyzed also, the patient retaining use of the right arm alone. He continued to grow worse during Thursday night and Friday morning when Dr. Schuman visited him his condition was so grave that the physician realized that the end was not far distant. The boy was unconscious and there were all indications that his life was hanging by a very slender thread.

WOULD BE HARD HIT.

Decatur, Ind., Sept. 2. In the event of a railway strike which now seems improbable for a time at least—Decatur would be hit pretty hard along some lines. The food problem would not necessarily be the greatest, for with the fine farming section surrounding the city, and transportation facilities cut off, Decatur would be the natural market. Two flour mills could produce flour enough so long as the supply of wheat lasted; milk, butter, eggs and meat would be available, besides the vegetables and fruits. Along freight and manufacturing lines the severest pressure and results would be felt.

INJURIES PROVE FATAL

Warsaw, Ind., Sept. 2. Fred C. Zeigler, of Tulsa, Oklahoma, who has been spending the summer at Wawasee, and who was struck by a B. & O. freight train at Jones' crossing Wednesday afternoon, died Friday morning at 1 o'clock in the Goshen hospital as the result of his injuries. Soon after his arrival at the hospital his condition was known to be critical and there were no hopes for his recovery. His daughter, Dorothy, aged 12, and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Elmer Stinson, of Montpelier, the other occupants of the wrecked car, were only slightly injured, and are now practically out of danger. Mrs. Stinson is still suffering from a severe attack of nervous prostration.

WILL NOT USE ETHER.

Decatur, Ind., Sept. 2.—Joseph Shady, aged 86 and a well known resident of this city, will undergo an operation of a very serious nature this week without an anesthetic, though he is barely able to exist now on account of suffering, which followed an operation of several days ago. No ether can be given Mr. Shady on account of his weak heart. A daughter, Mrs. Israel Rex, left yesterday to be at her father's bedside and other members of the family are already there.

UNABLE TO FIND THIEVES.

Hartford City, Ind., Sept. 2.—After running down every available clue for the past several days the local police have been unable to get any trace of the thief or thieves who entered the home of Timothy Martin, of North Cherry street, during Sunday or Sunday evening, following the conclusion of the carnival in this city. As the result of the thief's visit a pocketbook containing over $41 is missing.

PENNVILLE PASTOR RESIGNS.

Pennville, Ind., Sept. 2.—Rev. E. M. Dunbar, pastor of the M. E. church at Pennville, has resigned the pastorate there to accept charge of the M. E. church at Portville. He will leave Pennville September 6 to begin his new duties. Rev. Mr. Dunbar was the former pastor of the Portland or Blaine M. E. circuit, being sent to Geneva and from there to Pennville.

PRINCIPAL AT PLYMOUTH.

Plymouth, Ind., Sept. 2.—The Plymouth school board has elected Miss Lena Johnson as principal of the high school, succeeding C. E. Harris, resigned. Miss Johnson has been teacher of history in the high school for several years. She will continue her history work in connection with her new duties as principal.

SCRATCH PROVES SERIOUS.

Hartford City, Ind., Sept. 2.—Dr. G. W. Sweigart while at work about six weeks ago slightly scratched his right hand and as the result he is now unable to attend to his duties on account of a serious attack of blood-poisoning which has affected his entire right arm, forming a large swelling in his right armpit.

FUR SCARFS STYLISH.

By Betty Brown.

If you doubt the effectiveness of the fur scarf, note the charm of this black fox stole swinging so airily from the arm of Miss Up-to-the-Styles-and-a-Little-Beyond. The flat collar would add nothing in the way of style to this particular model.

The gown is broadcloth in a brand new color the Parisians call "fer," but which you and I will call iron gray when finally "fer" arrives from Paris.

If you haven't seen the cartridge pleats used at the waistline and the kneeline it's because they have gotten no further yet than fashion pages and fashion shows.

The wise girl will paste this model in her scrap book.

The hat is white broadcloth faced with black velvet. Note cutaway brim.

CORN PROSPECTS GOOD.

Crop Will Come Very Near Bumper Crop of Year Ago.

The weekly statement concerning the crop prospects in the territory touched by the Wabash, just issued from the office of Vice President W. C. Maxwell, states that the yield of corn this year will be about 80 per cent. of the yield last year. Mr. Maxwell groups Indiana, Ohio and Michigan, the conditions in each being similar, and says: Weather warm, with no rain in Indiana and Ohio, but light rainfall in Michigan. The oats harvest, which is still in progress, is yielding well both in quality and quantity. The general condition of the corn crop is fair, the yield being estimated at 80 per cent. of last year. Cutting of corn in some localities has commenced. Ohio needs rain to bring out the crop. The sugar beets crop shows fair prospects. The output will be greater than last year on account of the increased acreage.

Furs? It Won't Be Long Before You'll Be Wearing Them

(By Betty Brown.)

Here's a little story—also a picture for the summer girl swinging in her hammock and pondering deeply on "what kind of furs will I wear this winter?"

Her answer may be read in this picture, which I photographed at a fall fashion exposition.

It was the prettiest of a dozen designs of fur-trimmed winter coats, for let me whisper to you, most of next winter's furs will be "accessory" furs. They will be worn as coat trimmings, not as "sets."

The pictured model, which will be developed in velvets, velours, duvetynes and similar soft fabrics, is made in the new seprentine velvet, and it blends into more shades of gray than I can name.

The shawl collar and the skirt band are moleskin. The narrow bands across the full-gathered back are also mole. This is an excellent coat model for the business woman, or the busy club woman who finds a muff a troublesome appendage to a winter outfit.

HARRISON HILL GETS CAR LINE EXTENSION

The extraordinary development of Harrison Hill, the modernly planned addition located directly south of Rudisill boulevard on the west side of Calhoun street, has justified the Traction company in extending regular service to Lexington circle, and as soon as the paving of Calhoun street as far as the main entrance of Harrison Hill is completed, car service will be furnished to this point. These extensions bring city car lines within three blocks of any point in Harrison Hill, while the average distance from Harrison Hill lots to the car line will be but one block. Further details regarding the late developments in Harrison Hill may be obtained from the promoters, Hilgemann and Schaaf, North American building.—Advertisement.

SHORTER HOURS.

Short fall days and early twilight mean extra work by artificial light and more strain on the eyes. In order to read and work comfortably why not see Meigs, the Eyesight Specialist, 1012 Calhoun street, and get that pair of glasses you've been thinking about, or have your old ones changed and made comfortable? $2.00, $3.00 or $5.00, according to the frames, will buy you guaranteed glasses. No extra charge for examination.—Advertisement.

SOME OTHER "GOLD MINES"

The dollars of yesterday have produced veritable gold-mines of today.

BIG PRINCIPALS WITH PERPETUAL EARNING POWER—they are netting thousands in interest every year unceasingly.

Many of these dollars were "savings" dollars that sometimes seemed to drag along, and yet, they got there—and so would yours.

Your dollars saved right now at 4 per cent. will begin to produce for you and in time become earners. We welcome the man with $1—He shows business foresight enough to plan ahead.

DAILY BIBLE READINGS FOR THE HOME

Ephesians 6-1:12.

1. Children, obey your parents in the Lord: for this is right.
2. Honour thy father and mother; which is the first commandment with promise;
3. That it may be well with thee, and thou mayest live long on the earth.
4. And, ye fathers, provoke not your children to wrath: but bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord.
5. Servants, be obedient to them that are your masters according to the flesh, with fear and trembling, in singleness of your heart, as unto Christ;
6. Not with eyeservice, as menpleasers; but as the servants of Christ, doing the will of God from the heart;
7. With good will doing service, as to the Lord, and not to men:
8. Knowing that whatsoever good thing any man doeth, the same shall he receive of the Lord, whether he be bond or free.
9. And, ye masters, do the same things unto them, forbearing threatening: knowing that your Master also is in heaven; neither is there respect of persons with him.
10. Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might.
11. Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil.
12. For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places.

The President Notified

Today at Shadow Lawn, the New Jersey summer home at which he hopes to spend a few weeks in such relaxation as may be possible in connection with the monumental total of official duties and grave responsibilities that have fallen to his lot in the past four years, President Wilson is formally notified that he has been again chosen as the standard-bearer of his party. Senator James, speaking for the democracy of the nation, is the bearer of the news that a great political party has named him as its candidate, and that it pledges him its fealty and its support. With equal truth, too, Senator James might speak with assurance in proclaiming that behind the candidacy of the president and giving it support no less positive and enthusiastic than that of his own party is a vast army of independent, thoughtful citizens, who will not fail in November to attest their appreciation of the president's course and the president's accomplishments.

The underlying purpose of these official and formal notifications, of course, is to afford the nominee occasion for his personal expression—his pledge to the people, such pronouncement of future purpose and such party utterance as he cares to make on his own account. In a large way the candidate's address is accepted as a keynote more explicit and more definite than that of the convention chairman, for it is the personal declaration of the nominee, and its reflects definitely his own views and his own outlook upon public affairs. In the case of President Wilson it is invested with unusual interest and unusual importance. It will place before the people whom he, in exalted and for the time peculiarly trying position, is serving with patriotic devotion and with a purpose single to the greatest good of this great republic, his own conception of the duties that are his and the opportunities that lie before us as a nation.

Joseph J. Hartigan, commissioner of the New York department of municipal weights and measures, has lodged with the federal authorities in Washington a charge to the effect that there exists a definite conspiracy in that city to increase the price of foodstuffs by taking advantage of the emergency created by the prospect of a railroad strike. If the strike were to come, the natural law of supply and demand would doubtless operate to advance the prices of some commodities, but there should be neither patience nor leniency with greed that sizes upon urgent necessity to reap unholy profits. A conspiracy such as Mr. Hartigan believes he has discovered calls for drastic treatment, and it should not be delayed a moment.

Senator Borah, of Idaho, speaking at the meeting of the American Bar association at Chicago, pleaded with lawyers to take greater part in the framing and enactment of the legislation of this country, asserting it to be a particular duty of the lawyer on account of his special knowledge. Still, we fancy, an examination of the roster of the various state legislatures and of congress will demonstrate that the lawyers have done fairly well in getting into places where they may have a hand in shaping the work of law-making. There never seems to have been a time when the lawyers didn't have a substantial working majority, both in the state and the national legislative bodies.

Gossip regarding the increased membership of the interstate commerce commission when it is enlarged to nine members has already brought forward mention of a number of possibilities for these places, and among them is the name of Judge W. J. Wood, of Evansville. Judge Wood, it will be recalled, was for many years chairman of the Indiana state railroad commission, and throughout his official career demonstrated his splendid capacity and entire fitness for the place. He is now an examiner for the commerce commission, and both in character and qualifications measures up completely to the requirements of membership on the federal body.

Republican National Chairman Willcox is effusive in his praise of Colonel Roosevelt's first campaign speech for Mr. Hughes, and calls it a "noteworthy contribution to the history of the nation." Which seems to bring to one's recollection the fact that republican leaders have not invariably and always pointed with pride to Colonel Roosevelt's "contributions to history." They have worked overtime in the effort to forget a great many of them.

The monthly report of Weather Forecaster McDonough is explicit in proclaiming that Fort Wayne enjoyed a sum total of fifteen clear days during the month just closed. That man's preparing to cite the record for fine performance a little later when we begin to get unpleasantly harsh in our comment on the sort of weather he is providing for us from his perch atop the Shoaff building.

The General Francisco Villa who is now reputed to have driven the Carranza soldiers from Santa Ysabel is doubtless the same ubiquitous gentleman who was but recently dead, badly injuried, limping about on crutches and also buried.

"A Penny Saved---"

AS TO DAYLIGHT SAVING.

(Pittsburg Dispatch.)

If the daylight saving plan, adopted in Europe, is to be taken up in this country it should be done in the same way, that is nationally, not here and there by isolated cities or communities. That is the only way to avoid confusion or needless expense. If it be decided that we shall turn the clock forward an hour, so we shall get up an hour earlier and quit work an hour earlier in the summer months, national action may be limited to a decree that on a certain date clocks all over the country shall be turned forward at 1 a. m. at midnight and remain so until the corresponding date in the fall, when they can be turned back. In this way there would be no need for changing railroad schedules or time of opening stores or offices. The sole change would be in the single operation of pushing the clock hand forward one night in the spring and back another night in the fall.

The action by the executive committee of the chamber of commerce approving the movement is in line with a campaign begun within the chamber of commerce of the United States looking toward national action on that basis. It is now too late in the year to inaugurate the change, but it may require the fall and winter to secure general understanding of the proposition throughout the country. If the European nations have been convinced of the value of the change industrially, physically and socially, so that they have taken formal governmental action, the idea cannot be considered as a mere fad or theory.

It simply amounts to this, that we now sleep through hours of daylight in the summer mornings and waste money and health in the evenings under artificial light. Getting up an hour earlier would give us that much more daylight for work and pleasure and allow us to sleep naturally in the hours of darkness. Before artificial light was as common and cheap as it is people rose earlier and retired earlier. When you think it over does it not seem foolish that we have not thought sooner of the simple expedient of fitting our waking schedule to the sun?

Press in Tribute to Late E. A. K. Hackett

(From the Indiana Daily Times, Indianapolis.)

Edward A. K. Hackett, editor and publisher for thirty-six years of the Fort Wayne Sentinel, was known to us solely through his newspaper and by reputation. We judged Editor Hackett as we studied and esteemed his medium of self-expression—The Sentinel. Measured by the standards he set in his paper, Mr. Hackett was a square, sincere, independent, honest and fearless citizen; plain spoken, yet kindly and courteous; clear and forceful, yet calm and judicious in his utterances; governed by the high and cleanly ethics of fairness and wholesomeness, and at the same time ruled by a passion for the right and by an earnest and human sympathy for the unfortunate and for the erring. We do not now recall a newspaper which embodies more definitely than Hackett's Fort Wayne Sentinel the better ideals of the better journalism. In the death of Editor Hackett Indiana newspaperdom loses a fine and friendly exemplar of all that is worth while in the newspaper field.

(From the Churubusco Truth.)

In the death of E. A. K. Hackett, editor and publisher of the Fort Wayne Sentinel, Indiana loses one of its foremost editors. He always stood for clean journalism, upright business methods, and The Sentinel under his management was recognized far and near as one of the cleanest newspapers in the middle west. His death is greatly deplored throughout the state.

AIN'T NATURE WONDERFUL?

Unnatural History, by Eugene Ahern.

KNUTTY KNOWLEDGE.

They say opportunity knocks only once, but flivvers knock more.

Here's a remarkable case of a fellow hearing the clawhammer of opportunity one-stepping on his white pine front door.

Mr. E. Bony, of Eggville, Ill., one night at supper while picking the slivers out of a blue-fish, saw a greedy fly slide on a sheet of sticky flypaper.

BLAM!! a idea—why not make nutritious glue for stamps and envelopes? Great!

Mr. E. Bony's fortune is made.

Glue flavored like a regular coarse dinner, from soup flavored glue to nut flavor.

Here's how this wonderful brainburst of Mr. E. Bony's will have thousands of dollars for big firms that send out thousands of envelopes daily.

First, Mr. E. Bony sells his nutritious glue to the government for use on stamps, then he sells envelopes to these firms with nutritious glue flaps in all flavors.

Here's where the big idea comes in: The firms can throw away their stamp-envelope licking machines and hire people to do the work for 50 cents a day.

What d'ye mean, work for 50 cents a day

Why, sure, 50 cents a day and their meals—get us

Great idea, what?

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

Baptist.

First Baptist Church.

9:30—The Sunday school will meet as usual. In view of the recent order issued by the city health board, none of the classes for the children under 16 years will meet. This, though, will not interfere with the adult classes, so let all the older ones make it a point to be on hand every Sunday.

10:45—Morning worship. At this service we will have the privilege of welcoming our pastor back after a four weeks' vacation. His theme will be "My Father's House."

6:45—The great meeting of the young people under the lead of the B. Y. P. U. Topic: "Consecration of the Home." Leader, Mrs. Stover. Special music will also be rendered during this session.

7:45—People's popular benedictory service. Topic of sermon, "My Father, Thy Brother." A strong song service always precedes this meeting.

Wednesday, September 6th—7:45—People's prayer hour.

Friday, September 8th—7:30—Bible study class under the lead of Mrs. F. A. Williams.

Mr. Mauk, superintendent of the Sunday school, wishes it announced that while the classes of children under 16 years of age are being discontinued, per ruling of the city health board, still it will not affect the children's standing as to attendance if they will call their teachers by phone or mail a card stating they would have been present if it had been permitted. Mr. Mauk is anxious that all the children understand this, so will the parents kindly see that this is made clear to their children?

Immanuel Church.

It seemed quite strange in the Sunday school last Sunday morning, without the children, but we are willing to abide by the order of the health board without complaining, and only hope that there will be no need of the order being enforced beyond October first. The Sunday school will meet next Sunday morning at 9:30, and the pastor will preach at 10:45. The communion services of the church will occur in connection with the morning services. The evening services will be held at 7:45, and a general invitation is extended to all.

Mid-week prayer meeting on Wednesday evening.

South Wayne.

The services of the church will resume their regular order except the bible school which will meet only in the adult department. The members of all adult classes are urged to make a special effort to be present. Morning worship at 10:45. The minister will preach on the theme, "The New Perspective." B. Y. P. U. at 6:30; evening worship at 7:30. The evening sermon will be on "The Anecdote for the Dissatisfied." The Lord's supper will not be observed until next Sunday at the home-coming service. The mid-week meeting on Wednesday evening will take up a study of Fosdick's "Meaning of Prayer," for a ten weeks' course on the topic "Prayer."

Mt. Olive Church.

Sunday school at 9:30 a. m.; morning service begins at 11 o'clock, at which service the communion will be administered; B. Y. P. U. at 7:15; evening service at 8:00 o'clock. The Church Builders' club will meet on Monday evening with Mrs. Grundy, 521 Holman street. The Ladies' Aid will meet on Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. with Mrs. Clear, 213 Melita street. Prayer meeting Wednesday evening at 8:00 o'clock.

Tabernacle.

After a month's vacation, the pastor will be back in the pulpit Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. During the quarantine there will be no Sunday school, but the homes of all the scholars will be visited each week. Preaching services at 11 and 7:30 o'clock.

Prayer meeting Wednesday night at 7:45 o'clock.

Preparation are being made for Rally day, which will be observed Oct. 8.

Adults should rally now. We give a cordial welcome to all who will meet with us.

Monthly communion service at the close of the morning service.

Congregational.

Plymouth Church.

Bible school for adults at Plymouth church on Sunday morning at 9:30. All of the older people are urged to attend during this month, particularly that all of the adult work may become well organized before Oct. 1.

Rev. Arthur J. Folsom, the pastor, is home from his vacation, and will be in his pulpit on Sunday morning at 10:5. There will be no evening meeting next Sunday, but after next Sunday every week following.

There will be a meeting of the board of deacons on Sunday afternoon at 4:30. Important business is to come before the body. All members are expected to attend.

On Wednesday night, Sept. 6, there will be meetings of deep interest to which all are invited.

The Ladies' society will meet on Friday afternoon, Sept. 8, at 3 o'clock in the church parlors. Mrs. H. C. Lepper is chairman of the committee. A large attendance is desired as plans for the bazaar will be discussed, also other plans for fall work.

Church of God.

Church of God.

The Sunday school will meet at 9:30 a. m. Let all the adult classes be well represented as we have plenty of room now that the children cannot come. Rev. C. E. Manes, of Auburn, will preach instead of the pastor, who is away. The Christian Endeavor will meet at 6:30 p. m., as usual. The teachers and volunteers who have been appointed will visit the homes of the Sunday school scholars and bring them the lesson cards and papers and any message that the school may have for them. What an excellent opportunity this is for father and mother and children to study the lessons together.

Churches of Christ.

West Creighton Avenue Church.

Bible school at 9:20. Worship at 10:30. M. L. Buckley, pastor, will preach. There will be no evening church services. Christian Endeavor at 6:45. Subject, "The Consecration of Home Life." Mrs. Elmer Witte will lead.

WOMEN NOW GETTING GOVERNMENT PLACES

Have Filled Gaps Made by War in English Departmental Ranks.

London, Aug. 25.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—There are 11,000 women clerks and stenographers now employed in the British government offices in Whitehall, a fact which gives some idea of the way the women have filled the gaps left by the men who have joined the army. And still the cry is heard for more women, which leads to the belief that the demand has outstripped the supply.

Even the government departments are finding difficulty in securing the clerical assistance they require. At one time Whitehall officials could pick and choose their clerks, and the majority of those engaged were of an adaptable age—from 20 to 30—but an intelligent girl of 17 without experience can now find a place, and middle-aged women need no longer feel that they are not wanted.

To meet extensions of the activities of such busy places as the war office and the ministry of munitions, it is estimated that some 200 women clerks can be absorbed every week into the official machinery.

The pay is not high, though it is more than what was regarded as a satisfactory starting salary for young girls before the war. It is, of course, far below the salary paid for similar work in the United States.

For ordinary routine work or typewriting the pay is one pound ($5) a week, with six pence (12 cents) an hour for over time. For ordinary clerical work the pay is 25 shillings ($6.25) a week, with an over time rate of seven pence. Competent stenographers start at 26 shillings a week, which may be raised to thirty after a period of satisfactory service and the over time rate is nine pence an hour. The normal hours of work vary from 42 to 48 a week in different departments.

The civil service commissioners are chiefly engaged in the task of supplying the staffs required for temporary employment in public departments. The ministry of munitions and the postoffice departments have to a great extent made their own appointments, but in the last six months the commissioners have found nearly 6,000 women for other government departments.

COULD NOT DO HER COOKING.

Mrs. F. E. Hartmeister, Tea, Mo., writes: "I was affected with kidney trouble for two years. I was so bad this summer I could hardly do my cooking. I got Foley Kidney Pills and they helped me. I feel like a new person." Too many women neglect symptoms of kidney derangement. When the kidneys are not properly doing their work poisons left in the system cause weak back, dizziness, puffiness under eyes, swollen ankles, joints, and rheumatism. Dreier Drug Co.—Advertisement.

LITTLE CHANGE IS MADE.

Official Standards for Shelled Corn Are Promulgated.

Washington, Sept. 2.—Official standards for shelled corn shipped in interstate commerce for sale by grade, have just been promulgated by Secretary Houston under the new grain standards act. Practically they are the same as the old standards, with the addition of a test weight for grades No. 1 and No. , and the substitution of one testing screen with round holes 14-64 inch in diameter for screens formerly required.

HAS WAR WRINKLED BERNSTORFF'S FACE?

Count and Countess von Bernstorff are here shown on the Frederick VIII on which the countess just arrived in New York. New wrinkles, prominent on the face of the German ambassador to the United States, indicate worry over recent critical affairs that threatened to cause a break between the United States and Germany. The countess was Miss Jeanne Luckemeyer of New York.

BETTING ON BALL GAME NOT GAMBLING, HE SAYS

City Judge at New Orleans Makes Unique Ruling in One Case.

New Orleans, La., Sept. 3.—Judge W. J. Stentz, of the city court, in a decision on file today, holds that moderate betting on baseball games does not constitute gambling. The defendant in the case bet a fifty dollar check against the plaintiff's cash that the Green Turtles, a semi-professional team would defeat the Greco Sweets. The Turtles lost and the defendant stopped payment of the check, whereupon the plaintiff sued.

In deciding the plaintiff was entitled to recover the fifty dollars, and overruling the defendant's plea that it was a gambling transaction, and illegal, the court said: "Baseball is not in any sense a gambling game. * * * It is primarily a game of science, physical skill and trained endurance. The court believes baseball a model form of physical development and exercise, which tends to promote skill in the use of the arms, and a bet thereon, if not excessive, is recoverable."

Yarn—Just Plain Woolen Yarn It Is

BY BETTY BROWN.

You may not like this yarn embroidery, but you might as well get used to it. You will probably find it splashed all over your new fall suit.

I saw several of yarn embroidered frocks at a recent fashion show. Not all pleased my fashion-eye as the yarn sometimes looked course and heavy, but I found one model, and promptly penciled it for you, which proves that yarn trimming has a charm of its own.

Fine serge of midnight blue is used to make the gown which is cut, as you see, in one piece, but the thing you'll be interested in is the yarn embroidery, worked out in red and blue and in simple graceful design. The yarn works into the serge very effectively.

Tucker—Lyons.

Miss Anna M. Lyons and Charles M. Tucker, a son of Mrs. M. V. Tucker, were united in marriage at 8:30 o'clock this morning at the Cathedral rectory, Rev. Father John R. Quinlan officiating. The ceremony was performed in the presence of only a few immediate relatives and close friends. The bride and groom were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Warren Lucas, of the Orpheum theater, with which the bride has been connected as soprano soloists since the opening of the theater two years ago. The bride is a daughter of James Lyons, former mayor of Terre Haute, and is a graduate of the public schools of that city. Miss Lyons was married in a handsome and modish silk suit in one of the fashionable shades of purple, with hat to match of purple velvet, in cockade shape and trimmed with a single bunch of grapes. Immediately after the ceremony the couple left for Detroit and Toronto and will arrive at Fairview cottage, the summer home of Mrs. MacPherson, an aunt of the groom, in the Muskoka lake district, in time to be in attendance at the wedding next Wednesday of Miss Louisa Staples, a cousin of Mr. Tucker, and Dr. Albert Bastedo. Mr. and Mrs. Tucker expect to be gone about a week. Upon their return Mrs. Tucker will continue to sing at the Orpheum theater until the expiration of her contract. The groom is well known. He is one of four brothers who came here as children with their mother. He is a high school graduate and is now engaged as an expert accountant with S. F. Bowser and company. As a side line he also sells insurance. Both have the best wishes of their many friends.

Danley—Kayser.

Miss Edythe Helen Kayser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Kayser, of Rivermet avenue, and Ralph B. Danley, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Danley, of Decatur, Ill., were united in marriage on August 21 at Dixon, Ill., Rev. George Hill officiating. The bride has been in charge of the shirt waist department at The Paris store for the past year and is highly esteemed. The groom holds a responsible position with the Becker Auto company. For five years he has made his home in Chicago and Elgin, where he was an active club member and athlete. Mr. and Mrs. Danley have returned from their wedding trip and will live at 602 Madison street, where they will be at home to their friends after September 15.

AT THE PALACE

CURRENT BILL CLOSES TONIGHT.

The favorite bill of the entire season closes this evening at the New Palace. It is a bill that offers more novelty than is usually the portion of a half dozen vaudeville programs, for on it are Hunting and Francis, two members of the famous Four Huntings in "A Fool House," who are presenting the laugh of laughs, "Love Blossoms;" Violet MacMillan, the screen darling in the novelty, "In and Out of the Movies;" Fenton and Green, the absurd nut comedians; P. George, the musical chef; MacRae and Clegg, in their cycling wonder act, and Otto Koerner and company in the sketch, "The Automobile Broker."

The Coming Bills.

The coming week promises some rare entertainment with a special Labor day program for the first half of the week. The big sensation of the bill for the first four days is the Electrical Venus, one of the screamingly funny novelties of the age; Patricola and Meyers, the girl and the dancing fool, are also on the bill. They will be remembered for the hit they scored at the Palace a year ago. Others included in the first half program are Harry Hines, formerly of the team of Hines and Fox; George Fischer and company in the sketch, "Partners;" Arthur Angel and company in "A Real Soldier," and the Caranna Duo.

The Gus Edwards School Boys and Girls with nine people, will head the bill opening Thursday afternoon for three days. On the same program are Erwin and Jane Connelly in their famous old sketch, "Sweethearts," a vaudeville classic of the highest school; John and Winnie Hennings, the Kill-Care couple; Bert Kenney and Nobody in the absurdity, "Nobody's With Me;" Lewis and White, the singing comediennes, and Lew Fitzgibbons, xylophone master.

MISS ANN BERT.

Miss Bert is the leading lady with the new stock company which opens its season at the Temple theater the coming week.

AT THE MAJESTIC

"Miss U. S. A.," Real Musical Entertainment, Tonight.

Francis T. Reynolds has made a decided improvement over the ordinary musical comedy in "Miss U. S. A." at the Majestic tonight. This play by Francis T. Reynolds has a well-defined fantastic romance woven through it and the music is fitted to the play rather than used as incidental, as is so common in the general makeup of musical comedies. "Miss U. S. A." takes you through beautiful scenes, entertains with clever dances and ensembles, makes you feel younger and you leave the theater whistling or humming the many haunting melodies with which "Miss U. S. A." is so replete. Special scenic effects are carried by this company.

"Twilight Sleep" Lecture and Motion Pictures for Women Only.

Fort Wayne will have its first opportunity to investigate twilight sleep, the much heralded painless method of childbirth, during the coming week, when lectures and motion pictures on the subject will be given at 2:15 and 8:15 p. m., beginning Wednesday, at the Majestic theater.

Mrs. Robert B. Liggett, of St. Paul, Minn., whose views on motherhood have caused a sensation all over the country, and who is urging that women demand that science make maternity easier, will give the lecture and will tell details about the origin, preparation and application of scopolamin, the drug which is used as the basis of twilight sleep, and will explain the technique of the treatment as it is used at Freiburg, Germany.

Illustrating the lecture will be motion pictures taken at the Freiburg hospital and showing an actual case of twilight sleep, with the memory tests, the oblivion to all suffering, and the rapid recovery of the mother. Featured in the pictures is Dr. Kurt E. Schlossingk, associate of the originators of twilight sleep, who has been in this country for more than a year conducting clinics in American hospitals, and who has personally delivered more than 500 twilight sleep babies in this country.

The pictures also give a demonstration of the proper way to clothe and bathe small babies, and of suitable and unsuitable maternity clothing.

The lectures and pictures are open to women only, because of the open discussion which follows, during which the audience may ask any questions and express opinions on twilight sleep.

PREPARE FOR CONVENTION.

Federated German Societies of Indiana to Meet Tomorrow.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 2.—Carl Dreisch, of Evansville, secretary of the Federated German Societies of Indiana, arrived in Indianapolis yesterday to prepare for the annual convention of the federation, which will be begun in the German house tomorrow. President Joseph H. Keller, of this city, said that 400 delegates, representing 22,000 members in thirty-seven cities, will attend the convention. Preliminary to the convention a reception will be held in the German house this evening. Governor Ralston and Mayor Bell will deliver addresses of welcome at the opening session tomorrow. The convention will be concluded Monday afternoon.

WILSON BUSY WITH PEN.

Signs More Than 1,000 Executive Papers Before Departure.

Washington, Sept. 2.—Before leaving yesterday for Shadowlawn, N. J., President Wilson signed more than 1,000 bills, commissions, pardons and executive papers, which had accumulated during the last three weeks while he was devoting his attention to the threatened railroad strike.

A good deal of shark meat is eaten in the eastern United States by people who think they are eating something else.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

A SMART STRIPED SKIRT

STRIPED materials and striped effects continue to hold a secure place in the fashion world. Here is a skirt that is distinctive enough to suit the most exclusive woman. Checked velour in black and white and black surah silk are the materials used to form the stripes. There is nothing very new in the style of the skirt, expect in the length. It is predicted that for fall skirts will, in the majority of cases, be ankle length. Gathers are used at the top to produce fullness.

for the foundation of the belt, while two pieces of the checked material ornament the front and the back.

Separate skirts will be very much in evidence in the fall. Their popularity creates a demand for sports coats. As a rule, the latter are made to harmonize in color with the skirt with which they are worn. In some cases the whole coat will not bear out this statement, but there will be buttons, collars and cuffs or pockets of the skirt material to unite the two garments.

Lavender handkerchief linen has been used for the simple blouse. It gains a crisp air by means of pleated ruffles of lawn.

HINTS FOR NEEDLEWORKERS

IN MAKING a set of round doilies, a new discovery was made by sticking a narrow hem in the edge with a rather long machine stitch, then the crochet stitch could be easily made by catching in the machine stitching, with the hook to begin the edge for the lace, catching a loop of the thread in each machine stitch.

Hemstitching can be very easy and neatly done on the sewing machine in this way; draw the number of threads desired and baste the edge of the hem in the center of the drawn threads. Lengthen the stitch on the machine and stitch on the very edge of the hem. Pull the bastings out and pull the edge of the hem to the bottom of drawn threads.

In making a pin cushion, if a piece of pasteboard is inserted in the filling half way, it not only prevents the needles from being lost in the cushion, but keeps it in a better shape.

When the stitches give way in hemstitched articles, such as doilies, sheets, towels, table linens, etc., take some twisted embroidery cotton and featherstitch or herringbone neatly over the hem, catching each side firmly. This looks well and prolongs the wear indefinitely.

Hems of ruffles which become frayed may be easily opened with a paper cutter, trimmed, the edges turned in and stitched together on the machine.

Buy the plainer embroideries, where economy is a necessity. Select those of simple pattern done on the finer material, and give them a touch of handwork by an application of French knots where desirable. The lazy daisy is a simple stitch but a very effective addition on simple embroideries; large, open eyelets may be filled in with fagot stitch done from the back, resulting in an embroidery which could not be purchased for anything like the price of machine-made work.

If you have a pair of Russian net curtains, take the figures from one border, fell them on linen at regular intervals, join them with narrow scroll cut from the edge of the curtains, and edge the piece with the lace taken from the front edge of the curtains, and you will have a handsome centerpiece for your dining table.

Keep a small hammer on the sewing machine. A few sharp taps on a thick seam flatten it and cause it to pass easily under the presser foot. A hem may be turned, "hammered" lightly, and sewed without basting. The hammer passes smoothly and firmly over the fold of tucks, marks them, and prevents the goods from slipping when stitched.

A FOREIGN INVISION

TO THESE United States has come an invasion—foreign. In fashions there is the French pleating on the Russian blouse. America is going mad over Hawaiian music, and oven eating from Japanese luncheon sets. These sets are very unique, a novelty as well; but who cares in this infestion of things "Japanesy"? The large centerpiece has full-length figures, grotesque in the extreme, and lanterns also, outlined in gay colors, around the border. With this set is included six plate-size doilies and six of the smaller size. The figures and decorations are, of course, smaller in comparison.

A CHEAP VACATION

"MOTHER'S going away!" gasped the youngest member of the family to his father as he met him at the front door. Yes, sir, she told Emma today, and showed her where everything was, and ordered stuff from the butcher, and she's upstairs packing now."

A puzzled frown puckered the forehead of the man of the house. He immediately sought out mother. "Sot says you are going away—" he began

"Yes," answered mother, with a mysterious smile. "I need a change."

"But, Mary, I thought you understood that I can't quite manage a trip for you or any of the family this year. Have you any money?"

"Oh, yes, I have a little. I'm not going far."

"But I don't think you have enough to pay railroad fare to anywhere that I can think of."

"Now listen, father. Of course, I shall tell you, but I don't want the children or Emma to know. I have 10 cents for carfare and 90 cents for sundaes, and I'm going to stay three days. You see, Kate Berkeley and myself have seen very little of each other since we have married, especially since she moved across town to that lovely new house. Now, Kate's husband is away on a business trip, and she has asked me to come over and keep her company, and I've decided to go. Emma can manage you all for three days. I'm going to pretend that I'm spending the week-end out of town, and I'm taking my best clothes; and there is going to be a bridge tomorow and an auto ride and dinner the next night. I haven't been away from you since we have been married, and I don't think this will hurt either of us. Am I right?"

Of course, she was right, and her husband agreed, and the secret was kept even when son fell off the shed roof the next day and developed a sprained ankle, and Emma forgot to send for father's shirts when the laundry didn't deliver them, and father couldn't find the new ones which mother had put away. And mother came back looking five years younger, and everybody said what good the "sea air" had done for her.

CHARMING NEGLIGEE SET

NOW, honestly and truly, would you mind sitting opposite the dainty negligee and cap for seven breakfasts in the week? Even if you were sorely set against negligees in general, and boudoir caps in particular? Of course, you wouldn't, especially when you learn that the set need not represent an immense amount of money to the woman who wears it or the hubby who pays for it.

Almost any girl can make this set herself and feel assured that she has something especially dainty to tuck away in her hope chest or trousseau collection. Lace chiffon and silk are all required in the making. A lace or embroidered net flouncing is used, with its edge pointing upward and sewed or hemstitched to plain chiffon for the skirt of the short negligee. By lengthening the chiffon portion, the negligee may be made full or three-quarter length. Cords covered with the silk used for the yoke portion are run thru the bottom of the net skirt to give it something of a flare.

The sleeve is cleverly fashioned by using several points of the flouncing with a puff of the chiffon. The sleeve cap, as well as the yoke with which it is cut in one piece, is of taffeta or soft satin.

Three collars top the negligee, one of the silk on top, another of the pointed flouncing, and a third of the chiffon bound with the silk. Tie ribbons of the silk are caught with roses made of the chiffon.

The little cap, which resembles the familiar student tam, also uses the three materials. The crown is a circle of the silk, while the chiffon makes the puff, and a graduated ruffle of the pointed edging falls down the back to cover the back of the coiffure. Chiffon roses run their pretty way around the silk crown.

NOVEL BAGS

BAGS, in their turn, have shown a frivolous side, which was heretofore least suspected. One cunning little one is made of old rose silk and has three ruffles of the same color gayly sewn across it just below the opening. Another, made of silk also and shirred from top to bottom, makes a fascinating little bag, tho not very practical. And even to handbags has descended the Russian effect. There is one made of white linen with a wide pink stripe. Just below the middle is a belt of the same material fastened by a button and buttonhole. None of these may be very practical, but for one looking for something dainty, these offer novelty at least.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

Chocolate Stains

I would like you to print for me a formula to remove chocolate stains which I got on a pink linen dress. VERA L. K.

Sprinkle the stain with borax. Soak in cold water. Use boiling water.

Curtain Veils

I would like to know how to arrange a veil over the hat in a becoming way. Miss D. L.

The curtain veil is arranged around the hat, and shades the eyes. It is tied in a small bow in the back.

HOG PRICES TAKE A DROP.

Fading Strike Prospects Cause a Slump at Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Sept. 2.—Hogs which sold up to $12 a hundred at the stock yards here today dropped to $11.35 on the belief that the railroad strike would not be called. There was, however, no lessening of embargo regulations imposed by railroads entering this district.

CHILDREN ARE RUN DOWN BY MACHINES

The Son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Smith, 1010 Wilt street, was slightly injured Friday afternoon when he ran directly in front of an auto truck driven by H. W. Bolihauve. The accident occurred on Wells street. Dr. E. E. Morgan was called to examine the child, but found no bones broken.

A small girl was knocked to the pavement at the corner of Hayden and Lillie street when struck by the automobile of G. E. Graham. The girl would not give her name. She was slightly bruised.

A bicycle belonging to Herbert Belty, 3209 South Harrison street, was demolished and the youth injured about the face and arms when he was hit by an automobile at the corner of Baker and Harrison streets Friday evening. The machine hurried on with no attempt to disclose identity of the driver.

MINE WILL BE SENT HERE.

J. C. King, petty officer in charge of the Fort Wayne navy recruiting station, announces a "mine" will be sent here for exhibition the week of September 11, when the Buffaloes will give their circus. Mr. King will give a demonstration each day of the circus. The mine is furnished through the lieutenant commander at Washington.

R. E. McDaniel, realty man of Springfield, Ohio, was in Fort Wayne Friday. He is a member of the Builders of Homes company of the Ohio city. Lee J. Ninde, president of the Wildwood Builder's company, directed the visitor over the city.

LAFAYETTE PLACE LOTS IN DEMAND

Despite the fact that real estate men regarded August as a handicap for their business, the Lafayette Place company was much gratified because of the sales of Lafayette Place lots made during the past month. Property in this new addition is proving exceedingly popular among those who are looking for future home sites because of the numerous advantages and the restrictions placed upon this tract and many of the choice lots are being eagerly sought after. However, there are still many of the best locations unsold and the company anticipates another rush for these during the good weather promised for the next few weeks. For further details see the Wildwood Sales Company, Shoaff building.—Adv.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

DISSENSION IN UNION RANKS BECOMES ACUTE

High Feeling Manifested in Brotherhood Confab at Chicago.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 2.—Reported dissension in union ranks gave officials of the railroad brotherhoods in Chicago considerable anxiety today. T. A. Gregg, vice president of the Order of Railway Conductors met representatives of conductors on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road, who, according to officials of the road, yesterday voted to disregard the strike order. There were indications of high feeling among those present at the conference.

Timothy Shea, vice president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, today denied rumors of dissension.

"These tales don't scare me," said Mr. O'Shea. "Most of them originate or get their growth in railroad offices. Even if locals here and there don't vote to strike they will go out when the time comes. Unless the order is rescinded every one will quit Monday.

HITCHCOCK GOING ON WESTERN TRIP

Chicago, Sept. 2.—Frank H. Hitchcock, member of the republican national advisory committee, will leave in a few days for a trip through the west in the interest of Hughes and Fairbanks. He will visit every state regarded as close or doubtful or where there is lack of harmony in the local organization, and give the leaders the benefit of his experience in managing campaigns.

Miss Harriet E. Vittum today assumed charge of the women's bureau at the western republican headquarters, to direct the campaign in the twelve suffrage states.

DISTRESS CALLS NOT FROM ANY U. S. WARSHIP

Washington, Sept. 2.—Distress calls picked up by steamers in the vicinity of Cristobal canal zone and reported to have been sent out by a naval vessel did not come from any American warship, navy department officials say.

None was in the vicinity mentioned. Responses received by the department from a broadcast wireless query asking vessels whether they were in distress, indicated no trouble among them.

STATE FAIR READY TO OPEN.

Shipments of Blooded Live Stock Reach Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Sept. 2.—Shipments of blooded live stock for exhibit at the Indiana state fair next week began arriving here today. Officials of the fair said all preparations for opening the fair will be completed and carried out Monday morning regardless of the outcome of the strike situation. As interurban roads bring many of the fair visitors to the city, the officials said they had not been worried about the attendance, although the strike might materialize.

ARGUMENTS UNDER WAY.

Effort is Made to Get New Trial for Muncie Man.

Muncie, Ind., Sept. 2.——Arguments on the motion for a new trial for Gene Williams, formerly deputy prosecuting attorney, convicted last June on a charge of conspiracy to solicit bribes, began today before Fred Gauze, special judge. Irregularities in the selection of the jury, and alleged technical errors, are charged in the written motion for the new trial.

SUCCUMBS TO INJURIES

Curtis Gosnell, Muncie Race Driver, Dies at Cleveland.

Cleveland, Sept. 2—Curtis Gosnell, Muncie, Ind., famous race driver on the grand circuit, died here from injuries received at North Randall track last week. Gosnell was thrown while working out a trotting mare and never regained consciousness.

CRIMINAL PROBE TO FOLLOW BOY'S DEATH

Witnesses Will Be Called to Tell How Auto Came to Hit Lad.

Stringent investigation to determine whether criminal action will be brought against Joseph Granney, 1226 East Wayne street, employe in the Wayne Oil Tank works, is to follow the death of Ralph Stoll, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Stoll, 614 Packard avenue, who was struck by Granney's automobile three weeks ago.

The boy died Friday night in the Lutheran hospital from injuries sustained when he was hit by the automobile on August 20. The accident occurred on the Bluffton road, near the Allen county poor farm.

Operation performed on the lad in an effort to save his life Friday proved futile. Post-mortem examination revealed that death was due to ruptured intestines and other internal injuries. Three physicians held the autopsy.

There is no dispute as to the cause of the boy's death. The question hinges on whether or not Granney is guilty of criminal negligence and should be charged with manslaughter. County Prosecutor Frank Emrick says he will make a thorough investigation.

Four Witnesses Known.

Four witnesses to the accident are known. They are Will Wright, Rudisill boulevard, employed at the Packard Piano factory; Ben Boyce, employed in the Wabash shops, and two daughters of Frank Adams, who lives on Gay street. The two girls were in Foster park and saw the accident at a distance. The men were passing along the road several yards away.

Emrick will call the witnesses to his office on Tuesday. He will also question physicians and attendants at the Lutheran hospital who are said to have heard the boy's story of the accident before his death.

Granney is said to have paid a visit to the hospital and to have attempted to convince the boy that he was not to blame for the lad's injuries on last Tuesday.

Granney says he is not accountable for the death of the boy. The youth stood directly in front of his machine, Granney says, while Granney was trying to get the car out of the ditch. When the automobile started it leaped forward and the boy, who was directly in its path, was knocked down. Granney took the boy to his home. The lad was afterwards removed to the hospital.

Different Version.

The unfortunate boy had a different version of the circumstances of the accident. A few hours before he passed away he related the same story to his father.

According to the father the boy's story is as follows: "Papa, I was coming along the road when I noticed the machine was stuck in the ditch. I rode on a little farther under a tree and kept sitting on my bicycle leaning against the tree in the shade. I was as far away from the machine as it is from the front of our lot to our barn (approximately 125 feet). All at once the machine got out of the hole and came awfully fast and struck my bicycle from the back and threw me down."

The lad was a member of Salem Reformed church, having been confirmed in the class last spring. Besides the grief-stricken parents he is survived by one brother, Harry, and two sisters, Matilda and Helen Stoll, both of this city.

ASKS AN INJUNCTION TO CLOSE BURLESQUE

Indianapolis, Sept. 2.—A suit asking that an injunction be issued to prevent the operation of the Columbia theater along certain lines described in the complaint, was filed today in superior court by Prosecuting Attorney A. J. Rucker.

The burlesque performances given at the theater are such that the place is a public nuisance, because it is resorted to for purposes of lewdness, he alleges. The Indianapolis church federation furnished the prosecutor with the information on which he based the suit. A hearing on the question of a temporary injunction will be held next week.

RIVALS IN PERFECT FORM.

Welsh and White Resting for Monday's Go at Colorado Springs.

Colorado Springs, Col., Sept. 2.—After their workouts today Freddie Welsh and Charley White will rest until they meet next Monday afternoon in their twenty round battle for the lightweight championship of the world. On Monday morning at 9 o'clock they will weigh in and neither expects to move the beam, which will be set at 135 pounds. The principals, their managers and trainers and their assistants are a unit as to the perfect condition of the rival fighters. The local betting has been at even or short odds in favor of the champion.

VILLA NEEDS AMMUNITION.

Bandit Chieftain Reported Headed for Galeana District.

Chihuahua City, Mex., Sept. 2.—Francisco Villa with his main band is reported near the Mexican Northwestern railway, about sixty miles west of here.

It is generally believed he is attempting to make his way to caches of ammunition in the Galeana district.

BECOMES CRAZED IN CROWDED STREET CAR

Colored Man Fires Shots at His Wife, Then Ends Own Life.

Indianapolis, Sept. 2.—One is dead and two injured as the result of Thomas Dorsey, colored, becoming crazed on a crowded street car here today and firing a number of shots down the aisle of the car at his wife. Dorsey committed suicide when cornered in the car by a policeman. His wife is injured seriously. Another colored woman was shot in the knee. A panic among the passengers followed the first shot and car windows were broken as men and women tried to get out of the car. The Dorseys had been having domestic trouble and got on the car together to go to a lawyer's office to get advice about a divorce, it was said.

TROOPS WILL MOVE 175 MILES BY MOTOR TRUCK

San Antonio, Tex., Sept. 2.—The First and Second regiments of Kansas infantry, now stationed at Eagle Pass, today will be brought to San Antonio to replace the two Illinois regiments ordered home, it was announced by Major General Funston this morning. The trip, 175 miles long, will be made in motor trucks in order that a thorough test may be had of the value of the machines for troop carrying in the border country.

Three Ohio and three Kentucky regiments now en route are expected to reach El Paso early next week.

WABASH IS FIRST TO LIFT EMBARGO HERE

Every freight agent in Fort Wayne will probably have received notice of the lifting of the embargo placed upon all classes of freight on account of the threatened strike by 6 o'clock tonight. The local Wabash officials received such information from headquarters at 2 o'clock this afternoon and the agents of the other lines are expecting similar news concerning their respective roads at any moment. According to information received here, the Erie road was the first through line east of Chicago to lift the embargo.

Misses Helen Dell, Esther Meyer, Erma Grage and Messrs. Roy Eggeman, Darcie Gerardot and Otto Bangs have gone to Lake George to spend the week-end and Labor day. The party will be chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Gerardot. They will occupy the Willow Beach cottage.

FOOD PRICES BEGIN TO DROP.

Passing of Strike Crisis Shown at Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Sept 2.—Food prices began to recede in Indianapolis today as a result of reports that the strike crisis was passed. The decline principally was in the lines which had shown abnormal tendencies to increase, among them being potatoes, which were quoted from $5.50 to $6.50 a barrel. The highest price reached in the last few days was $6.50. Many farmers appeared on market today, apparently hoping to dispose of their produce at the high prices. Meat prices, especially pork, will continue high, dealers said.

Former Resident is Making Good

WILLIAM K. TEEN.

William K. Teen, a few years ago a resident of this city, has been selected by the National City Bank of New York to enter its collegiate banking class. Mr. Teen completed his secondary education in the Jersey City high school and is this year a graduate of Columbia university. Having specialized in economics and banking and being proficient in foreign languages, he was chosen by his university according to the co-operative educational plan of the National City bank, to enter its collegiate banking class. As a member of this class he will spend a year in the National City bank preparing himself for service in its branches abroad. Mr. Teen is a son of Kaleel Teen, dry goods merchant.

COMMISSION APPROVES PERE MARQUETTE PLAN

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 2—Plans for complete reorganization of the Pere Marquette railroad, with capital stock of $105,000,000 and elimination of the receivership, unanimously were approved by the Michigan railroad commission today. The plan provides for issuance of new stock and bond issues. These securities will be exchanged for securities which now are outstanding.

The total bond issue, as approved, is $36,000,000, the preferred stock issue is to be $24,000,000 and common stock $45,000,000. The plan provides that the fixed interest charges will be reduced from $4,000,000 to $1,500,000 per annum and that $16,000,000 of the new funds will be used to discharge receivers' certifiates and to purchase new equipment.

ANTS ARE PROHIBITIONISTS.

Enforce Law Rigorously, Declares Scientist in Lecture.

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 2.—National prohibition is enforced by the death penalty among ants, according to a lecture given at the St. Jasper county teachers' institute by Dr. C. S. Schmucker, vice president of Notre Dame university. Dr. Schmucher credited his remarks to an authority on ants, who said he had experimented by placing sugar soaked with alcohol where ants could get it. Some of the little insects ate the sugar and became intoxicated.

Other ants found them, reported to the ant hill and soon returned with reinforcements. The intoxicated ants were dragged to a tiny stream and drowned, the speaker said.

WATER HAS WHISKY TINGE

Barrel Used at Brazil Chautauqua Brings Forth Protest.

Brazil, Ind., Sept. 2.—Advocates of strict temperance registered a strenuous objection to the manner in which water was supplied at the recent Brazil chautauqua. So that the water might be iced, it was run into a barrel on an elevated platform and drained out through a spigot. Care to please the temperance element was not exercised in supplying the barrel. It once had contained whisky, and the water had such a strong liquor taste that some declared it had been "spiked."

CARP PROVING NUISANCE.

Fulton County Farmer Pumps Lake Dry to Get Rid of Them.

Rochester, Ind., Sept. 2.—Carp in a lake on the farm of Bert Dudgeon near here have become so numerous they are a nuisance. Every effort to get rid of them has failed. Dudgeon now has a tractor at work operating a pump which is taking 1,000 gallons of water a minute from the lake. He expects to pump the lake dry, kill the carp, let the lake refill and then restock it with more desirable fish.

ADJOURN THURSDAY, IS PLAN.

Senate Democrats and Republicans Counting On It.

Washington, Sept. 2.—Senate democrats and republicans are counting on adjournment of congress Thursday, Sept. 7.

"We will adjourn Thursday," said Senator Simmons. "I do not think anything can delay the session beyond that time. The senate has made up its mind not to take up Senator Owen's corrupt practices bill."

Senator Smoot also said congress would adjourn Thursday.

HUNTINGTON COUPLE WED.

Hillsdale, Mich., Sept. 2.—Earl S. Larr and Leah J. Benner, both of Huntington, Ind., were married here yesterday morning at the Presbyterian Manse, Rev. J. W. Will officiating.

BROTHERHOOD MEN TO WAIT FOR SIGNATURE

Will Not Cancel Strike Order Until President Has Signed Law.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2.—At a meeting of the thirteen brotherhood officials in Washington today it was formally decided that cancellation of the strike order should not be sent out until President Wilson actually had signed the eight hour bill.

Another meeting of the officials will be held tonight after the senate has acted on the house bill. At that time there is a possibility that the decision might be changed.

In the debate on the proposed law in the senate today Senator Sherman, republican, assailed the efforts of the brotherhoods and of other labor organizations to prevent a compulsory arbitration law.

"It is the senate that is to be put under involuntary servitude," said he. "I have been sought to be put under involuntary servitude. If legislation has fallen to so low a degree, if we are ready so servirely to abandon our duty then American politics have reached the point where the few and not the many govern."

Senator Sherman charged President Wilson with making "a petty political bargain" on the eve of election and read a telegram from an actors' union in Chicago, opposing compulsory arbitration.

"So next," he continued, "It is the white rats that are to be legislated for. If we legislate for the engineers the firemen and the brakemen, we must legislate for all from the barnstormers to the genius who portrays the human passions."

He pictures congress legislating while the unions stand stopwatch in hand to see legislation is passed on time.

Senators McCumber and Brandegee, republicans, both opposed the pending bill.

Senator Weeks said the brotherhood men had put congress in the position of "stand and deliver." He said he believed that a majority of the trainmen do not want a strike and that if it were called it would last but a few days.

"If congress accedes to this demand," he added, "it is an end, temporarily at least, to representative government."

Senator Gallinger submitted a telegram from a New Hampshire bartenderns' union protesting against any legislation which would impose involuntary servitude. Mr. Gallinger opposed the bill.

Senator Reed denied congress was showing cowardice in passing the measure. He said the bill was designed to meet an emergency, that the brotherhood leaders were not attempting to force congress to legislate and that there were many senators opposing the bill who would not dare vote against it unless they felt sure it would have enough votes to pass without theirs.

"I find myself in the position where I cannot support the bill," said Senator Kenyon, of Iowa. "I think the Underwood amendment would destroy union labor and I do not believe it should be destroyed.

"I am opposed to this bill because it is humbug," said Senator Kenoyn. The men will find theselves after nine months just where they were before, with a strike on their hands. Furthermore, I am opposed to the bill because congress is abdicating its right to reasonable judgment and mediation.

NO STRIKE THERE, ANYHOW.

Soo Line Forces Said to Have Reached That Decision.

Minneapolis, Sept. 2.—G. R. Huntington, general manager of the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Saulte Ste Marie railroad announced today that 'at a conference with representatives of our conductors and brakemen last night, it was agreed there would be no strike on the "Soo line" regardless of any action taken elsewhere."

Engineers and firemen did not take a strike vote because of a contract with the road.

STRIKE-BREAKERS EN ROUTE.

Erie, Pa., Sept. 2.—A train of seven coaches filled with men who said they had been employed as strike-breakers in the event of a railroad strike reached here on the Erie railroad, bound for the east just before noon. The men declared they were hungry, and demanded something to eat before proceeding on their journey. Efforts were made at the station to provide them with food. Some of the men, it was said, left the train here.

WEATHER FOR COMING WEEK.

Washington Forecaster Gives Out Meterological Program.

Washington, Sept. 2.—Weather predictions for the week beginning Sunday, issued by the weather bureau today, are:

Ohio valley: Fair, with moderate temperature first half of week; probably unsettled and warmer with local showers latter half.

Great lakes region: Fair until about Wednesday, when there will be local rains. Warmer Tuesday and Wednesday, followed by fair and cooler weather latter part of week.

WILLING WORKERS TO MEET.

The Willing Workers' Aid society will hold its regular monthly meeting Tuesday afternoon, September 5, at the Y. W. C. A. building. Those in charge of the meeting are Mesdames Knoche, Durnell, Byrer, Fox, Teagarden, Miller, Loos, Kistler and Rhoades.

MISS DETROIT WILL HAVE TO SHOW SPEED

Contending Water Craft Has Shown 66 Miles an Hour in Competition.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 2.—Opposed by five of the fastest water craft in the world, Miss Detroit, defender, was expected to be taxed to the limit in her efforts to win again the gold cup in the national powerboat races, which begin with a thirty-mile heat here late this afternoon.

The boats, which have power plants ranging from 130 to 640 horse-power, received thire final tuning up in the Detroit river this forenoon. One of them, Miss Minneapolis, is credited with having made more than 66 miles an hour in competition. The other contenders are Baby Maronld and Miss Hamtrack, of Detroit, and Hawkeye and Peter Pan VIII, of New York. Ankle Deep, too, another eastern boat, was eligible, but was not expected to start.

Three heats of thirty miles each are to be raced, the second and third being scheduled for Monday and Tuesday.

FOE PLANES DROPPED BOMBS ON PORT SAID

Some Casualties But No Property Damage, is Report.

London, Sept. 2.—3 p. m.—A British official statement regarding the situation in Egypt says:

"Hostile aeroplanes dropped bombs on Port Said on Friday. Twenty-five missiles were thrown. There were some casualties but no property damage.

"In the operations near Katia last month three more machine guns and 15,000 rounds of ammunition were brought in."

After an audience lasting two hours on Thursday with King Constantine, of Greece, which gave rise to persistent rumors, Premier Zaimis, according to a dispatch filed at Athens yesterday by the correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph company, said that Greece maintained her policy of friendly neutrality toward the entente powers while awaiting events.

THE COURTS.

Annoyed by Her Husband.

MAPS ARE INDEX TO 75,000 LAND TITLES

Important Addition Made to State Land Department Records.

Indianapolis, Sept. 2.—The activity of the state board of accounts has resulted in the placing on file in the land department of the state more than 500 maps, each one a graphic index to the complex and numerous ancietn records for more than 75,000 titles to property within the state. They present at a glance all erroneous titles and have become part of the records of the land department of the state. A report of the work will be made to Governor Ralston by G. H. Hendren, state examiner for the board of accounts, in the near future.

The work was done to place the state land department upon a uniform system of abstracting the titles to thousands of now valuable tracts which originally were donated to the state by the federal government. At one time these lands sold from 50 cents to $3.50 an acre. Many errors were made years ago by officers executing the land patents, and only a special act by the legislature now can correct the mistakes.

The records show that what was known as the Vincennes donation was located in what now are Pike, Knox, Gibson, Davies and Sullivan counties. The proceeds of the sales of that land were supposed to have been used for an institution of learning, and after about 4,000 acres had been sold the fund became the nucleus for the Vincennes university. The titles to the remaining lands in that district since have been the subject of much legislation and litigation.

Other donations made to the state school fund records show, consisted of 650,317 acres, which had been sold, and 719.6 acres unsold. The land is in all partes of the state. The donation of that land was in 1821.

A later donation in 1826-1847, consisting of seven grants, included 1,457,366 acres. The number of patents issued for that land is 36,000. In 1850 congress gave the state 1,252,708 acres more in 72 counties. It consisted of swamp and overflow land and was sold for $1.25 an acre. The state received $1,759,752.15 from those sales, the investigations of the state board of accounts shows. Because of innumerable blunders in the transfer of the land the title to many acres still is in the state.

Grant of land of which there is no record in the state land department included 45,000 acres in Clark and Scott counties, known as the Illinois grant, given by the state of Virginia to her troops in 1786, and specifically reserved for the troops which served in General Clark's campaign against Kaskaskia in 1789.

The land federal donation to the state was in 1862, and consisted of 13,000 acres for each senator and representative in congress. Indiana's share of that donation was in "land script," sold for $212,238. Indiana had no land within its borders which could be given to it, so the script had to be issued. The proceeds of that sale became the nucleus of the fund which established Purdue university.

POPE BENEDICT HAS FORMALLY PROTESTED

Objects to Seizure of Palace Used by Diplomat Accredited to Holy See.

Berlin, Sept. 2.—By wireless to Sayville).—Pope Benedict, according to the Vossische Zeitung, has formally protested against the seizure by the Italian government of the ancient palace of the republic of Venice, the Palazzo di Venezia in Rome. The palace was being used by the Austro-Hungarian ambassador accredited to the Holy See.

Austria-Hungary, the newspaper says, already has transmited a protest through the Spanish embassy against the seizure, declaring that Italy by the convention of August 24, 1866, recognized the inviolability of the palace and pointing that the seizure in addition infringes upon the right of the pontiff to maintain diplomatic relations with the foreign powers.

A decree issued by the Italian government on August 27, said the palace was confiscated as a measure of reprisal for "abominable violations of international law and devastation of monuments and buildings in Venice without any military motives."

Athens, Sept. 1.—(Midnight, via London, Sept. 2, 8:05 p. m., Precede London.)—The French flag today was hoisted on four German and three Austrian merchant ships seized by boarding parties in the harbor of Piraeus.

GETTING READY FOR GREATER BUSINESS

Pennsylvania Road Foreman of Engines Hanna to Enlarge Crew List.

The increasing freight business on the Pennsylvania is the occasion for creating some more crews on the Western division. Road Foreman of Engines John H. Hanna issued a bulletin two weeks ago stating that he would add ten crews to the list. The assignments have been placed in the hands of Joseph C. Brake, who is now at work upon them. So far he has arranged for transfer of five firemen from the high class freight service to extra passenger firemen, but has not made the other assignments. The firemen promoted are J. W. Krick, S. J. Dill, C. R. Scheckler, C. Stahlhut and W. F. Herber.

IRON WORKERS' PICNIC.

Program One of Best Ever Gotten Up for Purpose.

The Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, No. 147, who changed the date of holding their all-day picnic and athletic tournament from Labor day to Sunday on account of another demonstration by labor unions, have completed arrangements for the event at Centlivre park and anticipate a big crowd and a good time. The local has taken the precaution to guard against storm interference with the festivities and has erected three large tents in which the exercises will be held if it rains, thus assuring their guests a good time, even if the weather conditions are bad. Barner's orchestra has been engaged to furnish the music. One of the officials of the union said this morning that the public would be welcome at the picnic and he hoped to see many people there from outside iron worker circles. Local No. 147, which only had twelve members early in the spring, now has nearly 100 members and is growing rapidly. At the meeting Thursday night seven applicants were initiated and seven others were voted upon and will be admitted to the union at a future meeting.

WARNS AGAINST DELAY.

New York Central Issues Notice Concerning Threatened Strike.

The New York Central railway has sent out a notice warning passengers that there may be delay in travel in event the threatened strike materializes, and states that all tickets are sold with the understanding that the railway can not be responsible for such delay. The notice as received at the local station reads as follows: "All tickets issued by this company or by the company lines for transportation to points on or via the New York Central are subject to restricted train service and indefinite delay. All employes will see that the public is fully informed as to this notice."

TO LAFAYETTE FOR A BRIDE

An affair occurred at Lafayette today which will have to be accounted for to the men and women connected with the transformer engineering department of the General Electric works when the person who took the chief role reports there for duty in a week or two. The offender is A. J. Magley and the offense is getting married without giving his associates due notice in advance. The bride is said to be a most attractive and popular resident of Lafayette, but none here knew her name. Mr. Magley has been employed in the transformer engineering department of the General Electric works ever since he graduated from Purdue university in 1914. He is a member of the Electric Works band and also of the American Institute of Electric Engineers. His return with his bride is awaited with considerable interest.

NOT STRIKE-BREAKERS.

The Bellevue Gazette says: "Local officials of the Nickel Plate deny any knowledge of plans for the use of strike-breakers in the event of a railroad strike being called. Bunk cars which recently have been fitted out here and now are standing in the yards are for the accommodation of negroes who are to be employed on track work at Cleveland, it was said at the company offices here today."

TRAINMEN HOLD MEETINGS

Notices have been posted at the Pennsylvania round house, announcing special meetings of all train and yard service men which are being held at United hall for the purpose of receiving special instructions pertaining to the eight-hour movement. The first meeting was held on Friday night, and other meetings were announced for Saturday at 9 o'clock a. m. and 2 and 7:45 p. m., also on Sunday at 9 a. m. and 2 and 7:45 p. m.

GOES TO DETROIT TO WORK.

William Bernhard, foreman of the grinding department of the hand screw room at the General Electric works, has resigned. He has secured a better position in a factory in Detroit and will leave for that city tomorrow. Mr. Bernhard has been employed at the General Electric works for fourteen years and is quite well and favorably known to the employes there and many people in other circles.

WABASH SHOPS ARE RUNNING.

The Wabash shops were in operation for eight hours today to complete some repairs, on locomotives that could not be laid over until after Labor Day. Ordinarily the Wabash shops do not run on Saturdays. There is lots of work on hand at present, however, and the works have been more or less crippled the past two weeks by men being away on vacations or for other reasons.

WRITES FROM BORDER.

R. E. Sullivan, who was formerly an airbrake inspector at the Pennsy roundhouse and who is now a member of Company E, on the border, has written a card to his brother, E. J. Sullivan, clerk in the master mechanic's office. The young man states that the soldiers are in comfortable circumstances, and tells something of their life on the border.

MISS SACKMAN RESIGNS.

Miss Myrtle Sackman, stenographer and clerk at the office of Division Storekeeper E. L. Ensel, of the Wabash for two or three years, resigned yesterday and was succeeded by Miss Gesine E. Rippe. Miss Sackman, as previously stated by The Sentinel, will be married Wednesday, September 20, to Earl Thomson, a machinist employed in the Wabash shops at Toledo.

TWO MEN INJURED.

Two employes of the Pennsylvania car machine shop sustained injuries while at work yesterday which will keep them off duty for a few days. J. A. Henry suffered a badly bruised foot, when an iron rod fell on him, and P. J. Schenk was injured about the legs by a piece of iron flying from a drill press.

WILL STAGE CARNIVAL.

Herd No. 1, Benevolent Order of Buffaloes, has contracted with the business manager of the Tom W. Allen shows to exhibit in Fort Wayne for one week, beginning Monday, September 11, for the benefit of the lodge's annual charity fund.

WILL BE OPEN SUNDAY

On account of closing business Monday and Monday night on account of Labor day, the men of the Pennsylvania freight house will work tonight, tomorrow and tomorrow night. No work of any kind will be permitted at the freight house on Labor day.

Nickel Plate Engineer J. W. Wells, who had been sick, is working again.

W. Bork, yard foreman at the Bass works, is off duty because of sickness.

C. Lehr, yard engineer on the Pennsylvania is sick and off duty.

Fireman F. Miller, of the Nickel Plate, is now in the passenger service, having just been promoted.

Nickel Plate Brakeman C. A. Sheets has been sick and off duty for two or three days.

George Krommiller, of the Pennsylvania planing mill, is going to Pittsburg, where he will remain over Labor day.

Bob Volz, sweeper in the Pennsylvania planing mill, has returned to work, after being off a week on account of sickness.

F. Harpe, a boiler maker helper in the Western Gas shop, is off duty because of sickness.

H. Guebard, a painter at the Western Gas shops, is off duty because of an injury to his finger.

Machinist Charles W. Hausbach, of the Wabash, is taking a day off to look after some private business.

Walter Niemeyer, clerk in the Pennsylvania blacksmith shop, is off duty because of sickness.

E. F. Prange, a laborer at the Pennsylvania erecting shop, with his wife, is going to Chicago to spend a few days.

James Leach, Pennsylvania motive power inspector, has returned from a business trip to the east.

Foreman Chris Kees, of the Pennsylvania freight house, was taken sick Thursday night and has been unable to get down to his office since.

F. A. Maple, a rivet heater in the Pennsylvania boiler shop, has resigned his position and will accept employment in a wire factory in Chicago.

H. Freiberger, a boiler maker at the Western Gas works, is laying off a few days in order to attend to some personal business.

C. Rosenberger, punch operator in the Western Gas boiler shop, has gone to Rome City, where he will spend a few days.

E. Kreigh and J. Henley, boiler maker helpers at the Western Gas shop, have resigned their positions. The former will go to Decatur, Ind., to work.

E. C. Murley, a meter tester at the General Electric works, will spend his annual vacation next week at Anderson, Ind.

M. S. Willson, of the engineering department of the General Electric works, is still quite sick and has not been able to get to the office for several days.

Miss Ida Cohen, stenographer and clerk at the Wabash division storeroom, has gone to the lakes to stay over Labor day.

Mrs. Leo Smith, wife of the assistant baggagemaster at the Wabash depot, is with her daughter, Mrs. Hull, at Churubusco to spend a couple days.

E. Boley, who had a knuckle dislocated a week ago, reported for duty at the tin shop of the General Electric works this morning.

Harry Cashdollar, clerk in the dynamo assembling room at the General Electric works, has entered upon a week's vacation, which he will spend at Logansport and Marion.

Foreman Joseph Schwartzhopf, of the punch press department of the General Electric works, who has been out on a vacation, will resume his duties next Tuesday morning.

Boilermaker William Zimmerman, of the Wabash, left this morning for Waterloo, Iowa, where he will visit his nephew, Clarence Miller, the ball player, a week or two.

John Hess is acting as foreman at the tin shop of the General Electric works, in place of Foreman S. A. Bickel, who is taking a fifteen days' vacation.

Fred Feuchter, of the polishing department of the General Electric works, who is one of the most successful fishermen in that plant, will spend Sunday and Labor day at Loon lake.

O. W. Kamm, a machinist at the Pennsylvania shops, is off duty suffering from a badly inflamed hand. A piece of steel became imbedded in his hand three weeks ago, but gave him no trouble until the last few days, and he was forced to leave work yesterday.

M. J. Kellog, air brake inspector, at the Pennsylvania round house, who has been off duty for the past three days because of a burned hand, was able to return to work today.

Before resuming his studies at Purdue, Lloyd Poole, who spent the summer vacation in the general testing room of the General Electric works, will take a week's rest and pleasure. He resigned his position at the works this morning.

Engineer A. E. Evans, of the Nickel Plate, is at the throttle of passenger trains 1 and 2 on the Chicago division of the road, in the place of Engineer Ed Wolf, whose serious illness was mentioned yesterday.

Otto Borkenstine, clerk in the boiler shop at the Western Gas works, has been transferred to the foundry, where he will serve as clerk. F. A. Leutweyler, a boilermaker helper, has been given the clerk position in the boilershop.

Fred Skinner, a tinner at the General Electric works, left this afternoon for Rome City, where he will remain a week. J. W. Shovlin, also a tinner, left for Clear Lake this afternoon to spend Sunday and Monday.

R. E. Metz, of 1404 Wabash avenue, a tinner at the General Electric works, is entertaining his relative, John Woolfe, of Padisstock, Canada. The visiter will remain here over Labor day and then go to Logansport to visit other relatives.

S. L. Burson, son of the Pennsylvania air brake expert and instructor, is attending the Protestant demonstration at Pittsburg today and represented Loyalty commandery, Knights of Malta, in the big parade.

E. H. Rehling, a machine operator in the Pennsylvania blacksmith shop, is off duty because of a bruised hand, caused by the slipping of a wrench he was using to tighten a nut on a furnace.

J. H. Stewart, engineer on the Pennsylvania, who has been off duty nearly all summer because of injuries, was able to return to work this week. He is in charge of No. 48 and No. 21, two fast mail trains running between Fort Wayne and Crestline, O.

Chief Clerk William J. Haas, of the Pennsylvania freight department, is giving the office personal attention again after a two or three weeks' vacation. The early part of the vacation was spent in the northern resorts and the latter part with friends in Indianapolis.

When the Pennsylvania shops closed last night and other industries at noon today, it was to remain inoperative until Tuesday morning. The employes will spend the time in pleasure pursuits, a great many of them going to the lakes to remain over Sunday and Labor day.

The American Road Machine company is enjoying the most prosperous summer of its existence, with prospects of the heavy business continuing through the winter. As a result of the heavy business the company has hired many new men during the past month, the latest additions being Ira B. Dawson and Harry Hibbler.

Eastbound passenger train No. 28, on the Wabash, was three hours behind schedule time when it pulled into Fort Wayne today. Delay was due in a way to the impending strike of the brotherhoods, everybody away from home was rushing in that direction and everybody that had anything to ship that could go by express was sending it that way.

General Foreman George Smith, of the small motor department of the General Electric works, has made some additions to his working force in the past week. Among the new employes are the Misses Mayme Brown, Georgia and Mariam Bowersock, Violet and Ethel Potts, Ella Hellwig and Rose Johnson, all in the winding department; R. W. Shambaugh, stock clerk, and Nicholas Herber, an assembler.

Mrs. E. V. Gordon, of Antwerp, Ohio, passed through the city this morning en route home. She had been at Odon, Mich., where the family spend the summer months, but getting scared least the strike occur and she be unable to get home, she left two or three weeks sooner than she expected. Mr. Gordon is driving an automobile down from the resort. He is a member of the firm of Gordon Brothers & Company, hardware dealers, and is well known in business circles in this part of the country.

THE DEATHS

HOPI INDIANS PERFORM ANNUAL SNAKE DANCE WITH POISONOUS RATTLERS GRIPPED IN TEETH.

Hopi Indians performing weird snake dance.

Winslow, Ariz., Aug. 30.—The annual Snake Dance ceremony of the Hopi Indians, in which rattlesnakes, poison-fanged, are held in the teeth of the dancers, has just come to a glorious finish on the reservation near here.

Assured that this "making of mighty medicine" will overpower the magic of the gods of the four world-quarters, the clouds and the lightning and bring rains for the corn crop, the Hopi priests and their tribesmen have once again returned to the routine of life.

The hundreds of tourists who saw the fascinating rites have gone their way into the outside world. Life is normal once more in the squat villages of eastern Arizona. It will remain so until next year at this time when the tribal ceremonies will be enacted again.

For years these swarthy sons of the "Painted Desert" conducted their celebration in carefully guarded and sacred solitudes of the sands, but as civilization came closer the high priests decreed that the white man and his squaw could see the spectacular features of the dances. But even now the more sacred rites are performed in underground kivas or temples, which no one but the elect may enter.

In five Hopi villages each year, two fraternities co-operate during August in the presentation of ceremonies which last nine days. The fraternities are the Blue and Drab Flute and the Antelope and Snake.

The snake dance, owing to the weirdness of the performance on the ninth day, has become the most popular of the celebrations and is the chief magnet for tourists, although the other fetes are vastly interesting.

From sixty to eighty snakes are caught on the desert mesas during the first days of the ceremony. They are held in jars in the sacred kivas until the morning of the dance, when carriers take the jars to the plaza. Barbarously bedecked priests, each trying to outdo the others in splendor of dress, march slowly to the dancing grounds. As they pass the carriers each priest receives a snake.

The writhing reptiles are gripped in the teeth of the dancers and the spectacle begins. At times snakes wriggle from the mouths of the dancers and are scooped up by the carriers and again placed into the hands of the priests. The dance continues, the priests marking a huge circle as they wave the snakes about their heads. Near the end, one of the priests draws a circle on the ground with sacred meal and the dancers toss the snakes onto the spot. As they wind around this place each man plunges his hands into the wriggling mass and brings up as many snakes as he can seize. At the finish the snakes are released on the desert mesas to wriggle away to freedom.

The big mystery of the ceremony is that the priests are seldom bitten by the snakes and when one does receive a wound he does not die. The Hopis do not remove the poison fangs and, so far as is known, have on antidote for the poison.

Magic, the Indians say, keeps the priests from harm. The rattlesnakes are afraid to bite them.

FACES PLOTTING CARGE.

Former Mexican Colonel Sent to Chihuahua City for Trial.

El Paso, Sept. 2.—Lino Ponce, formerly a colonel under Orozco, brought to Juarez today from Casas Grandes, was sent to Chihuahua City for trial on a charge of plotting against the Carranza government. Military authorities in Juarez declined to discuss the charges, but it was reported that as a result of Ponce's alleged cabal, forty men of the defacto garrison at Ascension, forty miles south of Columbus, N. M., revolted Wednesday night, but were overpowered and their leader, Captain Vincente Carrion, was killed.

SENTINEL WANT ADS ALWAYS GET RESULTS

President Wilson's Speech of Acceptance

Long Brand, N. J., Sept. 2.—The complete text of President Wilson's address accepting the democratic nomination for the presidency is as follows:

"Senator James, Gentlemen of the Notification Committee, Fellow Citizens: I cannot accept the leadership and responsibility which the national democratic convention has again, in such generous fashion, asked me to accept without first expressing my profound gratitude to the party for the trust it reposes in me after four years of fiery trial in the midst of affairs of unprecedented difficulty, and the keen sense of added responsibility with which this honor fills (I hal almost said burdens) me as I think of the great issues of national life and policy involved in the present and immediate future conduct of our government. I shall seek, as I have always sought, to justify the extraordinary confidence thus reposed in me by striving to purge my heart and purpose of every personal and of every misleading party motive and devoting every energy I have to the service of the nation as a whole, praying that I may continue to have the counsel and support of all forward-looking men at every turn of the difficult business.

"For I do not doubt that the people of the United States will wish the democratic party to continue in control of the government. They are not in the habit of rejecting those who have actually served them for those who are making doubtful and conjectural promises of service. Least of all are they likely to substitute those who promised to render them particular services and proved false to that promise for those who have actually rendered those very services.

No Disposition to oBast.

"Boasting is always an empty business, which pleases nobody but the boaster, and I have no disposition to boast of what the democratic party has accomplished. It has merely done its duty. It has merely fulfilled its explicit promises. But there can be no violation of good taste in calling attention to the matter in which those promises have been carried out or in adverting to the interesting fact that many of the things accomplished were what the opposition party had again and again promised to do but had left undone. Indeed that is manifestly part of the business of this year of reckoning and assessment. There is no means of judging the future except by assessing the past. Constructive action must be weighed against destructive comment and reaction. The democrats either have or have not understood the varied interests of the country. The test is contained in the record.

What is the Record?

"What is that record? What were the democrats called into power to do? What things had long waited to be done, and how did the democrats do them? It is a record of extraordinary length and variety, rich in elements of many kinds, but consistent in principle throughout and susceptible of brief recital.

"The republican party was put out of power because of failure, practical failure and moral failure; because it had served special interests and not the country at large; because, under the leadership of its preferred and established guides, of those who still make its choices, it had lost touch with the thoughts and the needs of the nation and was living in a past age and under a fixed illusion, the illusion of greatness. It had framed tariff laws based upon a fear of foreign trade, a fundamental doubt as to American skill, enterprise and capacity, and a very tender regard for the profitable privileges of those who had gained control of domestic markets and domestic credits; and yet had enacted anti-trust laws which hampered the very things they meant to foster, which were stiff and inelastic, and in part unintelligible. It had permitted the country throughout the long period of its control to stagger from one financial crisis to another under the operation of a national banking law of its own framing which made stringency and panic certain and the control of the larger business operations of the country by the bankers of a few reserve centers inevitable; had made as if it meant to reform the law but had faintheartedly failed in the attempt, because it could not bring itself to do the one thing necessary to make the reform genuine and effectual, namely, break up the control of small groups of bankers.

Oblivious or Indifferent.

"It had been oblivious, or indifferent, to the fact that the farmers, upon whom the country depends for its food and in the last analysis for its prosperity, were without standing in the matter of commercial credit, without the protection of standards in their market transactions, and without systematic knowledge of the markets themselves; that the laborers of the country, the great army of men who man the industries it was professing to father and promote, carried their labor as a mere commodity to market, were subject to restraint by novel and drastic process in the courts, were without assurance of compensation for industrial accidents, without federal assistance in accommodating labor disputes, and without national aid or advice in finding the places and the industries in which ther labor was most needed. The country had no national system of road construction and development. Little intelligent attention was paid to the army, and not enough to the navy. The other republics of America distrusted us, because they found that we thought first of the profits of American investors and only as an afterthought of impartial justice and helpful friendship. Its policy was provincial in all things; its purposes were out of harmony with the temper and purpose of the people and the timely development of the nation's interests.

Since Democracy Came.

"So things stood when the democratic party came into power. How do they stand now? Alike in the domestic field and in the wide field of the commerce of the world, American business and life and industry have been set free to move as they never moved before.

"The tariff has been revised, not on the principle of repelling foreign trade, but upon the principle of encouraging it, upon something like a footing of equality with our own in respect of the terms of competition, and a tariff board has been created whose function it will be to keep the relations of American with foreign business and industry under constant observation, for the guidance alike of our business men and of our congress. American energies are now directed towards the markets of the world.

"The laws against trusts have been clarified by definition, with a view to making it plain that they were not directed against big business but only against unfair business and the pretense of competition where there was none; and a trade commission has been created with powers of guidance and accommodation which have relieved business men of unfounded fears and set them upon the road of hopeful and confident enterprise.

"By the federal reserve act the supply of currency at the disposal of active business has been rendered elastic, taking its volume, not from a fixed body of investment securities, but from the liquid assets of daily trade; and these assets are assessed and accepted, not by distant groups of bankers in control of unavailable reserves, but by bankers at the many centres of local exchange who are in touch with local conditions everywhere.

Along Other Lines.

"Effective measures have been taken for the re-creation of an American merchant marine and the revival of the American-carrying trade indispensable to our emancipation from the control which foreigners have so long exercised over the opportunities, the routes, and the methods of our commerce with other countries.

"The interstate commerce commission has been reorganized to enable it to perform its great and important functions more promptly and more efficiently. We have created, extended and improved the service of the parcels post.

"So much we have done for business. What other party has understood the task so well or executed it so intelligently and energetically? What other party has attempted it at all? The republican leaders, apparently, know of no means of assisting business but "protection." How to stimulate it and put it upon a new footing of energy and enterprise they hae not suggested.

For the Farmers.

"For the farmers of the country we have virtually created commercial credit, by means of the federal reserve act and the rural credits act. They now have the standing of other business men in the money market. We have successfully regulated speculation in "futures" and established standards in the marketing of grains. By an intelligent warehouse act we have assisted to make the standard crops available as never before both for systematic marketing and as a security for loans from the banks. We have greatly added to the work of neighborhood demonstration on the farm itself of improved methods of cultivation, and, through the intelligent extension of the functions of the department of agriculture, have made it possible for the farmer to learn systematically where his best markets are and how to get at them.

"The workingmen of America have been given a veritable emancipation, by the legal recognition of a man's labor as part of his life, and not a mere marketable commodity; by exempting labor organizations from processes of the courts which treated their members like fractional parts of mobs and not like accessible and responsible individuals; by releasing our seamen from involuntary servitude; by making adequate provision for compensation for industrial accidents; by providing suitable machinery for mediation and conciliation in industrial disputes; and by putting the federal department of labor at the disposal of the workingman when in search of work.

"We have effected the emancipation of the children of the country by releasing them from hurtful labor. We have instituted a system of national aid in the building of highroads such as the country has been feeling after for a century. We have sought to equalize taxation by means of an equitable income tax. We have taken the steps that ought to have been taken at he outset to open up the resources of Alaska. We have provided for national defense upon a scale never before seriously proposed upon the responsibility of an entire political party. We have driven the tariff lobby from cover and obliged it to substitute solid argument for private influence.

Of Promises Redeemed.

This extraordinary recital must sound like a platform, a list of sanguine promises; but it is not. It is a record of promises made four years ago and now actually redeemed in constructive legislation.

"These things must profoundly disturb the thoughts and confound the plans of those who have made themselves believe that the democratic party neither understood nor was ready to assist the business of the country in the great enterprises which it is its evident and inevitable destiny to undertake and carry through. The breaking up of the lobby must especially disconcert them: for it was through the lobby that they sought and were sure they had found the heart of things. The game of privilege can be played successfully by no other means.

"This record must equally astonish those who feared that the democratic party had not opened its heart to comprehend the demands of social justice We have in four years come very near to carrying out the platform of the progressive party as well as our own; for we also are progressives.

Banking and Currency.

"There is one circumstance connected with this program which ought to be very plainly stated. It was resisted at every step by the interests which the republican party had catered to and fostered at the expense of the country, and these same interests are now earnestly praying for a reaction which will save their privileges, for the restoration of their sworn friends to power before it is too late to recover what they have lost. They fought with particular desperation and infinite resourcefulness the reform of the banking and currency system, knowing that to be the citadel of their control; and most anxiously are they hoping and planning for the amendment of the federal reserve act by the concentration of control in a single bank which the old familiar group of bankers can keep under their eye and direction. But while the 'big men' who used to write the tariffs and command the assistance of the treasury have been hostile,—all but a few with vision,—the average business man knows that he has been delivered, and that the fear that was once every day in his heart, that the men who controlled credit and directed enterprise from the committee rooms of congress would crush him, is there no more, and will not return,—unless the party that consulted only the 'big men' should return to power,—the party of masterly inactivity and cunning resourcefulness in standing pat to resist change.

Cannot Meet New Conditions.

"The republican party is just the party that cannot meet the new conditions of a new age. It does not know the way and it does not wish new conditions. It tried to break away from the old leaders and could not. They still select its candidates and dictate its policy, still resist change, still hanker after the old conditions, still know no methods of encouraging business but the old methods. When it changes its leaders and its purposes and brings its ideas up to date it will have the right to ask the American people to give it power again; but not until then. A new age, an age of revolutionary change, needs new purposes and new ideas.

"In foreign affairs we have been guided by principles clearly conceived and consistently lived up to. Perhaps they have not been fully comprehended because they have hitherto governed international affairs only in theory, not in practice. They are simple, obvious, easily stated, and fundamental to American ideals.

We Have Been Neutral.

"We have been neutral not only because it was the fixed and traditional policy of the United States to stand aloof from the politics of Europe and because we had had no part either of action or of policy in the influences which brought on the present war, but also because it was manifestly our duty to prevent, if it were possible, the indefinite extension of the fires of hate and desolation kindled by that terrible conflict and seek to serve mankind by reserving our strength and our resources for the anxious and difficult days of restoration and healing which must follow, when peace will have to build its house anew.

"The rights of our own citizens of course became involved: that was inevitable. Where they did this was our guiding principle: that property rights can be vindicated by claims for damages, and no modern nation can decline to arbitrate such claims; but the fundamental rights of humanity cannot be. The loss of life is irreparable. Neither can direct violations of a nation's sovereignty await vindication in suits for damages. The nation that violates these essential rights must expect to be checked and called to account by direct challenge and resistance. It at once makes the quarrel in part our own. These are plain principles and we have never lost sight of them or departed from them, whatever the stress or the perplexity of circumstance or the provocation to hasty resentment. The record is clear and consistent throughout and stands distinct and definite for anyone to judge who wishes to know the truth about it.

American Above All.

"The seas were not broad enough to keep the infection of the conflict out of our own politics. The passions and intrigues of certain active groups and combinations of men amongst us who were born under foreign flags injected the poison of disloyalty into our own most critical affairs, laid violent hands upon many of our industries, and subjected us to the shame of divisions of sentiment and purpose in which America was contemned and forgotten. It is part of the business of this year of reckoning and settlement to speak plainly and act with unmistakable purpose in rebuke of these things, in order that they may be forever hereafter impossible. I am the candidate of a party, but I am above all things else an American citizen. I neither seek the favour nor fear the displeasure of that small alien element amongst us which puts loyalty to any foreign power before loyalty to the United States.

"While Europe was at war our own continent, one of our own neighbors, was shaken by revolution. In that matter, too, principle was plain and it was imperative that we should live up to it if we were to deserve the trust of any real partisan of the right as free men see it. We have professed to believe, and we do believe, that the people of small and weak states have the right to expect to be dealt with exactly as the people of big and powerful states would be. We have acted upon that principle in dealing with the people of Mexico

In Mexican Territory.

"Our recent pursuit of bandits into Mexican territory was no violation of that principle. We ventured to enter Mexican territory only because there were no military forces in Mexico that could protect our border from hostile attack and our own people from violence, and we have committed there no single act of hostility or interference even with the sovereign authority of the Republic of Mexico herself. It was a plain case of the violation of our own sovereignty which could not wait to be vindicated by damages and for which there was no other remedy. The authorities of Mexico were powerless to prevent it.

"Many serious wrongs against the property, many irreparable wrongs against the persons, of Americans have been committed within the territory of Mexico herself during this confused revolution, wrongs which could not be effectually checked so long as there was no constituted power in Mexico which was in a position to check them. We could not act directly in that matter ourselves without denying Mexicans the right to any revolution at all which disturbed us and making the emancipation of her own people await our own interest and convenience.

"For it is their emancipation that they are seeking—blindly, it may be, and as yet ineffectually, but with profound and passionate purpose and within their unquestionable right, apply what true American principle you will—any principle that an American would publicly avow. The people of Mexico have not been suffered to own their own country or direct their own institutions. Outsiders, men out of other nations and with interests too often alien to their own, have dictated what their privileges and opportunities should be and who should control their land, their lives, and their resources—some of them Americans, pressing for things they could never have got in their own country. The Mexican people are entitled to attempt their liberty from such influences; and so long as I have anything to do with the action of our great government I shall do everything in my power to prevent anyone standing in their way. I know that this is hard for some persons to understand; but it is not hard for the plain people of the United States to understand. It is hard doctrine only for those who wish to get something for themselves out of Mexico. There are men, and noble women, too, not a few, of our own people, thank God! whose fortunes are invested in great property in Mexico who yet see the case with true vision and assess its issues with true American feeling. The rest can be left for the present out of the reckoning until this enslaved people has had its day of struggle towards the light. I have heard no one who was free from such influences propose interference by the United States with the internal affairs of Mexico. Certainly no friend of the Mexican people has proposed it.

In Spirit of the People.

"The people of the United States are capable of great sympathies and a noble pity in dealing with problems of this kind. As their spokesman and representative, I have tried to act in the spirit they would wish me show. The people of Mexico are striving for the rights that are fundamental to life and happiness—fifteen million oppressed men, overburdened women and pitiful children in virtual bondage in their own home of fertile lands and inexhaustible treasure! Some of the leaders of the revolution may often have been mistaken and violent and selfish, but the revolution itself was inevitable and is right. The unspeakable Huerta betrayed the very comrades he served, traitorously overthrew the government of which he was a trusted part, impudently spoke for the very forces that had driven his people to the rebellion with which he had pretended to sympathize. The men who overcame him and drove him out represent at least the fierce passion of reconstruction which lies at the very heart of liberty; and so long as they represent, however imperfectly, such a struggle for deliverance, I am ready to serve their ends when I can. So long as the power of recognition rests with me the government of the United States will refuse to extend the hand of welcome to any one who obtains power in a sister republic by treachery and violence. No permanency can be given the affairs of any republic by a title based upon intrigue and assassination. I declared that to be the policy of this administration within three weeks after I assumed the presidency. I here again vow it. I am more interested in the fortunes of oppressed men and pitiful women and children than in any property rights whatever. Mistakes I have no doubt made in this perplexing business, but not in purpose or object.

"More is involved than the immediate destinies of Mexico and the relations of the United States with a distressed and distracted people. All America looks on.

Test of Liberty.

"Test is now being made of us whether we be sincere lovers of popular liberty or not and are indeed to be trusted to respect national sovereignty among our weaker neighbors. We have undertaken these many years to play big brother to the republics of this hemisphere. This is the day of our test whether we mean, or have ever meant, to play that part for our own benefit wholly or also for theirs. Upon the outcome of that test (its outcome in the minds, not in ours) depends every relationship of the United States with Latin America, whether in politics or in commerce and enterprise. These are great issues and lie at the heart of the gravest tasks of the future, tasks both economic and political and very intimately inwrought with many of the most vital of the new issues of the politics of the world. The republics of America have in the last three years been drawing together in a new spirit of accommodation, mutual understanding and cordial co-operation. Much of the politics of the world in the years to come will depend upon their relationships with one another. It is a barren and provincial statesmanship that loses sight of such things!

Exacting Problems Near.

"The future, the immediate future will bring us squarely face to face with many great and exacting problems which will search us through and through whether we be able and ready to play the part in the world that we mean to play. It will not bring us into their presence slowly, gently, with ceremonious introduction, but suddenly and at once, the moment the war in Europe is over. They will be new problems, most of them; many will be old problems in a new setting and with new elements which we have never dealt with or reckoned the force and meaning of before. They will require for their solution new thinking, fresh courage and resourcefulness and in some matters radical reconsiderations of policy. We must be ready to mobilize our resources alike of brains and of materials.

"It is not a future to be afraid of. It is, rather, a future to stimulate and excite us to the display of the best powers that are in us. We may enter it with confidence when we are sure that we understand it—and we have provided ourselves already with the means of understanding it.

"Look first at what it will be necessary that the nations of the world should do to make the days to come tolerable and fit to live and work in; and then look at our part in what is to follow and our own duty of preparation. For we must be prepared both in resources and in policy.

Must Strive for Peace.

"There must be a just and settled peace, and we here in America must contribute the full force of our enthusiasm and of our authority as a nation to the organization of that peace upon world-wide foundations that cannot easily be shaken. No nation should be forced to take sides in any quarrel in which its own honor and integrity and the fortunes of its own people are not involved; but no nation can any longer remain neutral as against any wilful disturbance of the peace of the world. The effects of war can no longer be confined to the areas of battle. No nation stands wholly apart in interest when the life and interests of all nations are thrown into confusion and peril. If hopeful and generous enterprise is to be renewed, if the healing and helpful arts of life are indeed to be revived when peace comes again, a new atmosphere of justice and friendship must be generated by means the world has never tried before. The nations of the world must unite in joint guarantees that whatever is done to disturb the whole world's life must first be tested in the court of the whole world's opinion before it is attempted.

The New Foundations.

"These are the new foundations the world must build for itself, and we must play our part in the reconstruction, generously and without too much thought of our separate interests. We must make ourselves ready to play it intelligently, vigorously and well.

"One of the contributions we must make to the world's peace is this: We must see to it that the people in our insular possessions are treated in their own lands as we would treat them here, and make the rule of the United States mean the same thing everywhere—the same justice, the same consideration for the essential rights of men.

"Besides contributing our ungrudging moral and practical support to the establishment of peace through the world, we must actively and intelligently prepare ourselves to do our full service in the trade and industry which are to sustain and develop the life of the nations in the day to come.

"We have already been provident in this great matter and supplied ourselves with the instrumentalities of prompt adjustment. We have created, in the federal trade commission, a means of inquiry and of accommodation in the field of commerce which ought both to co-ordinate the enterprises of our traders and manufacturers and to remove the barriers of misunderstanding and of a too technical interpretation of the law. In the new tariff commission we have added another instrumentality of observation and adjustment which promises to be immediately serviceable. The trade commission substitutes counsel and accommodation for the harsher processes of legal restraint, and the tariff commission ought to substitute facts for prejudices and theories. Our exporters have for some time had the advantage of working in the new light thrown upon foreign markets and opportunities of trade by the intelligent inquiries and activities of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce which the democratic congress so wisely created in 1912. The tariff commission completes the machinery by which we shall be enabled to open up our legislative policy to the facts as they develop.

Leading Part in World's Drama

"We can no longer indulge our traditional provincialism. We are to play a leading part in the world drama, whether we wish it or not. We shall lend, not borrow; act for ourselves, not imitate or follow; organize and initiate, not peep about merely to see where we may get in.

"We have already formulated and agreed upon a policy of law which will explicitly remove the ban now supposed to rest upon co-operation amongst our exporters in seeking and securing their proper place in the markets of the world. The field will be free, the instrumentalities at hand. It will only remain for the masters of enterprise amongst us to act in energetic concert, and for the government of the United States to insist upon the maintenance throughout the world of those conditions of fairness and of even-handed justice in the commercial dealings of the nations with one another upon which, after all, in the last analysis, the peace and ordered life of the world must ultimately depend.

At home also we must see to it that the men who plan and develop and direct our business enterprises shall enjoy definite and settled conditions of law, a policy accommodated to the freest progress. We have set the just and necessary limits. We have put all kinds of unfair competition under the ban and penalty of the law. We have barred monopoly. These fatal and ugly things being excluded, we must now quicken action and facilitate enterprise by every just means within our choice. There will be peace in the business world and, with peace, revived confidence and life.

Natural Resources.

We ought both to husband and to develop our natural resources, our mines, our forests, our water power. I wish we could have made more progress than we have made in this vital matter; and I call once more, with the deepest earnestness and solicitude, upon the advocates of a careful and provident conservation, on the one hand, and the advocates of a free and inviting field for private capital, on the other, to get together in a spirit of genuine accommodation and agreement and set this great policy forward at once.

We must hearten and quicken the spirit and efficiency of labor throughout our whole industrial system by everywhere and in all occupations doing justice to the laborer, not only by paying a living wage but also by making all the conditions that surround labor what they ought to be. And we must do more than justice. We must safeguard life and promote health and safety in every occupation in which they are threatened or imperilled. That is more than justice, and better, because it is humanity and economy.

"We must coordinate the railway systems of the country for national use, and must facilitate and promote their development with a view to that coordination and to their better adaptation as a whole to the life and trade and defense of the nation. The life and industry of the country can be free and unhampered only if these arteries are open, efficient and complete.

"Thus shall we stand ready to meet the future as circumstance and international policy effect their unfolding, whether the changes come slowly or come fast and without preface.

"I have not spoken explicity, Gentlemen, of the platform adopted at St. Louis; but it has been implicit in all that I have said. I have sought to interpret its spirit and meaning. The people of the United States do not need to be assured now that that platform is a definite pledge, a practical program. We have proved to them that our promises are made to be kept.

Definite Ideals.

"We hold very definite ideals. We believe that the energy and initiative of our people have been too narrowly coached and superintended; that they should be set free, as we have set them free, to disperse themselves throughout the nation; that they should not be concentrated in the hands of a few powerful guides and guardians, as our opponents have again and again, in effect if not in purpose, sought to concentrate them. We believe, moreover,—who that looks about him now with comprehending eye can fail to believe?—that the day of Little Americanism, with its narrow horizons, when methods of 'protection' and industrial nursing were the chief study of our provincial statesmen, is past and gone and that a day of enterprise has at last dawned for the United States, whose field is the wide world.

"We hope to see the stimulus of that new day draw all America, the republics of both continents, on to a new life and energy and initiative in the great affairs of peace. We are Americans for Big America, and rejoice to look forward to the days in which America shall strive to stir the world without irritating it or drawing it on to new antagonisms, when the nations with which we deal shall at last come to see upon what deep foundations of humanity and justice our passion for peace rests, and when all mankind shall look upon our great people with a new sentiment of admiration, friendly rivalry and real affection, as upon a people who, though keen to succeed, seeks always to be at once generous and just and to whom humanity is dearer than profit or selfish power.

"Upon this record and in the faith of this purpose we go to the country."

HE WAS WORRIED AND HOPELESS.

"For ten or twelve years I was bothered with bad kidney trouble," writes T. F. Hutchinson, Little Rock, Ark. "I tried many remedies and doctors, but grew worse all the time. I was worried and had almost given up all hopes. I tried Foley Kidney Pills and they helped me a lot. I have since used five boxes and am now a well man." BASEBALL ATHLETICS

FOURTH OF SERIES TO BE PLAYED SUNDAY

Payne is Coming With Everything to Take Fall Out of Clearyites.

League park Sunday is to be the scene of one of the best ball games ever seen in the city. Payne needs no second introduction to the fans of Fort Wayne after the grand cleaning they administered to the Clearyites. The Clearyites are out for blood and when Payne steps out on the field they will know who and what they are playing a baseball team crowded with stars. This game Sunday will be the fourth of the five series, of which three have been played, the Ohio town having taken two.

Many rooters are coming from Payne and also from New Haven. Those from New Haven are coming to see Heine and Hargrave in action. Both of these boys are from the village.

The biggest game in importance is the Giants-Fort Wayne tilt on Labor day. The managers of the Fort Wayne Giants have spared not a little coin to get together a team that can clean the Clearyites and have secured Harrison, Carr, Bady and Simmons, four of the fastest players on the Lima Colored Giants. The following lineup is for Sunday:

COBB MAKES BIG SPURT AND GAINS ON SPEAKER

Georgia Peach is Working Hard for the Leadership of League.

Chicago, Sept. 2.—Ty Cobb is making a gallant spurt to win the year's batting championship in the American league. Averages printed here today show the Detroit player has increased his percentage by five points while Speaker, still leading the league, lost nine in the last week, so that Cobb is now only nine points behind. Cobb has taken the lead in runs scored with 88 and holds the base stealing lead with 48. Jackson is in front in total bases with 243; Weaver, Chicago, and Chapman, Cleveland, in sacrifice hits with 34 each; Pipp, New York, in home runs with nine, and Detroit in team hitting with .260. The leading batters:

DARK HORSE MAY WIN THE PLUM

Newcomers Feared in National Amateur Golf Tourney; "Chick" Evans Picked by Many to Equal Ball's Feat.

(By Harold Johnson.)

Fore! America's greatest golfers are at the tee. Before another week-end the links may boast of a new national amateur champion.

Starting Labor day on the course of the Merion Cricket club at Philadelphia, 155 players will strive for the title captured at Detroit last summer by Robert Gardner, of Hinsdale. Missing only from the list of topliners are the names of Jerry Travers, Francis Ouimet, Walter J. Travis, C. B. McDonald, Findley S. Douglas and H. Chandler Egan.

Every section of the country is represented in the gala event of the golfing season and dark horses in droves are slated to struggle for the laurels which many wise students of the ancient Scottish game predict will go to Charles (Chick) Evans, Jr., of Edgewater, Chicago, present open champion, and considered by many the greatest all around golfer in the United States.

But a dark horse may spill the dope again. Two of the most prominent entrants to oppose Evans are Oswald Kirkby and Phil Carter. Kirkby has already won two important titles this year in the New Jersey and the Metropolitan championships. He is playing his best game this year. Like Evans he never has been able to win the national crown, but his time, too, must be near at hand.

One must not overlook such good golfers as John G. Anderson, always a dangerous opponent; Henry J. Topping, who is at the top of his form this year; Reginald Lewis, Gardiner White and Max Marston. The latter, however, has not been playing in the form that he displayed last year when he missed a short putt to eliminate Gardner in the semi-finals.

Sawyer is one of the main western hopes. Next to Evans and Gardner he is the strongest entry from that section—a trifle stronger, even, than James D. Standish, of Detroit, who is now playing well. Sawyer is likely to beat a star even if the said star is playing his head off.

Should Evans add the national amateur championship to his open title annexed at Minneapolis, he will have done something that only one other man in the history of golf has ever accomplished before. The honor fell to John Ball, of England, about twenty years ago.

SPORT DOPE

Pennant races are becoming so close that a team can go to sleep in fourth place in the American league and wake up leading the Kitty circuit.

The Albany, N. Y., magnates attempted to introduce jitney baseball but the proposition fell flat. The natives balked on an increase in prices.

Groundkeepers around the National league circuit say they have a tough time keeping grass from growing on the base lines since Larry Cheney returned from the fountain of youth.

Mebbe it's a good thing for Jess Willard that the heavyweight division is one class he can't outgrow.

Connie Mack has secured eight men from the bush circuits. Our colleges seem to be going back in the matter of turning out ball players.

DRIVING CLUB TO HAVE GOOD PROGRAM MONDAY

Club Arranges for a Three Heat Program With Many Fast Ones.

The Fort Wayne Amateur Driving club is planning a fine card for Labor day and will furnish the horse fans with some good racing at Centlivre park. The organization is a member of the American Trotting association. In the 2:25 trot the Pledge, 2:26½, is entered by Charles Ahr. The horse is one of the fastest of the lot and will be stepping off the mile in rather fast time. Another fast one is Ethel Coastman, 2:17½. Dr. Brudi is the owner of the horse. R. J. Elliston will drive the horse. The whole program is a star bill and the fans if they are lovers of horse flesh better go and see the stars perform. The events are as follows:

First race, 2:25 trot—The Pledge, b s, 2:26¼, by Exponent. Owner, Chas. Ahr. Driver, Ahr.

Portia Monbar, b m, 2:29¼, by Monbar. Owner, A. J. Compton. Driver, H. Van Alstine.

CHAMPION ON EDGE.

White Develops New Attack to Use for Labor Day.

Colorado Springs, Col., Sept. 2.—With the twenty-round lightweight champion battle between Freddie Welsh and Charlie White but three days away and both principals already trained to a fighting edge, the men today began a tapering off process. Work will be lightened, rough boxing bouts will be eliminated from the daily program and only light sparring exhibitions indulged in.

Welsh, who has worked steadily now at a hard clip for a longer period than at any time since he won the championship, appears to be in great condition. Some experts have wondered whether he has not trained too fine, but his managers and members of his camp scoff at this.

A slight irritation of White's disposition shows that the challenger is on edge. White has apparently abandoned the idea that he can knock out Freddie with his famous left hook, and is developing a new offensive for the battle, using a right swing for his heavy artillery.

The final touches were put on the arena Saturday and a heavy canvas cover will be placed over the ring Sunday in order to avert possible storm damage.

The local sale of tickets continues heavy but there has been some falling off in the out-of-town demand, due to fears of a railroad strike.

Baltimore Hammer Expected to Take the Crown from Feather King.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 2.—"I would not take $50,000 for my chances to defeat Johnny Kilbane," said George Chaney Friday. His statement reflected the attitude of his friends, who are fairly overflowing with confidence that the Baltimorean stands a 50-50 chance to knock out Kilbane when he meets him at Cedar Point next Monday afternoon.

In other fighting circles, however, there is a decided difference of opinion. Kilbane is a reigning favorite. Though very little Chaney money is in sight, the latest odds are 10 to 6, with Kilbane on the heavy end.

Both Kilbane and Chaney virtually finished hard training Thursday. Friday they indulged in light sparring and exercising. Both are tipping the scale at 122½ and apparently are in perfect condition.

SANDUSKY GETTING READY.

Sandusky, O., Sept. 2.—Hotel keepers and restaurants are stocking up. The natural inference would be that they are preparing to meet any emergency that may arise as a result of the threatened railway strike, but this is not the case. They are getting ready to feed the thousands that are expected to pass this way, commencing Saturday, to the Johnny Kilbane-George Chaney world's championship glove contest at Cedar Point Monday afternoon.

SEMI-FINALS OF THE TOURNEY SATURDAY

Semi-Finals in Both Singles and Doubles Have Been Reached.

Saturday afternoon the semi-finalists will be playing their matches and incidentally trying to become a finalist. The matches in the singles should prove the best in the city tournament. Dr. Miles F. Porter, jr., is slated to meet Murdock Mulholland in one of the matches at the Country club. Dr. Porter is the city champion at the present time and is playing better tennis than he played last year. The champion will find Mulholland a hard proposition to tackle for the high school star has been burning up the courts this summer. Mulholland became a semi-finalist when he took Walter Berghoff into camp in straight sets, 6-2 and 6-4.

The other match in the tourney play will be the Stephens-Burton match. Burton was the runner-up in the city tournament last year and played a fine game. Earlier this season he was eliminated from the northern Indiana tennis tournament by Daniel Kiefer, the runner-up in the tourney. Burton is playing a fine placing game this year.

Dark horses are known facts in every tournament due to neglect or oversight. This tournament is inhabited by one of the said species and he goes under the name of Stephens. The youngster is fine and pulled the big surprise and defeated Arthur Parry in 6-4, 4-6, 6-2. The boy will give Burton one grand fight for honors and will be heard from before many years roll by.

The doubles have reached the semi-final stage and are stepping forward with bright lights glowing from all the matches. Popp-Plogsterth, the high school marvels, and Bailhe-O'Rourke combination hook up for one of the matches. Both teams are equally matched. Popp-Plogsterth are there and should give a good account of themselves. The Bailhe-O'Rourke pair are not far behind.

Another match that will attract attention is the Burton-Mulholland and Porter-Parry pairing. Here it is again with youth pitted against experienced players. The Porter-Parry combination is one of the best in the city and should Burton-Mulholland pull a win they will boost their stock up to the skies.

Dispatches from the east indicate that Smoky Joe Wood is still doing his spring training.

One Minute Talks with Ballplayers

"BUCK" WHEAT, BROOKLYN DODGERS.

"I would warn the ball player, and particularly the young boy, to eliminate the use of bandages. The second year I was in the National league I injured both my ankles in sliding to first in a game in Philadelphia. In a week I was able to play again with my ankles well bandaged, but they were not strong.

"They failed to gain strength as the season progressed and I feared that I might have to quit baseball, as I could see that I was slowing down and had the greatest difficulty in stretching my drives.

"Finally I took a tip from Joe Tinker and removed the bandages. In three days my ankles regained their normal strength and in a week my speed was as great as ever."

CLAUDE WILLIAMS, CHICAGO WHITE SOX.

"The boy who enters baseball will never be a success until he takes the profession seriously. I learned my lesson two years ago when I had my first chance in the majors. I had always regarded baseball as a game just for fun but Manager Jennings, of the Detroit Tigers, soon showed me the error of my way by shipping me to the Salt Lake club of the Pacific coast. Once in the minors I got wise to myself and determined to regain a big league job.

"I started in baseball as a pitcher for the school team at Springfield, Mo., and though I was only a kid I was a pretty successful southpaw. Now that I am back in the majors I'm certainly going to work my head off to remain here."

"OLD HOME WK" EDDYTORIUL

Tother evg as we set down in Hen Weathersbys store indulging in soshial intercourse with several of our most respeckted cittizens of Bingville who had collecktred there for the same purpose Deason Butterworth spoke up and desired to know why it wouldnt be a blamed good idee for Bingville to have a "Old Home Week?"

The Deacon said he had saw by the papers where other towns here and there had helt or was a going to hold in the near fuchure old home wks and he diddent see why in Sam Hill Bingville couldnt do the same.

The Deacons sujjestshion recd the hearty indorsement of everybuddy present inclooding ourself. Altho the sujjestshion diddent come from us nevertheless we be turrible in faver of it. Far be it from us to take sides aginst a good sujjestshion simply becuz we diddent happen to think of it 1st. We are more broad mindeder and magnanimousern that if we do haft to say it ourself.

A "Old Home Wk" as everybuddy who has enny sents ort to know is a occashion got up to bring the former residents who onct lived in a town & has drifted away to parts unknowd back to spend a wk with their former relertives friends & nabers in order to commingle & vissit and also to behold what changes has tuk place in our midst sinst they puld up stakes and left yrs ago. Thats what "Old Home Wk" is for.

In other words Bingville would set aside a hole wk during whitch bizness would be almost at a standstill probly being as everybuddy would be engaged in entertaining them as used to live here & throwing open their doors in horspitalitty to old time Bingvilleites who left here lo these menny yrs ago and went out into the crool world to seek their forchunes.

We have talked to several of our foremost cittizens in a effort to git them to take holt of this "Old Home Wk" idee and boost it for all its worth. Some to who we have talked seem in faver of it and others vice versy.

Lem Higgins, for instants, was aginst it. Lem said the principal of the things was allright generally speakin, but there was one person hed hate like everythink to see come back to Bingville for "Old Home Wk" and that was Jabe Harkness who left these diggins for Iowy 10 yrs ago and to who Lem owes $12.50. Lem says Iowy is a good place for Jabe & he hopes hell deside to remain there indefynite & not return for old home wk.

As soon as our town selecktmen has desided on what wk "Old Home Wk" will be held (whitch will probly be during September) they say they are agoing to send out invites by letter to former residents of Bingville who used to live here but who have went away yrs ago & have become famous.

There was Rufus Miller who was borned in Bingville. Rufus was a turrible genius and was allus workin at some invenshion or other inclooding perpetchool moshion. Rufus invented a masheen whitch would buzz like everythink for a couple of hours perpetchool and then it would peter out. Rufus left Bingville when he was in his prime & aint been heerd of sinst. The chanses is that he has sinst then invented meeny boons to humanitty and is a famous man and its too bad nobuddy knows his present address becuz he would be a great card for "Old Home Wk."

As for Jim Snifkins who used to live in Bingville we trust he wont come back here for "Old Home Wk," becuz his presents on this gladsome occashion wouldnt refleckt enny credit on the town. Jim has became famous, but its a kind of fame the least said about the better. We heerd only recent that Jim had jest been dishonorably discharged from jail for forging a chk and it will be jest as well if he dont put in a appearants during "Old Home Wk" in Bingville.

In conclooshion let everybuddy put his (or her) shoulder to the wheel and do everything possibil to make "Old Home Wk" in Bingville a big sucksess.

Widow Jones who is a awful hand for beet greens had a mess of same for her dinner last Sunday of whitch the Widow partuk with great gusto & aint been well sinst. She thinks she over et of the greens. The chances is she is right about this.

Jabe Homans our oldest inhabitant has a birthday next wk on Thursday. Jabe says hell be switched if he can recolleckt whether hell be 89 or 90 yrs old on that date being as its been so long sinst he was borned he cant exactly recall the exackt yr it tuk place altho he was present at the time.

Jake Haines had a steer to fall into his stone quarry tother night and kill itself, so Jake dressed off the steer and sold it for beef. Its quite a treat to git fresh meat this time of yr.

Miss Susan Beebe made a trip to the co seat last wk with butter & eggs and also purchased a new bonnet.

It is right down warm wether in our midst for this time of yr and we could stand it a leetle mite cooler without enny inconvenients.

Sossiety News

The "Bizzy Bee Sowing Sirkle" of Bingville met at the home of Mrs. Ame Hilyer last Wensday afternon and Mrs. Ame supplide each gest with enuff sowing to keep all very bizzy from 1 p. m. until it was time for them to hurry home in order to git suppers for their various husbands before dark. There is a good eal of crittycism on the part of them present becuz Mrs. Hillyer diddent serve ennythink to ete. Most of them present et light at noon expeckting Mrs. Hillyer would serve lunch but she diddent. We persoom Mrs. Hillyer thort it would be more profittable to keep her gests bizzy sowing for her instid of wasting time eating.

Every Satterday evg for quite a spell back Enos Beebe has drest up in his Sunday best, hitch up his horse to his new buggy and driv down Snake Beild way. We understand Enos is keeping company with Miss Elsie Winslow, Sam Winslows darter and we wouldnt be a bit surprised if they would make a match of it.

Miss Amelia Tucker Bingvilles raining sossiety queen and leader of our soshial whirl says she wont take part in enny soshial events to speek of until the wether gits cooler. Meanwhile Miss Amelia will rest up for the coming winters soshial festyvities whitch she says will be very numerus in our midst.

These is all the sossiety news we can think of at this time. If you happen to think of enny more kindly bring em to this offis and we will print them next wk.

DO it NOW!

Did it ever ockur to you gentil reader how awful menny things the Bingville Bugle is good for? In the first place it's good to read—it gives you all the news of Bingville & surrounding country and keeps you posted up on coming events & past ockurrences.

Then it is also good to advertise in inclooding what you want to buy or what you've got to sell. Then it cant be beat for spreading on cupboard shelves or laying under carpets whilst in a pinch you can wrap things up in it and build fires with it.

In other words subscribe for the Bugle at onct, paying cash strickly in advance. Do it now.

HEN Very Liberal

Hen Weathersby, prop of our general store, was siezed with a liberal streek tother night down to the store when he brung out a box full of seegars and passed em around amungs everybuddy in the store who each tuk one.

The seegars looked allright, but it seems that Hen has had em on hand for quite a spell and the moths or somethink had got into em, so Hen thort he would git shet of em and also git credit for being generus.

Bingvilles most respeckted cittizens who was in the store at the time couldnt understand why Hen should give them seegars so free that ort to sell for at least 5 cts each being as Hen is as tite as the bark to a tree, but they thankd him very perfuse for his liberality until they lit the seegars when one and all started to sneeze and choke and sputter.

Ike Skillings and Snide Petersby who aint very used to smokin seegars begin to git sort of white around the gills after they had smoked a few puffs, then they excoosed theirselfs and left the store and was sickern a cupple of dogs and could skeercely navvygate home.

One by one the fellers to who Hen had donated the seegars left the store lookin pale and dispersd to their various homes until only Hen was left behint. Hen diddent smoke one of em, but the very oder of same nossyated him so he shut up the store and went home in disgust.

Them to who Hen give seegars is purty mad and it looks like as if Hen had lost considerable custom by his liberalitty.

Lokal Breeflets

How do you like "Lokal Breeflets" for a change instid of "Lokal Items" or "Lokal Squibs" hey? As Editor of the Buggle we like it 1st rate whether you do or not.

The wether in Bingville as we go to press is very hot & sticky & muggy & also inervating as we might say. As a result bizness is almost at a standstill espeshially during the heat of the day. Yesterday for instants all we seen when we paused in our tracks and lookd up and down Main st about the noon hour was a hound dog and he was asleep in the shade.

Not only that but everythink is hummd up and stuck tite this dogday wether. Doors that had cracks all around em to let in the bitter blasts of winter last winter wont shet now and buro drawers wont come open without busting the buros. We persoom we voice the general sentiment of the commoonitty when we say that everybuddy will welcome the arrival of September with loud acklaim.

Hoke Peterson from Sorrow Hollow brung 5 lbs of butter to Hen Wethersbys store to exchange for mdse, but when Hoke opend up the basket to let Hen weigh the butter he found it had all trickeld outen the basket & run away owing to the hot wether. Hoke walked back home in deep disgust and when last heerd of at the lower end of town was still swearin like a pyerate.

Last Sunday at church Deacon Osgood who sets in the Amen corner went to sleep settin in a draft from the winder and when he woked up at the end of the service his neck was so stiff that he couldn't turn his head around without excrooshiating pain.

Brad Hinsley woked up Doc Livermore our veternary & huming speshialist tother night about midnight outen a sound sleep and told him to come quick being as Alice was awful sick. Doc he hurried & drest and when he arrove at Brads house Brad lit the lantern and started tords the barn telling Doc to foller being as Alice was in the stable. Doc wondered how it come that Brads wife tuk sick in the stable until he found that "Alice" was the name of Brads brood mare and not his wife.

Hen Smiley one of Bingvilles most respeckted cittizens tuk off his boots last wk and is going in his bare feet. Hen says its a turrible releef to his feet to go with em bare this hot wether. Yes, it may be a releef, but we should think a growd up man would be ashamed to go traipsin around town in his bare feet.

Bill Hepburn our artistick blacksmith diddent go to the co seat and git full last Satterday as ushual. Bill had a qt of rum left over and hid away from his debotch the wk before so instid of going to the co seat and gettin full Bill stayd at home and done the work. He made a purty good job of it too accordink to all accts.

Personal Mention

Little Jimmie Tucker while swimming with some other boys in the swimmin hole in Snake Crick back of town had a mud turtle or somethink to grab him by the toe while he was in the worter. Jimmy hollerd and skreemed and the turtle let go but his toe bled like everythink. Sinst then the swimmin hole aint been very poplar among the boys.

Tother day when Sairy Ann Gummidge went to Hen Weathersby's store in a hurry to git some spice for putting up pickels she found the store locked up and went to Hen's residence but Hen wassent there and Mrs. Weathersby said she diddent know where he was. The mistery was cleard up a hour or two later when Hen opened up the store from the inside. He had been takin a nap for a hour or two on the counter inside and diddent want to be pesterd by custummers whilst he was asleep.

DONT BE STUK UP

As you all know I'me a 1st class carpenter and being as Ime the only person of this descripshion in Bingville I aint got no competishion & Ime glad of it.

Well, Ive heerd a good menny complaints from my nabers & others during the past cupple of wks. or sinst Dog Days begin to the effeckt they cant git their doors open or shet or that the drawers in their buros or elsewhere is sweld to sitch a extent that they be stuk fast and cant be opend to save their necks and when they do git em open they cant git em shet.

Whilst I was a thinking about this perdickement whitch has happend to so menny in our midst I happend to think "Why couldnt I make a extry doller doctering folkses doors, buro drawers et cettery?"

Spose you want to git somethink outen your buro like a change of underwear for instants or some cleen sheets for the bed or a pr. of socks are you a going to set down and wait until Dog Days is over sometime next munth? No—1000 times, No! Call on me and I will come hot foot with my carpenter tools and either open that buro drawer or bust it into kindling wood! Thats the kind of a carpenter I am. Is your doors sweld so they wont shet? Call on me and I will make your doors shet or pull em offen their hinges in the a tempt. All kinds of stuk jobs like this solisited. He do the work in a bizness like & workmanship manner and charge you according to how big a job it is.

If you dont find me at home, you'll find me at my carpenter shop or somewheres else if you hunt hard enuff.

Don't be stuk up!

Considers Her Cure Remarkable.

June 25.—"For almost six months I suffered from a severe case of skin trouble on my leg between the ankle and knee. It began by swelling, with severe pains day and night, followed by constant itching. My leg then became inflamed, and later water blisters and pimply sores broke out on it. At this time my leg was at least one-third above its normal size, and the continual itching and burning sensation was something terrible. I applied many remedies, but gained no relief until I commenced using Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap, from which I obtained relief by the first application. After a continued use of Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap the swelling was reduced, the itching and burning were entirely relieved and a complete cure was effected, having used only three jars of Resinol Ointment and two cakes of Resinol Soap. My trouble sure was serious, and I consider the cure remarkable."
(Signed) Mrs. H. W. Neefus, 825 Pearson St., Greensboro, N. C.

All druggists sell Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap. For samples, free, write to Dept. 4-S, Resinol, Baltimore.—Advertisement.

A few days ago Harry Metcalf, of Westminister, Vt., found on opening a bale of hay two black snakes, one four feet, the other three feet in length. Mr. Metcalf thought the snakes dead, but the fresh air soon revived them.

SMOKES FEWER CIGARS; BUYS BABY BONDS

"I got the habit of smoking too many high-priced cigars," said a local business man, "and I decided that if I cut part of them out and invested their cost in a good security that I would be considerably ahead in the course of a year." The cigar bill was thereupon cut in two and the savings were used to purchase Baby Bonds. Baby Bonds come in $10.00 denominations, bear six per cent. interest, and are secured by first mortgages on local real estate. There are also similar bonds of $500.00, which are secured in the same manner, and bear the same rate of interest. For details regarding either see the Wildwood Sales company, Shoaff building.—Advertisement.

BUSINESS COLLEGE OPENS NEXT WEEK

Tuesday, September 5, is the opening date of the International Business college and will mark the beginning of the twenty-eighth year of the Fort Wayne institution. The night school will open the following week on Monday, September 11.

The college will begin this year's work in its new home on West Jefferson street just one-half square from Calhoun street. There are twenty rooms equipped and lighted and ventilated to the best of modern standards.

Officials of the schoo1 are expecting an enrollment of nearly 300 students this term. The year promises to be the greatest in the history of the "International."

INSTITUE CLOSES.

County Superintendent Well Pleased With Results of Meeting.

The Allen county teachers' institute closed Friday afternoon with addresses by Dr. Carolyn E. Geisel, of Battle Creek, Mich., and Dr. A. T. Smith, of the Thomas Normal Training school, Detroit. D. O. McComb, county school superintendent, expressed himself as well pleased with the results of the institute.

Demonstration of Prof. C. L. Rogers, in penmanship, which was given Friday afternoon, included "Dancing Figures." With the use of the grafonola Prof. Rogers developed the forms of all figures, putting them into the rhythm and time of the instrument.

State Librarian H. E. Dunnack, of Maine, has begun the preparation of a "traveling library" of some 200 volumes, which he has tendered to Colonel Hume, of the Second Maine Infantry, for the use of his men at Laredo, Texas.

IRISH POTATOES ON A RECORD HIGH JUMP

Spuds Are Retailing for $2.00 a Bushel in Fort Wayne.

Irish potatoes, familiarly known as "spuds," who have won fame within the past few months as a high jumper, swung into the limelight Saturday morning when he established a record high jump and cleared the pole at the $2 mark.

Nearly every dealer in the city has advanced the retail price to $2 a bushel, with a possible chance that the price may even go a trifle higher. The supply is slowly dwindling and getting less every day and it may be such a thing that before the little birdies come flying back north that the price will have gone up to $3.

There was a very large market Saturday morning and buying was lively. The supply was large and as a result prices were very moderate in nearly all things. Spring chickens sold for 60 to 75c apiece. They weighed from two and a half to three and a half pounds.

No startling advances have been made thus far in the fruit markets although reports are to the effect that the supply is to be very limited.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago, Sept. 2.—Indications that the strike settlement soon would be a reality gave a lift to the wheat marke here today. Misgivings of a hitch in congress had virtually disappeared, and there was a noticeable consequent lessening of pressure to sell. Opening prices, which ranged from ⅝c to 2¼c higher, with December at $1.45 to $1.46, and May at $1.47 to $1.48, were followed by moderate gains and then something of a reaction.

Removal of railway embargoes had a bullish effect on corn. After opening unchanged to ⅜c higher, the market sagged a little and then scored gains all around.

Oats hardened in value, with other grains.

New York Grain and Provisions.

New York, Sept. 2.—Flour market was unsettled.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, Sept. 2.—Covering of short contracts, a natural precaution in view of the approaching holidays, comprised the bulk of today's light dealings, the movement being heightened by the encouraging outlook of the railroad controversy. Marines were the chief feature, with the preferred at a new high record. U. S. Steel regained much of yesterday's reversal and rails were higher under lead of Reading and Canadian Pacific. Specialties were rperesented by Kelley-Springfield tire, Lee tire and Studebaker and Coppers, Ptroiums and Amrican zinc preferred also registered material gains. The closing was strong. Bonds were steady.

NEW YORK BANK STATEMENT.

New York, Sept. 2.—The statement of the actual condition of cletaring house banks and trust companies for the week shows that they hold $95,829,140 reserve in excess of legal requirements. This is a decrease of $29,561,220 from last week.

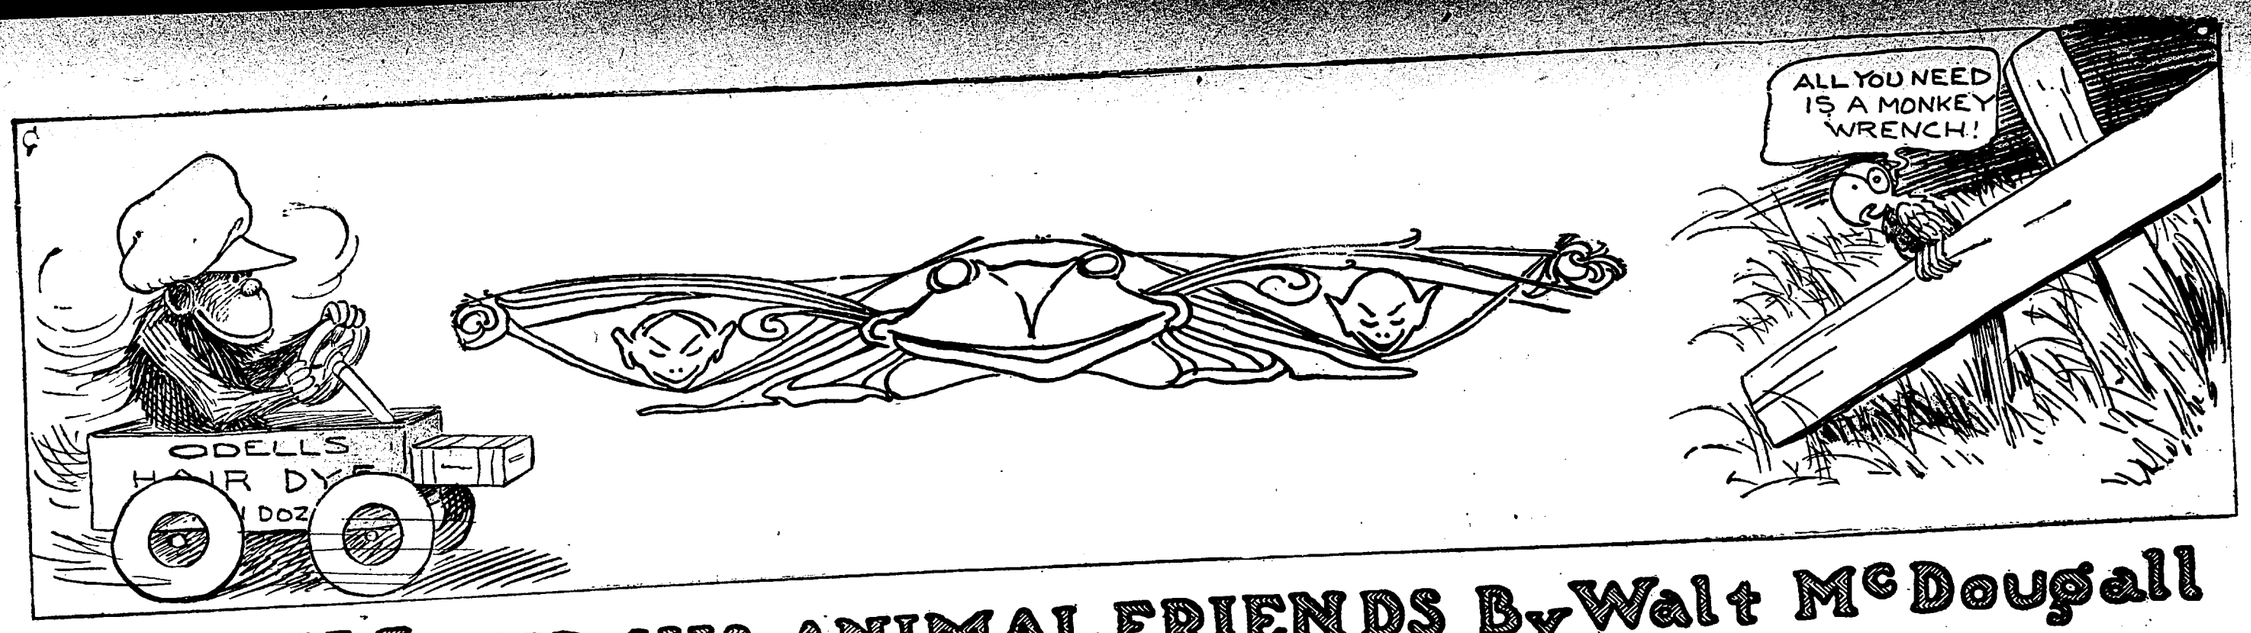
HANK: AND HIS ANIMAL FRIENDS By Walt McDougall



THAT PESKY ELEPHANT IS JUST EATIN' HIS FOOL HEAD OFF. IT KEEPS ME POOR BUYING HAY FOR HIM!
MY WORD! WHY DON'T YOU TURN HIM LOOSE IN THE WOODS, OLD TOP
MY WORD! HANK'S IN LUCK! HERE'S WHERE WE GET RID OF THE OLD PACHYDERM!
I'LL BUY THAT OLD PLUG IF HE'S STEADY AND WELL BROKEN —
THERE GOES A TIRE BY JOVE!
BANG!
I'LL SELL HIM FOR SEVEN DOLLARS CASH!
I'LL GIVE YOU FOUR BONES
THERE THEY GO INTO THE BALLY DITCH!
YE SEE HOW STIDDY HE IS!
WOW!
MY WORD, SHE'S A LITTLE BIT OF ALL RIGHT!
I'LL GIVE YOU TEN DOLLARS IF YOU'LL LET YOUR ELEPHANT HAUL OUR CAR BACK TO BGOSH CENTER
THE BALLY AXLE IS BROKEN: THEY'LL HAVE TO STAY HERE!
THAT CAR IS PAST HAULING ANYWHERE MAAM!
I RECKON I WON'T SELL HIM TODAY!
MY WORD! NO, HE'S TOO USEFUL, OLD TOP!
LISTEN! I HEAR ONE COMING!

Throngs Hear Wilson in Acceptance Speech

UPHOLDS WORK OF HIS PARTY

Enthusiasm Marked Among Ten Thousand Gathered at Shadow Lawn.

Long Branch, N. J., Sept. 2.—President Wilson formally accepted his renomination here this afternoon with an address recounting the legislative record of the democratic party, a vigorous defense of his Mexican policy, his dealings with the European belligerents and an outline of his view of America's obligations for the future.

With the members of the notification committee, headed by Senator James, grouped about him at Shadow Lawn, the Summer white house, the president declared the republican party was "just the party that cannot meet the new conditions of a new age" and that the day of Little Americanism when "methods of 'protection' and industrial nursing were the chief study of our provincial statesmen" was past and gone.

"We can no longer indulge our traditional provincialism," said the president. "We are to play a leading part in the world drama whether we wish it or not. We shall lend, not borrow; act for ourselves, not imitate or follow; organize and initiate, not peep about merely to see where we may get in."

Record Clear and Consistent.

Speaking of his diplomatic negotiatinos with the European belligerents the president followed a declaration that while property rights might be vindicated by claims for damages, the loss of life and the fundamental rights of humanity never could be, with this statement:

"The record is clear and consistent throughout and stands distinct and definite for anyone to judge who wishes to know the truth about it."

Immediately afterward he said:

"I am the candidate of a party, but I am above all things else an American citizen. I neither seek the favor nor fear the displeasure of that small alien element amongst us which puts loyalty to any foreign power before loyalty to the United States."

His Mexican Policy.

Regarding his Mexican policy the president reiterated that the people of Mexico were struggling "blindly it may be—and as yet ineffectually" to free themselves from alien interests "some of them Americans pressing for things they could never have gotten in their own country," and that he would do everything in his power to prevent anyone standing in their way.

"It is hard doctrine," said he, "only for those who wish to get something for themselves out of Mexico." At another point the president said:

"Mistakes I have no doubt made in this perplexing business, but not in purpose or object." He declared at another point:

"I am more interested in the fortunes of oppressed men and pitiful women and children than in any property rights whatever."

Reviews Party Accomplishment.

At the outset of his references to the legislative achievements of his party, the president enumerated the laws placed on the statute books relating to business including tariff revision, anti-trust laws, revision of the banking and currency system, rural credits, rehabilitation of the merchant marine and creation of the federal trade commission.

"What other party has understood the task so well or executed it so intelligently and energetically?" he asked. "What other party has attempted it at all? The republican leaders apparently know of no means of assisting business but protection. How to stimulate it and put it upon a new footing of energy and enterprise they have not suggested."

At the conclusion of his review of the party record the president declared:

"This extraordinary recital must sound like a platform, a list of sanguine promises; but it is not. It is a record of promises made four years ago and now actually redeemed in constructive legislation." Then, later he said: "We have in four years come very near to carrying out the platform of the progressive party as well as our own; for we are also progressives."

The president's address was some five thousand words long, one of the most lengthy he has delivered on any occasion since taking office.

NIEZER NEW MEMBER BOARD OF DIRECTORS

The county commissioners of Allen county have appointed Maurice Niezer as a member of the board of directors of the Anti-Tuberculosis hospital. He will assume his duties at once. He was recommended to the commissioners several weeks ago but the appointment was only made Friday.

Miss Byron, in charge of the anti-tuberculosis work in Fort Wayne, states that the league is planning at the present time to get another wagon to help gather up the waste paper and rags. It has been found that it is impossible for one wagon to do all the gathering.

No selection has been made as yet by the committee appointed to select a site for the open air school. The site that was being considered can not be secured, it is thought.

RAIL LINES LIFTING BAN

Freight Embargo is Removed as Peace Nears in the Railroad Crisis.

Action, Starting in West, is Being Rapidly Followed in the East.

Chicago, Sept. 2.—Railroads of the country abandoned preparations for war today and reverted to those for peace. From all over the country railroad heads announced that embargoes placed on shipments as a war measure were revoked.

In Chicago the usual meeting of railroad presidents was not held. It was assumed that the Adamson bill would pass the senate tonight, that the strike order would be recalled and that trains would run as usual Monday morning, the day set for the walkout.

Orders here today lifted the embargoes on the following roads:

Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, Chicago & Alton, Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, Chicago & Northwestern, Monon, Chicago & Eastern Illinois, Chicago, Great Western and the Illinois Central. The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy revoked its order last night. Western railroad heads said they understood eastern roads would take similar action in the course of the day.

Other railroads are preparing to curtail the restrictions on freight shipments today and officials predicted that practically normal conditions will prevail on all lines within thirty-six hours.

Railroad executives, although expressing the belief that passage of the eight-hour bill by the house of representatives and the prospect of its passage by the senate tonight, had practically removed all danger of a strike at present, announced many desertions from the ranks of the brotherhoods in the middle west and announced they had sufficient men to operate trains on most of the roads in event of a strike.

On several of the big middle western roads, general managers claimed as high as twenty-five per cent of the engineers and conductors have given assurance that they will remain at work even though the strike is put into effect.

HUGHES GETS A WARM WELCOME AT ST. LOUIS

Nominee Addresses Business Men as Wife Receives Suffragists.

St. Louis, Sept. 2.—The republican nominee for president, Charles E. Hughes, and Mrs. Hughes, accompanied by a party of twenty-eight, arrived in St. Louis from Kansas City early today. At the station a large reception committee of republicans, progressives and suffragists had gathered to welcome the party. Justice and Mrs. Hughes breakfasted in private and during the forenoon Mr. Hughes held a public reception at the Planters hotel.

The nominee will be taken to the new quarters of the Missouri Athletic association, where he will be the guest of the Business Men's League and where he will make his first speech of the day. Meanwhile a committee of suffragists will confer with Mrs. Hughes at the Planters hotel.

Later in the afternoon Mr. Hughes is scheduled to speak at Clayton. This speech will mark his last appearance in public until he goes to the Coliseum in the evening to deliver his main address.

37 NARROWLY ESCAPE DEATH

Runaway Freight Cars Dash Into Passenger Train at Lafayette.

Empty Steel Cars at Rear Save Lives of Sleeping Passengers.

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 2.—With the breaking of a coupling and air knuckle on a Lake Erie freight train while standing on a steep grade at Altamont, two miles east of here today, fifteen cars came thundering down the incline and crashed into a Big Four passenger train standing on the main line in front of the local passenger depot, piling up many cars.

With the clearing away of the wreckage it was learned that no one had been killed. William Krueger and Roy Stinger, Rock Island business men, were slightly crushed, but their injuries are not serious and they left here this morning. Three passenger coaches, two "dead heads" at the rear and the Pullman which was the third car were derailed, one of the dead heads being turned over.

The fact that the empty steel cars were at the rear of the train probably saved the lives of many of the thirty-seven people who occupied the sleeper. The caboose of the cut of freight cars was demolished as were four other cars. The end of a gondola car rested on the top of one of the empty passenger coaches.

The wreckage was not cleared away until this afternoon. Three wrecking crews, the Big Four, Lake Erie and Monon, did the work.

TWO MEXICAN ENVOYS ARRIVE IN NEW YORK

Third Commissioner in the Border Dispute Comes During Day.

New York, Sept. 2.—Two members of the Mexican commission, appointed to confer with representatives of the United States to settle the differences between the two countries arrived here early this morning and the third member is expected during the day.

Ignacio Bonillas and Alberto J. Pani are here accompanied by members of their families and a retinue of secretaries and servants. Luis Cabrera, minister of finance, in the Carranza cabinet, and head of the Mexican commission, will come it is said, in time for the first meeting of the two commissions on Monday afternoon.

The Mexican commissioners were welcomed at their hotel by Secretary of State Robert Lansing and J. Brooks Parker, assistant secretary of the American commission. Eliseo Arredondo, Mexican ambassador designate, who came here from Washington, Friday afternoon, also greeted them.

MILLION FLIES COST JUNKER SIX DOLLARS

A. S. Heiligeman Pays Fine for Violation of Sanitary Order.

A million flies buzzed about the manure heaps in the back yard of the property of A. S. Heiligeman, 1723 Lafayette street, junk dealer, when Charles Broecking, sanitary officer, visited the place on August 14, Broecking testified in police court Saturday morning.

Heiligeman was fined $1 and costs, amounting to $6, for failure to comply with the health notice that manure should be kept in closed boxes.

Fifty Days for Being Drunk.

Jacob Oppenheimer, 62, who had many previous convictions on drunk charges again him, was sentenced to thirty days in the county jail and fined $10 and costs. He will be in jail fifty days.

Other Police Court Cases.

George Aimes, who came to Fort Wayne from West Lafayette two weeks ago and has been employed at the Centlivre hotel, was fined $1 and costs after pleading guilty to a drunk charge.

Harold Deutchman, 16, charged with stealing bicycles, was bound over to the juvenile court.

WELL KNOWN RESIDENT IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

W. S. Sponhauer Passes Away After An Illness of Two Years.

Widler Stees Sponhauer, well known citizen and prominent in the Masonic circles of the city, passed away Saturday morning at 4:20 o'clock at his home, 917 Union street, after an illness extending over two years. Bright's disease is given as the cause of death. He was 67 years old.

WIDLER STEES SPONHAUER.

The deceased was born in Juanita county, Pennsylvania, June 30, 1849, and came to Fort Wayne from Galion, Ohio, in the spring of 1875, and for several years was with the firm of Rogers, Duck & Lewis, dealers in saddlery and hardware on Columbia street. With E. F. Yarnelle and Frank Alderman he assisted in the establishment of the firm of Alderman-Yarnelle company in 1885, which was later succeeded by the firm of Mossman-Yarnelle company. He retired from that company in 1895. For years he was custodian of the Scottish Rite cathedral.

The deceased always took great interest in Masonic work and was at the time of his death a trustee of Summit City lodge, No. 170, Free and Accepted Masons. He was also a member of Fort Wayne consistory, Scottish Rite, Fort Wayne commandery, No. 4, Knights Templar, and Mizpah temple, A. A. O. N. M. Shrine.

The deceased is survived by the following relatives: Widow, Mrs. Lydia A. Sponhauer; one daughter, Mrs. John J. Ladig; three sons, Roy, Stees and Ralph; father, Martin Sponhauer, of Galion; one brother, Henry Sponhauer, of Galion, and one sister, Mrs. Ureth Smith, of Cleveland.

Funeral services at the Scottish Rite cathedral Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. Arthur J. Folsom, of the Plymouth Congregational church, officiating. The Knights Templar will officiate at Lindenwood cemetery.

SCHOOLS MAY OPEN BEFORE OCTOBER 1

Quarantine is Very Apt to Be Raised if Cool Weather Continues.

"Schools are very likely to open before October 1, if the cool weather continues," Dr. J. H. Gilpin, secretary to the health board, said Saturday.

"The whole question of dropping the quarantine will depend upon developments fro mday to day. If no new cases develop there is little need of keeping children penned up. The cooler the weather the better are chances for turning the boys and girls free."

A meeting of the city and county boards has been called for next Tuesday evening. The question of infantile paralysis is to be the subject of discussion. The fact that there is a call to have schools opened sooner is said to have caused the meeting of the two boards.

County schools may also open before the first of October. Schools will not open at scheduled time of next Tuesday, however, health board members say. The county board will govern its action on opening schools by the decision of the city board.

BANK CLEARINGS.

For the Week Ending Saturday, September 2, $1,442,157.34.

The bank clearings for the week ending Saturday, September 2, amounted to $1,442,157.34 in comparison with $1,175,877.20 last week and $1,113,541.20 with the corresponding week last year. The amounts each day are as follows: Monday, $253,649.45; Tuesday, $325,725.95; Wednesday, $213,143.30; Thursday, $181,419.57; Friday, $205,018.62, and Saturday, $263,200.45. The balance amounted to $360,864.23.

BEATEN BACK BY TEUTONS

RUSSIANS CLAIM A SUBSTANTIAL GAIN

Violent Fighting Rages in Direction of Lemberg and Further South.

Today's War News Given in Summary

The Rumanian advance in Transylvania has been checked by the Teutonic forces, an official statement from Vienna asserts. This announcement relates the check of the Rumanians near the iron gates of the Danube in the vicinity of Orsova. It is probable the Rumanians are encountering more severe resistance in this region and further south for an important advance from this quarter would threaten the communications of the central powers with Bulgaria and Turkey.

The Teutonic plan for shortening the front apparently contemplated the holding Orsavo region and resting the southern flank of the new line there.

Further north the Austrian evacuation of Transylvania territory is being carried out without serious fighting. Vienna announces the abandonment of Hermannstadt, one of the most important towns of Transylvania, fifteen miles from the border and of a town north of Kornstadt.

The Austrian communication indicates the new offensive of the Russians in Bukowina and Galicia was inaugurated over a wide front. In one sector alone north of the Dniester river the Russians advanced along a line of fifteen miles. Most of their assaults failed, Vienna announces. It was in this fighting that the Russians, according to yesterday's Petrograd communication, took more than 15,000 prisoners.

The Bulgarians renewed their attacks last night along the western end of the Macedonian front. The French war office asserts they were repulsed by Bessarabians.

The part Greece is to play in the Balkan campaign has not yet been cleared up, although a report that King Constantine had abdicated and that Greece would join the entente allies at once has not been borne out. An official dispatch from Athens, filed yesterday, says King Constantine received Premier Zaimis on Thursday and that the premier then announced Greece would maintain her policy of friendly neutrality toward the entente powers while awaiting events.

The Germans attacked the French on the Somme front last night and re-occupied trenches south of Estres taken recently by the French. A small British gain near Delville wood is announced in London.

Berlin, Sept. 2.—The Austro-Hungarian troops on the Rumanian front again repulsed the Rumanians near Orsova and Hercules Fuerdoe on August 31, says the official statement issued by the Austro-Hungarian army headquarters under date of Septtember 1.

The statement adds that the Transylvania towns of Ngay-Szben, Hermannstadt and Sepsi-Szent-Gyorgy, north of Kronstadt, already had been evacuated by the Austro-Hungarians on Wednesday.

Lively fighting is in progress between the Germans and French and British in the region north and south of the river Somme in France, says the official statement issued today by the German army headquarters staff. The Germans last

John A. M. Adair, of Portland, democratic candidate for governor, will leave Fort Wayne Monday morning with a party of democrats as the start of his tour of the Twelfth district. He will probably be accompanied before the tour closes Wednesday night by several state candidates. Martin H. Luecke, Twelfth district chairman, and Stephen A. Callahan will be among those from this city making the trip.

DATES ARE FIXED FOR TOWNSHIP INSTITUTES

Dates for preliminary township teachers' institutes have been fixed by D. O. McComb, county school superintendent. The meetings will be held in the assembly room of the court house.

The Eel River, Perry, Lake, Aboit, Springfield and Scipio township institutes will be held September 6.

On September 7 the institutes of Lafayette, Pleasant, Marion, Madison and Jefferson townships will be held.

On September 8 teachers of Monroe, Jackson, Maumee, Milan and Cedar Creek townships will meet.

The teachers of Adams, Wayne, Washington and St. Joseph townships will meet September 9.

All of the institutes will start at 9 o'clock and the county superintendent urges the teachers to be present at that hour.

FIELD DAY MEET AT FOSTER PARK

Festivities Will Be Held Under Auspices of the A. C. W.

Many of the usual Labor day events, in which every class of workmen and their families take part in a day of general amusement, have been called off because of the quarantine of children, due to infantile paralysis in the city. This includes the picnic and outing that was to have been given under the auspices of the Federation of Labor. The Federation will have no celebration, the plan to give a Labor day parade being abandoned some weeks ago.

The holiday will be marked by general business suspension. Sport making of the day will consist of the athletic meet of the A. C. W. at Foster park, the tennis tournament for the city championship at the Country club, horse racing at Centlivre park and base ball game at the League ball park.

Several family reunions scheduled for the day have been abandoned because of fear of the paralysis plague. Park celebrations have been declared off.

Practically all factories will shut down to give their employes a full holiday. Most of the down town stores will be closed for the day. Banks will suspend business. Union barber shops will not open.

Holiday at Postoffice.

At the postoffice the usual holiday custom of practically suspending service will be observed. Although the lobby will remain open during the entire day, the general delivery, stamp and money order windows will be closed at 10 o'clock in the morning.

The court house and city hall will be deserted. All city officials will close their offices.

Prepare for Field Meet.

Committees in charge of the A. C. W. field day have completed arrangements for a big gahering in Foster park during the afternoon. Several hundred young people are expected to gather for the athletic events and speech making. A loving cup will be given the society winning the most points in the field contests. There will be events for both girls and boys.

Not only the young people will be on hand, but the older ones are also invited. Te plan is to make this picnic one of the largest affairs of its kind the organization has ever held. The program will start promptly at 1:30 with a grand balloon ascension, after which there will be a ball game between two of the societies, and then the ten track events for the loving cup. These consist of a 220 yard dash, shot put, 50 yard relay, as well as seven other events. They will be followed by potato races, sack races and other contests, into which every one present may enter. Mr. Arthur Parry will deliver the address at 3 o'clock. After this a string orchestra will entertain the crowd and supper will be served.

Each person is requested to bring his or her lunch and a fork and spoon in a basket. These will be checked at the stand and all put together for the evening meal.

To Decide City Championship.

The tennis tournament, in which the finals will be played at the Country club during the afternoon, will determine the city tennis championship. Semi-finals in the annual event were carried on Saturday.

Three Races on Card.

Three fast races, one offering a field of six entries, make up the program offered by the Driving club at Centlivre's park. There will be two trots and a pacing race. Some fast time is expected as local horses have been given ample

ARE PREPARED TO ACT ON INSTANT

Senate is Expected to Give O. K. to New Law During Afternoon.

Washington, Sept. 2.—"Just as soon as the house bill, unamended, becomes law," A. B. Garretson, spokesman for the brotherhoods, today, "the strike order will be recalled."

That was all Mr. Garretson would say regarding the probable time of calling off of the strike. This was the first official statement showing that the house bill was wholly satisfactory to the brotherhoods.

From other sources came persistent reports that an arrangement might be perfected whereby the strike could be called off officially before President Wilson actually affixes his signature to the bill.

Peace Seems Assured.

With the senate at work on the Adamson bill, passed by the house late yesterday, and with an agreement for a vote not later than 6 o'clock this evening, the prevention of the railroad strike seemed assured today.

Any amendment to the house bill in the senate would throw all the negotiations in the indefinite stage and with that in mind, administration leaders used every effort as the debate in the senate progressed to induce passage of the house bill in its original form.

House is Prepared.

When the house convened democratic leaers dhad arranged a program to insure final disposition of the eight hour railroad bill by tonight if the senate acts.

"We are first taking up some private bills, and will then recess until we get the eight hour bill back fro mthe senate," said Democrat Leader Kitchin.

"We are keeping in touch with the senate and will be ready to finally dispose of the bill as soon as the senate votes."

Hope to Obviate Delay.

It was the belief of administration leaders that the Adamson bill as it passed the house late yesterday, approved by President Wilson and formally accepted by the labor leaders as meeting their demands, would eventually be accepted by the senate, thus obviating a delay in conference to reconcile differences with the house.

As soon as the perfected bill finally is passed a special messenger will carry it to the summer white house at Shadow Lawn so the president may sign it at once and end the menace of a general paralysis of the country transportation lines at 7 o'clock Monday morning.

Code Messages Ready.

Heads of the four brotherhoods, anticipating such action, had code messages to local union officials ready, revoking the order sent broadcast early this week for a strike starting at 7 a. m. Monday. If the bill is passed, it is believed they will not wait until it is signed by President Wilson, who was at Long Branch, N. J., to receive formal notification of his nomination. The senate convened early today after a prolonged session last night which ended in an agreement to vote at 6 p. m. this evening or before.

Debate continued over the amendment proposed by Senator Underwood to give the inter-state commerce commission authority to determine wages of inter-state railway employes. Its opponents urged that its adoption might render the bill unsatisfactory to the brotherhoods and that consequently the strike order would be allowed to stand. They contended also that it was unnecessary as an emergency measure.

What Bill Provides.

The Adamson bill provides that beginning Jan. 1, 1917, the standard work day for employes on steam roads more than one hundred miles long, engaged in inter-state commerce, shall be eight hours; that a presidential commission of three shall investigate conditions under the eight hour basis for a period of between six and nine months; that daily wages shall not be reduced below the present amount for a longer day during the investigation and overtime pay shall be prorata. The bill was passed in the house by a vote of 239 to 56, and sent to the senate, where at the night session, it was substituted for a similar measure prepared by the inter-state commerce committee. In both houses the measure was debated hotly.

Official vote in House.

The official vote in the house on the final passage of the amended Adamson eight hour day bill was:

Ayes, 239; nays, 56; present, Two democrats, Black, of Texas, and Steele, of Pennsylvania, voted against the bill,

Ten Million to Be Coined Within Next Four Months.

Philadelphia, Sept. 2. Orders for the newly designed ten cent pieces are being received daily at the United States mint here, but the coins will not be placed in circulation before the 15th or 20th of this month. Two hundred and fifty thousand of the new coins are coined daily, 150 men being employed exclusively in this work. Adam M. Boyce, the superintendent, said today that ten million of the new dimes will be turned out within the next four months. The new piece bears the figure of a Grecian lady on the obverse side and the bundle and rods and the ax of the Roman lictors on the reverse. Supt. Joyce also announced that within the next two weeks work will be begun on the new twenty-five cent pieces while the making of the new design half dollar will not be started until the early part of October.

The newly designed quarter on one side has the full figure of a woman coming through a gate in a wall, the reverse side shows an eagle in flight. The fifty cent piece bears a full length figure of the Goddess of Liberty, holding olive branches, while the reverse design is that of a spread eagle standing on a rock.

JOKE IN COHAN SHOW KILLS INDIANA MAN

Chicago, Sept. 2.—Here is the joke that killed a man:

Harry Bulger, who plays the part of an ammunition king in Cohan's Revue, has been separated from his wife. He drinks a "Fair and Warmer" cocktail which revives his old love and as he clasps his wife to his breast he ardently exclaims:

"I have a strange feeling coming over me—kiss me, sweetheart. I want to be kissed."

Charles Spencer, an attorney from Monticella, Ind., was convulsed with laughter which he could not check. He was carried to the manager's office, where he died.

STATESMEN EAGER TO GET AWAY FOR HOME

Washington, Sept. 2—Democratic leaders of both houses said today that congress could not be held in session after settlement of the railroad crisis longer than necessary to dispose of the revenue and general deficiency appropriation bills. These, they thought, could be passed by next Wednesday.

It was generally agreed that efforts in the senate to force action on the corrupt practices and immigration bills would be blocked by majority of votes, and that an exodus of members bound for the national campaign would be on before the end of the week.

MANY LESS THAN FIVE YEARS.

Three-Fourths of Plague Victims in New York Mere Babes.

New York, Sept. 2.—More than three fourths of the children who have died of infantile paralysis in New York city in the epidemic which has prevailed for the last three months, were less than five years old, according to figures issued by the department of health. The total number of deaths fro mthis disease for the three months is given as 1,922. Of these 1,499 were of children less than five years old. The figures show that apparently the most susceptible age is between one and two years. Despite the belief at the beginning of the epidemic that negroes were exempt, 29 of them were victims.

GEN. PERSHING IN COLUMBUS.

Commander Comes from Mexico to Inspect Command in New Mexico.

Columbus, N. M., Sept. 2.—Gen. J. J. Pershing, commander of the American punitive expedition, is here today from field headquarters in Mexico, to review the regulars stationed at this point, to inspect the new camp site of the Massachusetts national guard. The new army road from field headquarters was in excellent shape and the general made the trip here in less than 15 hours, actual running time.

SUICIDE, IS NOW REPORT

London, Sept. 2—(1.20 p. m.)—Reports have been received in Amsterdam that Gen. Jostoff, chief of the Bulgarian general staff, committee suicide over Bulgaria's delay in declaring war on Rumania, says a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company from that city.

Dispatches from Sofia which reached Amsterdam yesterday, attributed General Jostoff's death to appendicitis.

URGE CHANGE IN FIVE OF TEN COMMANDMENTS

Episcopal Churchmen Plan to Revise and Shorten First Half of Them.

New York, Sept. 2.—A proposal to revise and shorten the first five of the ten commandments will be submitted to the next general convention of the Protestant Episcopal church. The proposed changes are recommended by a commission of bishops, clergy and laymen, which has been considering the project. It is proposed to eliminate portions of the first five commandments on the ground that arguments for the observance of divine law are not essential to the laws themselves. The revised version of the commandments as proposed is as follows:

First—Thou shalt have no other gods but Me.

Second—Thou shalt not take unto thyself any graven image, nor the likeness of anything that is in the heaven above, the earth beneath or in the water under the earth. Thou shalt not bow down unto them, nor worship them.

Third—Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord, thy God, in vain.

Fourth—Remember that thou keep holy the Sabbath day.

Firth—Honor thy father and thy mother.

and seventy republicans and the one socialist voted for it. None of the progressives voted.

Ayes—Democrats, Barnhart, Cline, Cox, Cullop, Dixon, Gray, Rauch, Lieb, Moss.

Ayes—Republicans, Wood.

Present, but not voting, Moore, Morrison.

First Amendment Proposed.

Washington, Sept. 2.—The first amendment proposed came from Senator Shafroth, democrat. He proposed to fix Senator Underwood's amendment empowering the inter-state commerce commission to make wage schedules so that no employe would be compelled to work for the rate prescribed.

Senator Newlands offered an amendment to make it a misdemeanor for any person to interiere with the operation of trains punishable by a fine not to exceed $100 or imprisonment not to exceed six months or both. This, he said, followed exactly existing law relating to interference with transportation of the mails.

The brotherhood leaders still decline to say whether they will send the code word meaning "satisfactory settlement" to their general chairmen immediately upon passage of the bill or hold it off until it is signed by the president. It is generally believed, however, that the message calling off the strike will go out as soon as both houses have acted. They have no fear that the president will not sign the bill if it takes the form now indicated.

Urges Underwood Amendment.

Senator Hardwick, democrat, declaring congress was being held up by the railway employes spoke for the adoption of the Underwood amendment.

"We will not measure up to what is required of us," he said, "unless we not only bridge over this crisis but also provide that there never can arise again in this country an opportunity for any man or set of men, railroad managers or workers, to seize this government by the threat as is now being done. If we do not do this, I for one will feel that we have made a sorry trade as well as a sorry spectacle of ourselves."

Senator Thomas also proposed an amendment to make it a misdemeanor for any person to delay or obstruct the operation of trains punishable by a fine of not more than $500 or imprisonment for not more than one year or both.

W. O. McGinnis, of the receiving department of the Bowser works, will not be at his desk next week. Instead he will be at the lakes enjoying a vacation.

Defy Drizzling Rain.

The day upon which President Wilson is to be formally notified of his renomination is being celebrated with enthusiasm by more than 10,000 persons, including democratic leaders from all parts of the country. A drizzling rain fell throughout the morning, but did not dampen the spirits of the assembled democrats. President Wilson himself rose early and spent the forenoon shaking hands with party leaders and renewing friendships with New Jersey members of his party. The notification ceremonies were set for late afternoon at shadow Lawn, the president's summer residence.

The president's magnificent white summer home surrounded by sixty acres of lawn presented a beautiful picture as the arrangements for the ceremony were completed. The house was literally covered with American flags and bunting and from a tall flagpole floated the flag of the president of the United States. Chairs to accommodate 5,000 persons were grouped in a semi-circle about the house and there was room for 20,000 more within hearing distance of the president's voice.

A Call to Service.

Senator Ollie M. James, of Kentucky, in his address notifying the president of his renomination for the presidency, recounted the enthusiastic demand of the voters for Mr. Wilson's renomination, and continuing said in part:

"They do not make this call upon you for the purpose of honoring you, for you have already had bestwed upon you by your countrymen the greatest honor within their gift. They call you for service to America and mankind; a service you have so amply proved to be of the highest type known to just governments among men; a service that has given justice to all men upon free and equal terms; a service that has restored taxation to its historic and constitutional function; a service that has freed trade to individual and honest endeavor; a service that has lifted from the tables and homes of the plain people of America a burden of taxation which they have unjustly borne for more than a half century and placed it upon the wealth and fortunes of the land; a service that has driven monopoly from its rendezvous of taxation; a service that has denied to the trusts of republican creation a hiding place in our economic life; a service to the toilers of America that litfed them from the despised level of a commodity to the high plane of a human unit in our industrial life; a service that has dignified them—the great army of workers of the field, factory, and mine; a service that opened the courts to all men upon equal terms of justice and constitutional liberty; a service that freed the money of a nation from the control of a 'money oligarchy' and lodged it in the hands of the government; a service that at once destroyed two trusts, a money trust and a panic trust, where the business cannot be oppressed or destroyed by the manipulation of the money market, nor legislation controlled, intimidated, or suppressed by the panic trust. These two trusts that your service and matchless leadership destroyed live only in memory, as contemporary with the malodorous rule of the boss-ridden and monopoly-controlled stand-pat republican party.

Some Further Achievements.

"It is a service which has prepared the nation for its defense; a service to fair and equal treatment to all men by destroying a subsidy fed to an American monopoly; a service to the farmers of our country who yearn for a home and fireside to call their own by enacting into law a federal rural credits system that makes credit and home-building easy to the tillers of the soil; a service that in the stormiest hours of America's life and the bloodiest days of the life of the world, you have kept our people at peace with all the earth a service that has kept homes happy family circles unbroken, while the Old World staggers beneath its weight of sorrow, mourning, and death; a service whose victories for the freedom of the seas, the rights of neutral life the rection of American citizens and American rights stands resplendent in world's international law and in the earth's diplomacy. This great triumph which you achieved for America and the world gave protection to non-combatants and neutrals that war-mad countries must respect, and this diplomatic achievement will be the guiding, protecting precedent to millions of lives of the innocent and unoffending long after you are gone. This triumph of yours will ot be told in history by a great war debt, a mammoth pension roll, vacant chairs at unhappy firesides, and Decoration day services to place flowers upon the mounds of those who achieved it, but it will be told in the victory of matchless diplomacy and of irresistible logic, presentingg in an unequaled manner the everlasting principle of justice.

An elaborate feast is prepared for all those who will come at the small sum of 25c, which includes a chicken dinner or supper. All interurban cars, Bluffton division, will stop at No. 16. Come one, come all, and celebrate Labor day at Sheldon in grand style.

BATTERY D PREPARES TO BE MUSTERED IN

Indianapolis, Sept. 2.—Battery B, of Lafayette, is expected to arrive at Fort Benjamin Harrison some time next week. Copies of orders directing it to return here were received yesterday by Adjt. Gen. F. L. Bridges. The battery will be held at the fort pending further orders, which are expected to muster out the officers and men, as they are students of Purdue university. The orders also state that no more individuals will be discharged because they are students, teachers or because they have dependent relatives. It is pointed out that the new federal act provides $30 a month for a dependent wife and $10 for a dependent child. Battery D, of Fort Wayne, now at the fort, is busy getting its papers fixed up preparatory to being mustered into the federal service. It is thought that it will supplant battery B at the border. Examinations will be conducted for non-commissioned officers, who wish to try for the positions of second lieutenant on Oct. 16. It is not yet known where the examinations will be held.

Will Use Auto for Hurry Up Calls and for Scavenger Duty.

The board of works has decided to buy a light auto truck for use in answering calls for garbage collection and to gather up dead animals over the city. The truck, which will be hurried to any part of the city when a call to have garbage collected is turned in, is expected to serve as a check on present garbage collectors and to make the garbage collection system complete.

A chasis will be purchased for about $600. The body will be built on the truck from plans being drawn by the mayor and members of the works board. A large steel tank for holding garbage will be placed on the back of the frame and will be built so that it can be emptied hurriedly at the crematory.

Promise Elevation Action.

As soon as the strike situation is cleared up the Pennsylvania railroad will take action on completing plans for elevating its tracks over Lafayette and Hanna streets, according to the message received by the board of works, Friday afternoon. Officials from the Pittsburg office expressed the hope that work of raising the tracks might be started this fall.

ALL READY FOR PICNIC.

With announcement that Sunday will be fair and warmer, Al Keller, head of the committee on arrangements for the council picnic, has made final preparations for a grand outing at the Symposium club grounds. One hundred city officials are expected to attend the annual affair. George Fry will be in charge of the eats. There will be orchestra music during the day. Baseball games and other sports will make up the amusements.

MRS. NESBITT LEAVES.

Mrs. Josephine Nesbitt, who conducted the city health and beautification campaign during the past summer, left for her home near Springfield, Ohio, Saturday, where she will enjoy a month's vacation. She will return to Fort Wayne to be present when prizes for winners in the city contest are given out. Awarding of the ten ward prizes and the grand prize of $50 to the seven children of Mr. and Mrs. William Westner, will be accompanied by an elaborate program and will be held in October, after schools are opened.

BUILDING PERMITS.

Building permits were granted to A. G. W. Curdes to erect a residence at 2023 Garden street at cost of $2,000; at 2503 Florida Drive, $4,200; at 2723 East Drive, $5,200; 2523 West Drive, $3,800; to William Wolks, to build a frame garage at 827 West Creighton avenue at cost of $180, and the Indiana Engineering and Construction company to construct the No. 12 engine works for the light company at a cost of $45,000, and a factory for the same company at the corner of Wall and College, at a cost of $20,000.

FIREMAN RECOVERING.

John Hilgemann, at station No. 4, is improving from injuries sustained while fighting the fire at the Central foundry last week. Hilgemann's leg was lacerated when struck by a falling plank, and after a few days the wound became serious. He has been confined to his home during the past week but expects to return to duty Monday.

Railroads with headquarters in St. Louis announced that beginning today they would accept freight of any kind for any destination on their lines or branches. Railroads which have already modified the embargoes, as announced several days ago, and which are today working under more nearly normal conditions, included the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, Chicago & Northwestern, Union Pacific, Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, and Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, in the west, and the New York Central and the Erie in the east.

Railroad passenger traffic through Chicago for the last two days has been heavier than for many months, the large increase being attributed to anxiety of tourists to reach their homes before next Monday, the time set for the strike.

SITUATION IN NEW YORK.

New York, Sept. 2.—Abnormal conditions in traffic and commerce due to the fear of a railroad strike stood stationary here today, pending developments at Washington. Although the railroads promise that their freight embargoes will be lifted as soon as the danger of a strike is definitely ended, only slight modifications have been made in the embargoes now in force.

A threatened shortage of food stuffs was materially relieved by the action of the New York Central in lifting its ban against the receipt of meats, fish and all dairy products. Food prices, after their sensational jump on Thursday and Friday, showed more stability. This was accounted for partly by improvement in the prospects that there would be no strike and partly by the district attorney's threat to indict dealers charged with lifting prices without reasonable grounds. The district attorney announced that he stood ready to investigate complaints from customers.

NEWS OF FORT WAYNE'S NEIGHBORS

AUSTIN COOK DIES

Second Death in Whitley County From Infantile Paralysis.

Columbia City, Ind., Sept. 2.—Austin, the 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Cook, of Thornecreek township, died of infantile paralysis, Friday afternoon about 2 o'clock, or about 36 hours after his younger brother, Perry, passed away from the same dreaded diseases.

As near as can be learned Austin became indisposed Monday night or Tuesday morning of this week. He had fever and complained of pains in his head and spine. Wednesday he seemed somewhat better and that night he perspired freely and his fever went down somewhat, but Thursday there was a change for the worse. The left arm became paralyzed and later on the right arm and right leg became paralyzed also, the patient retaining use of the right arm alone. He continued to grow worse during Thursday night and Friday morning when Dr. Schuman visited him his condition was so grave that the physician realized that the end was not far distant. The boy was unconscious and there were all indications that his life was hanging by a very slender thread.

WOULD BE HARD HIT.

Decatur, Ind., Sept. 2.—In the event of a railway strike—which now seems improbable for a time at least—Decatur would be hit pretty hard along some lines. The food problem would not necessarily be the greatest, for with the fine farming section surrounding the city, and transportation facilities cut off, Decatur would be the natural market. Two flour mills could produce flour enough so long as the supply of wheat lasted; milk, butter, eggs and meat would be available, besides the vegetables and fruits. Along freight and manufacturing lines the severest pressure and results would be felt.

INJURIES PROVE FATAL

Warsaw, Ind., Sept. 2.—Fred C. Zeigler, of Tulsa, Oklahoma, who has been spending the summer at Wawasee, and who was struck by a B. & O. freight train at Jones' crossing Wednesday afternoon, died Friday morning at 1 o'clock in the Goshen hospital as the result of his injuries. Soon after his arrival at the hospital his condition was known to be critical and there were no hopes for his recovery. His daughter, Dorothy, aged 12, and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Elmer Stinson, of Montpelier, the other occupants of the wrecked car, were only slightly injured, and are now practically out of danger. Mrs. Stinson is still suffering from a severe attack of nervous prostration.

WILL NOT USE ETHER.

Decatur, Ind., Sept. 2.—Joseph Shady, aged 86 and a well known resident of this city, will undergo an operation of a very serious nature this week without an anesthetic, though he is barely able to exist now on account of suffering, which followed an operation of several days ago. No ether can be given Mr. Shady on account of his weak heart. A daughter, Mrs. Israel Rex, left yesterday to be at her father's bedside and other members of the family are already there.

UNABLE TO FIND THIEVES.

Hartford City, Ind., Sept. 2.—After running down every available clue for the past several days the local police have been unable to get any trace of the thief or thieves who entered the home of Timothy Martin, of North Cherry street, during Sunday or Sunday evening, following the conclusion of the carnival in this city. As the result of the thief's visit a pocketbook containing over $41 is missing.

PENNVILLE PASTOR RESIGNS.

Pennville, Ind., Sept. 2.—Rev. E. M. Dunbar, pastor of the M. E. church at Pennville, has resigned the pastorate there to accept charge of the M. E. church at Fortville. He will leave Pennville September 6 to begin his new duties. Rev. Mr. Dunbar was the former pastor of the Portland or Blaine M. E. circuit, being sent to Geneva and from there to Pennville.

PRINCIPAL AT PLYMOUTH.

Plymouth, Ind., Sept. 2.—The Plymouth school board has elected Miss Lena Johnson as principal of the high school, succeeding C. E. Harris, resigned. Miss Johnson has been teacher of history in the high school for several years. She will continue her history work in connection with her new duties as principal.

SCRATCH PROVES SERIOUS.

Hartford City, Ind., Sept. 2.—Dr. G. W. CORN PROSPECTS GOOD.

Crop Will Come Very Near Bumper Crop of Year Ago.

The weekly statement concerning the crop prospects in the territory touched by the Wabash, just issued from the office of Vice President W. C. Maxwell, states that the yield of corn this year will be about 80 per cent. of the yield last year. Mr. Maxwell groups Indiana, Ohio and Michigan, the conditions in each being similar, and says: Weather warm, with no rain in Indiana and Ohio, but light rainfall in Michigan. The oats harvest, which is still in progress, is yielding well both in quality and quantity. The general condition of the corn crop is fair, the yield being estimated at 80 per cent. of last year. Cutting of corn in some localities has commenced. Ohio needs rain to bring out the crop. The sugar beets crop shows fair prospects. The output will be greater than last year on account of the increased acreage.

Feeling Bad Tonight? Feel Good Tomorrow!

If you feel "upset," morbid, blue—if you are nervous and restless—if you have a sick headache—if your stomach is sour and you are bilious, take a Foley Cathartic Tablet before retiring.

Your bowels will move in the morning without griping or nausea. If your condition is the result of clogged intestines poisoning your system, you will feel better, for the cause of your distress will be removed.

Foley Cathartic Tablets clear the stomach and bowels, enliven the liver, stimulate the secretion and flow of bile and have a good tonic effect on the whole intestinal tract. They are recommended for indigestion, constipation and dyspepsia. Sold by all druggists everywhere.

Guaranteed by Foley & Co., Chicago, makers of the celebrated Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, for coughs and colds.

FUR SCARFS STYLISH.

By Betty Brown.

If you doubt the effectiveness of the fur scarf, note the charm of this black fox stole swinging so airily from the arm of Miss Up-to-the-Styles-and-a-Little-Beyond. The flat collar would add nothing in the way of style to this particular model.

The gown is broadcloth in a brand new color the Parisians call "fer," but which you and I will call iron gray when finally "fer" arrives from Paris.

If you haven't seen the cartridge pleats used at the waistline and the kneeline it's because they have gotten no further yet than fashion pages and fashion shows.

The wise girl will paste this model in her scrap book.

The hat is white broadcloth faced with black velvet. Note cutaway brim.

(By Betty Brown.)

Here's a little story—also a picture for the summer girl swinging in her hammock and pondering deeply on "what kind of furs will I wear this winter?"

Her answer may be read in this picture, which I photographed at a fall fashion exposition.

It was the prettiest of a dozen designs of fur-trimmed winter coats, for let me whisper to you, most of next winter's furs will be "accessory" furs. They will be worn as coat trimmings, not as "sets."

The pictured model, which will be developed in velvets, velours, duvetynes and similar soft fabrics, is made in the new seprentine velvet, and it blends into more shades of gray than I can name.

The shawl collar and the skirt band are moleskin. The narrow bands across the full-gathered back are also mole. This is an excellent coat model for the business woman, or the busy club woman who finds a muff a troublesome appendage to a winter outfit.

HARRISON HILL GETS CAR LINE EXTENSION

The extraordinary development of Harrison Hill, the modernly planned addition located directly south of Rudisill boulevard on the west side of Calhoun street, has justified the Traction company in extending regular service to Lexington circle, and as soon as the paving of Calhoun street as far as the main entrance of Harrison Hill is completed, car service will be furnished to this point. These extensions bring city car lines within three blocks of any point in Harrison Hill, while the average distance from Harrison Hill lots to the car line will be but one block. Further details regarding the late developments in Harrison Hill may be obtained from the promoters, Hilgemann and Schaaf, North American building.—Advertisement.

DAILY BIBLE READINGS FOR THE HOME

Ephesians 6-1:12.

1. Children, obey your parents in the Lord: for this is right.
2. Honour thy father and mother; which is the first commandment with promise;
3. That it may be well with thee, and thou mayest live long on the earth.
4. And, ye fathers, provoke not your children to wrath: but bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord.
5. Servants, be obedient to them that are your masters according to the flesh, with fear and trembling, in singleness of your heart, as unto Christ;
6. Not with eyeservice, as menpleasers; but as the servants of Christ, doing the will of God from the heart;
7. With good will doing service, as to the Lord, and not to men:
8. Knowing that whatsoever good thing any man doeth, the same shall he receive of the Lord, whether he be bond or free.
9. And, ye masters, do the same things unto them, forbearing threatening: knowing that your Master also is in heaven; neither is there respect of persons with him.
10. Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might.
11. Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil.
12. For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places.

The President Notified

Today at Shadow Lawn, the New Jersey summer home at which he hopes to spend a few weeks in such relaxation as may be possible in connection with the monumental total of official duties and grave responsibilities that have fallen to his lot in the past four years, President Wilson is formally notified that he has been again chosen as the standard-bearer of his party. Senator James, speaking for the democracy of the nation, is the bearer of the news that a great political party has named him as its candidate, and that it pledges him its fealty and its support. With equal truth, too, Senator James might speak with assurance in proclaiming that behind the candidacy of the president and giving it support no less positive and enthusiastic than that of his own party is a vast army of independent, thoughtful citizens, who will not fail in November to attest their appreciation of the president's course and the president's accomplishments.

The underlying purpose of these official and formal notifications, of course, is to afford the nominee occasion for his personal expression—his pledge to the people, such pronouncement of future purpose and such party utterance as he cares to make on his own account. In a large way the candidate's address is accepted as a keynote more explicit and more definite than that of the convention chairman, for it is the personal declaration of the nominee, and its reflects definitely his own views and his own outlook upon public affairs. In the case of President Wilson it is invested with unusual interest and unusual importance. It will place before the people whom he, in exalted and for the time peculiarly trying position, is serving with patriotic devotion and with a purpose single to the greatest good of this great republic, his own conception of the duties that are his and the opportunities that lie before us as a nation.

Joseph J. Hartigan, commissioner of the New York department of municipal weights and measures, has lodged with the federal authorities in Washington a charge to the effect that there exists a definite conspiracy in that city to increase the price of foodstuffs by taking advantage of the emergency created by the prospect of a railroad strike. If the strike were to come, the natural law of supply and demand would doubtless operate to advance the prices of some commodities, but there should be neither patience nor leniency with greed that seizes upon urgent necessity to reap unholy profits. A conspiracy such as Mr. Hartigan believes he has discovered calls for drastic treatment, and it should not be delayed a moment.

Senator Borah, of Idaho, speaking at the meeting of the American Bar association at Chicago, pleaded with lawyers to take greater part in the framing and enactment of the legislation of this country, asserting it to be a particular duty of the lawyer on account of his special knowledge. Still, we fancy, an examination of the roster of the various state legislatures and of congress will demonstrate that the lawyers have done fairly well in getting into places where they may have a hand in shaping the work of law-making. There never seems to have been a time when the lawyers didn't have a substantial working majority, both in the state and the national legislative bodies.

Gossip regarding the increased membership of the interstate commerce commission when it is enlarged to nine members has already brought forward mention of a number of possibilities for these places, and among them is the name of Judge W. J. Wood, of Evansville. Judge Wood, it will be recalled, was for many years chairman of the Indiana state railroad commission, and throughout his official career demonstrated his splendid capacity and entire fitness for the place. He is now an examiner for the commerce commission, and both in character and qualifications measures up completely to the requirements of membership on the federal body.

Republican National Chairman Willcox is effusive in his praise of Colonel Roosevelt's first campaign speech for Mr. Hughes, and calls it a "noteworthy contribution to the history of the nation." Which seems to bring to one's recollection the fact that republican leaders have not invariably and always pointed with pride to Colonel Roosevelt's "contributions to history." They have worked overtime in the effort to forget a great many of them.

The monthly report of Weather Forecaster McDonough is explicit in proclaiming that Fort Wayne enjoyed a sum total of fifteen clear days during the month just closed. That man's preparing to cite the record for fine performance a little later when we begin to get unpleasantly harsh in our comment on the sort of weather he is providing for us from his perch atop the Shoaff building.

The General Francisco Villa who is now reputed to have driven the Carranza soldiers from Santa Ysabel is doubtless the same ubiquitous gentleman who was but recently dead, badly injuried, limping about on crutches and also buried.

"A Penny Saved---"

If the daylight saving plan, adopted in Europe, is to be taken up in this country it should be done in the same way, that is nationally, not here and there by isolated cities or communities. That is the only way to avoid confusion or needless expense. If it be decided that we shall turn the clock forward an hour, so we shall get up an hour earlier and quit work an hour earlier in the summer months, national action may be limited to a decree that on a certain date clocks all over the country shall be turned forward at 1 a. m. at midnight and remain so until the corresponding date in the fall, when they can be turned back. In this way there would be no need for changing railroad schedules or time of opening stores or offices. The sole change would be in the single operation of pushing the clock hand forward one night in the spring and back another night in the fall.

The action by the executive committee of the chamber of commerce approving the movement is in line with a campaign begun within the chamber of commerce of the United States looking toward national action on that basis. It is now too late in the year to inaugurate the change, but it may require the fall and winter to secure general understanding of the proposition throughout the country. If the European nations have been convinced of the value of the change industrially, physically and socially, so that they have taken formal governmental action, the idea cannot be considered as a mere fad or theory.

It simply amounts to this, that we now sleep through hours of daylight in the summer mornings and waste money and health in the evenings under artificial light. Getting up an hour earlier would give us that much more daylight for work and pleasure and allow us to sleep naturally in the hours of darkness. Before artificial light was as common and cheap as it is people rose earlier and retired earlier. When you think it over does it not seem foolish that we have not thought sooner of the simple expedient of fitting our waking schedule to the sun?

Press in Tribute to Late E. A. K. Hackett

(From the Indiana Daily Times, Indianapolis.)

Edward A. K. Hackett, editor and publisher for thirty-six years of the Fort Wayne Sentinel, was known to us solely through his newspaper and by reputation. We judged Editor Hackett as we studied and esteemed his medium of self-expression—The Sentinel. Measured by the standards he set in his paper, Mr. Hackett was a square, sincere, independent, honest and fearless citizen; plain spoken, yet kindly and courteous; clear and forceful, yet calm and judicious in his utterances; governed by the high and cleanly ethics of fairness and wholesomeness, and at the same time ruled by a passion for the right and by an earnest and human sympathy for the unfortunate and for the erring. We do not now recall a newspaper which embodies more definitely than Hackett's Fort Wayne Sentinel the better ideals of the better journalism. In the death of Editor Hackett Indiana newspaperdom loses a fine and friendly exemplar of all that is worth while in the newspaper field.

(From the Churubusco Truth.)

In the death of E. A. K. Hackett, editor and publisher of the Fort Wayne Sentinel, Indiana loses one of its foremost editors. He always stood for clean journalism, upright business methods, and The Sentinel under his management was recognized far and near as one of the cleanest newspapers in the middle west. His death is greatly deplored throughout the state.

AIN'T NATURE WONDERFUL?

KNUTTY KNOWLEDGE.

They say opportunity knocks only once, but flivvers knock more.

Here's a remarkable case of a fellow hearing the clawhammer of opportunity one-stepping on his white pine front door.

Mr. E. Bony, of Eggville, Ill., one night at supper while picking the slivers out of a lime-fish, saw a greedy fly slide on a sheet of sticky flypaper.

BLAM!! a idea—why not make nutritious glue for stamps and envelopes? Great!

Mr. E. Bony's fortune is made.

Glue flavored like a regular coarse dinner; from soup flavored glue to nut flavor.

Here's how this wonderful brainburst of Mr. E. Bony's will have thousands of dollars for big firms that send out thousands of envelopes daily.

First, Mr. E. Bony sells his nutritious glue to the government for use on stamps, then he sells envelopes to these firms with nutritious glue flaps in all flavors.

Here's where the big idea comes in: The firms can throw away their stamp-envelope licking machines and hire people to do the work for 50 cents a day.

What d'ye mean, work for 50 cents a day

Why, sure, 50 cents a day and their meals—get us

Great idea, what?

First Baptist Church.

9:30—The Sunday school will meet as usual. In view of the recent order issued by the city health board, none of the classes for the children under 16 years will meet. This, though, will not interfere with the adult classes, so let all the older ones make it a point to be on hand every Sunday.

10:45—Morning worship. At this service we will have the privilege of welcoming our pastor back after a four weeks' vacation. His theme will be "My Father's House."

6:45—The great meeting of the young people under the lead of the B. Y. P. U. Topic: "Consecration of the Home." Leader, Mrs. Stover. Special music will also be rendered during this session.

7:45—People's popular benedictory service. Topic of sermon, "My Father, Thy Brother." A strong song service always precedes this meeting.

Wednesday, September 6th—7:45—People's prayer hour.

Friday, September 8th—7:30—Bible study class under the lead of Mrs. F. A. Williams.

Mr. Mauk, superintendent of the Sunday school, wishes it announced that while the classes of children under 16 years of age are being discontinued, per ruling of the city health board, still it will not affect the children's standing as to attendance if they will call their teachers by phone or mail a card stating they would have been present if it had been permitted. Mr. Mauk is anxious that all the children understand this, so will the parents kindly see that this is made clear to their children?

WOMEN NOW GETTING GOVERNMENT PLACES

Have Filled Gaps Made by War in English Departmental Ranks.

London, Aug. 25.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.) There are 11,000 women clerks and stenographers now employed in the British government offices in Whitehall, a fact which gives some idea of the way the women have filled the gaps left by the men who have joined the army. And still the cry is heard for more women, which leads to the belief that the demand has outstripped the supply.

Even the government departments are finding difficulty in securing the clerical assistance they require. At one time Whitehall officials could pick and choose their clerks, and the majority of those engaged were of an adaptable age from 20 to 30—but an intelligent girl of 17 without experience can now find a place, and middle-aged women need no longer feel that they are not wanted.

To meet extensions of the activities of such busy places as the war office and the ministry of munitions, it is estimated that some 200 women clerks can be absorbed every week into the official machinery.

The pay is not high, though it is more than what was regarded as a satisfactory starting salary for young girls before the war. It is, of course, far below the salary paid for similar work in the United States.

For ordinary routine work or typewriting the pay is one pound ($5) a week, with six pence (12 cents) an hour for over time. For ordinary clerical work the pay is 25 shillings ($6.25) a week, with an over time rate of seven pence. Competent stenographers start at 26 shillings a week, which may be raised to thirty after a period of satisfactory service and the over time rate is nine pence an hour. The normal hours of work vary from 42 to 48 a week in different departments.

The civil service commissioners are chiefly engaged in the task of supplying the staffs required for temporary employment in public departments. The ministry of munitions and the postoffice departments have to a great extent made their own appointments, but in the last six months the commissioners have found nearly 6,000 women for other government departments.

COULD NOT DO HER COOKING.

Mrs. F. E. Hartmeister, Tea, Mo., writes: "I was affected with kidney trouble for two years. I was so bad this summer I could hardly do my cooking. I got Foley Kidney Pills and they helped me. I feel like a new person." Too many women neglect symptoms of kidney derangement. When the kidneys are not properly doing their work poisons left in the system cause weak back, dizziness, puffiness under eyes, swollen ankles, joints, and rheumatism. Dreier Drug Co.—Advertisement.

Count and Countess von Bernstorff are here shown on the Frederick VIII on which the countess just arrived in New York. New wrinkles, prominent on the face of the German ambassador to the United States, indicate worry over recent critical affairs that threatened to cause a break between the United States and Germany. The countess was Miss Jeanne Luckemeyer of New York.

BETTING ON BALL GAME NOT GAMBLING, HE SAYS

City Judge at New Orleans Makes Unique Ruling in One Case.

New Orleans, La., Sept. 2.—Judge W. J. Stentz, of the city court, in a decision on file today, holds that moderate betting on baseball games does not constitute gambling. The defendant in the case bet a fifty dollar check against the plaintiff's cash that the Green Turtles, a semi-professional team would defeat the Greco Sweets. The Turtles lost and the defendant stopped payment of the check, whereupon the plaintiff sued.

In deciding the plaintiff was entitled to recover the fifty dollars, and overruling the defendant's plea that it was a gambling transaction, and illegal, the court said: "Baseball is not in any sense a gambling game. * * * It is primarily a game of science, physical skill and trained endurance. The court believes baseball a model form of physical development and exercise, which tends to promote skill in the use of the arms, and a bet thereon, if not excessive, is recoverable."

Yarn—Just Plain Woolen Yarn It Is

BY BETTY BROWN.

You may not like this yarn embroidery, but you might as well get used to it. You will probably find it splashed all over your new fall suit.

I saw several of yarn embroidered frocks at a recent fashion show. Not all pleased my fashion-eye as the yarn sometimes looked course and heavy, but I found one model, and promptly penciled it for you, which proves that yarn trimming has a charm of its own.

Fine serge of midnight blue is used to make the gown which is cut, as you see, in one piece, but the thing you'll be interested in is the yarn embroidery, worked out in red and blue and in simple graceful design. The yarn works into the serge very effectively.

Tucker—Lyons.

Miss Anna M. Lyons and Charles M. Tucker, a son of Mrs. M. V. Tucker, were united in marriage at 8:30 o'clock this morning at the Cathedral rectory, Rev. Father John R. Quinlan officiating. The ceremony was performed in the presence of only a few immediate relatives and close friends. The bride and groom were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Warren Lucas, of the Orpheum theater, with which the bride has been connected as soprano soloists since the opening of the theater two years ago. The bride is a daughter of James Lyons, former mayor of Terre Haute, and is a graduate of the public schools of that city. Miss Lyons was married in a handsome and modish silk suit in one of the fashionable shades of purple, with hat to match of purple velvet, in cockade shape and trimmed with a single bunch of grapes. Immediately after the ceremony the couple left for Detroit and Toronto and will arrive at Fairview cottage, the summer home of Mrs. MacPherson, an aunt of the groom, in the Muskoka lake district, in time to be in attendance at the wedding next Wednesday of Miss Louisa Staples, a cousin of Mr. Tucker, and Dr. Albert Bastedo. Mr. and Mrs. Tucker expect to be gone about a week. Upon their return Mrs. Tucker will continue to sing at the Orpheum theater until the expiration of her contract. The groom is well known. He is one of four brothers who came here as children with their mother. He is a high school graduate and is now engaged as an expert accountant with S. F. Bowser and company. As a side line he also sells insurance. Both have the best wishes of their many friends.

MRS. ROBERT B. LIGGETT,

Who Lectures on "Twilight Sleep" at the Majestic Next Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

AT THE MAJESTIC

"Miss U. S. A.," Real Musical Entertainment, Tonight.

Francis T. Reynolds has made a decided improvement over the ordinary musical comedy in "Miss U. S. A." at the Majestic tonight. This play by Francis T. Reynolds has a well-defined fantastic romance woven through it and the music is fitted to the play rather than used as incidental, as is so common in the general makeup of musical comedies. "Miss U. S. A." takes you through beautiful scenes, entertains with clever dances and ensembles, makes you feel younger and you leave the theater whistling or humming the many haunting melodies with which "Miss U. S. A." is so replete. Special scenic effects are carried by this company.

"Twilight Sleep" Lecture and Motion Pictures for Women Only.

Fort Wayne will have its first opportunity to investigate twilight sleep, the much heralded painless method of child birth, during the coming week, when lectures and motion pictures on the subject will be given at 2:15 and 8:15 p. m., beginning Wednesday, at the Majestic theater.

Mrs. Robert B. Liggett, of St. Paul, Minn., whose views on motherhood have caused a sensation all over the country, and who is urging that women demand that science make maternity easier, will give the lecture and will tell details about the origin, preparation and application of scopolamin, the drug which is used as the basis of twilight sleep, and will explain the technique of the treatment as it is used at Freiburg, Germany.

Illustrating the lecture will be motion pictures taken at the Freiburg hospital and showing an actual case of twilight sleep, with the memory tests, the oblivion to all suffering, and the rapid recovery of the mother. Featured in the pictures is Dr. Kurt E. Schlossingk, associate of the originators of twilight sleep, who has been in this country for more than a year conducting clinics in American hospitals, and who has personally delivered more than 500 twilight sleep babies in this country.

The pictures also give a demonstration of the proper way to clothe and bathe small babies, and of suitable and unsuitable maternity clothing.

The lectures and pictures are open to women only, because of the open discussion which follows, during which the audience may ask any questions and express opinions on twilight sleep.

AT THE PALACE

CURRENT BILL CLOSES TONIGHT.

The favorite bill of the entire season closes this evening at the New Palace. It is a bill that offers more novelty than is usually the portion of a half dozen vaudeville programs, for on it are Hunting and Francis, two members of the famous Four Huntings in "A Fool House," who are presenting the laugh of laughs, "Love Blossoms;" Violet MacMillan, the screen darling in the novelty, "In and Out of the Movies;" Fenton and Green, the absurd nut comedians; P. George, the musical chef; MacRae and Clegg, in their cycling wonder act, and Otto Koerner and company in the sketch, "The Automobile Broker."

The Coming Bills.

The coming week promises some rare entertainment with a special Labor day program for the first half of the week. The big sensation of the bill for the first four days is the Electrical Venus, one of the screamingly funny novelties of the age: Patricola and Meyers, the girl and the dancing fool, are also on the bill. They will be remembered for the hit they scored at the Palace a year ago. Others included in the first half program are Harry Hines, formerly of the team of Hines and Fox; George Fischer and company in the sketch, "Partners;" Arthur Angel and company in "A Real Soldier," and the Caranna Duo.

The Gus Edwards School Boys and Girls with nine people, will head the bill opening Thursday afternoon for three days. On the same program are Erwin and Jane Connelly in their famous old sketch, "Sweethearts," a vaudeville classic of the highest school; John and Winnie Hennings, the Kill-Care couple; Bert Kenney and Nobody in the absurdity, "Nobody's With Me;" Lewis and White, the singing comediennes, and Lew Fitzgibbons, xylophone master.

MISS ANN BERT.

Miss Bert is the leading lady with the new stock company which opens its season at the Temple theater the coming week.

PREPARE FOR CONVENTION.

Federated German Societies of Indiana to Meet Tomorrow.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 2.—Carl Dreisch, of Evansville, secretary of the Federated German Societies of Indiana, arrived in Indianapolis yesterday to prepare for the annual convention of the federation, which will be begun in the German house tomorrow. President Joseph H. Keller, of this city, said that 400 delegates, representing 22,000 members in thirty-seven cities, will attend the convention. Preliminary to the convention a reception will be held in the German house this evening. Governor Ralston and Mayor Bell will deliver addresses of welcome at the opening session tomorrow. The convention will be concluded Monday afternoon.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

A SMART STRIPED SKIRT

STRIPED materials and striped effects continue to hold a secure place in the fashion world. Here is a skirt that is distinctive enough to suit the most exclusive woman. Checked velour in black and white and black surah silk are the materials used to form the stripes. There is nothing very new in the style of the skirt, except in the length. It is predicted that for fall skirts will, in the majority of cases, be ankle length. Gathers are used at the top to produce fullness.

for the foundation of the belt, while two pieces of the checked material ornament the front and the back.

Separate skirts will be very much in evidence in the fall. Their popularity creates a demand for sports coats. As a rule, the latter are made to harmonize in color with the skirt with which they are worn. In some cases the whole coat will not bear out this statement, but there will be buttons, collars and cuffs or pockets of the skirt material to unite the two garments.

Lavender handkerchief linen has been used for the simple blouse. It gains a crisp air by means of pleated ruffles of lawn.

HINTS FOR NEEDLEWORKERS

IN MAKING a set of round doilies, a new discovery was made by sticking a narrow hem in the edge with a rather long machine stitch, then the crochet stitch could be easily made by catching in the machine stitching, with the hook to begin the edge for the lace, catching a loop of the thread in each machine stitch.

Hemstitching can be very easy and neatly done on the sewing machine in this way: draw the number of threads desired and baste the edge of the hem in the center of the drawn threads. Lengthen the stitch on the machine and stitch on the very edge of the hem. Pull the bastings out and pull the edge of the hem to the bottom of drawn threads.

In making a pin cushion, if a piece of pasteboard is inserted in the filling half way, it not only prevents the needles from being lost in the cushion, but keeps it in a better shape.

When the stitches give way in hemstitched articles, such as doilies, sheets, towels, table linens, etc., take some twisted embroidery cotton and featherstitch or herringbone neatly over the hem, catching each side firmly. This looks well and prolongs the wear indefinitely.

Hems of ruffles which become frayed may be easily opened with a paper cutter, trimmed, the edges turned in and stitched together on the machine.

Buy the plainer embroideries, where economy is a necessity. Select those of simple pattern done on the finer material, and give them a touch of handwork by an application of French knots where desirable. The lazy daisy is a simple stitch but a very effective addition on simple embroideries; large, open eyelets may be filled in with fagot stitch done from the back, resulting in an embroidery which could not be purchased for anything like the price of machine-made work.

If you have a pair of Russian net curtains, take the figures from one border, fell them on linen at regular intervals, join them with narrow scroll cut from the edge of the curtains, and edge the piece with the lace taken from the front edge of the curtains, and you will have a handsome centerpiece for your dining table.

Keep a small hammer on the sewing machine. A few sharp taps on a thick seam flatten it and cause it to pass easily under the presser foot. A hem may be turned, "hammered" lightly, and sewed without basting. The hammer passes smoothly and firmly over the fold of tucks, marks them, and prevents the goods from slipping when stitched.

A FOREIGN INVISION

TO THESE United States has come an invasion—foreign. In fashions there is the French pleating on the Russian blouse. America is going mad over Hawaiian music, and even eating from Japanese luncheon sets. These sets are very unique, a novelty as well; but who cares in this infestion of things "Japanesy"? The large centerpiece has full-length figures, grotesque in the extreme, and lanterns also, outlined in gay colors, around the border. With this set is included six plate-size doilies and six of the smaller size. The figures and decorations are, of course, smaller in comparison.

A CHEAP VACATION

"MOTHER'S going away!" gasped the youngest member of the family to his father as he met him at the front door. Yes, sir, she told Emma today, and showed her where everything was, and ordered stuff from the butcher, and she's upstairs packing now."

A puzzled frown puckered the forehead of the man of the house. He immediately sought out mother. "Son says you are going away—" he began.

"Yes," answered mother, with a mysterious smile. "I need a change."

"But, Mary, I thought you understood that I can't quite manage a trip for you or any of the family this year. Have you any money?"

"Oh, yes, I have a little. I'm not going far."

"But I don't think you have enough to pay railroad fare to anywhere that I can think of."

"Now listen, father. Of course, I shall tell you, but I don't want the children or Emma to know. I have 16 cents for carfare and 90 cents for sundaes, and I'm going to stay three days. You see, Kate Berkeley and myself have seen very little of each other since we have married, especially since she moved across town to that lovely new house. Now, Kate's husband is away on a business trip, and she has asked me to come over and keep her company, and I've decided to go. Emma can manage you all for three days. I'm going to pretend that I'm spending the week-end out of town, and I'm taking my best clothes; and there is going to be a bridge tomorow and an auto ride and dinner the next night. I haven't been away from you since we have been married, and I don't think this will hurt either of us. Am I right?"

Of course, she was right, and her husband agreed, and the secret was kept, even when son fell off the shed roof the next day and developed a sprained ankle, and Emma forgot to send for father's shirts when the laundry didn't deliver them, and father couldn't find the new ones which mother had put away. And mother came back looking five years younger, and everybody said what good the "sea air" had done for her.

CHARMING NEGLIGEE SET

NOW, honestly and truly, would you mind sitting opposite the dainty negligee and cap for seven breakfasts in the week? Even if you were sorely set against negligees in general, and boudoir caps in particular? Of course, you wouldn't, especially when you learn that the set need not represent an immense amount of money to the woman who wears it or the hubby who pays for it.

Almost any girl can make this set herself and feel assured that she has something especially dainty to tuck away in her hope chest or trousseau collection. Lace chiffon and silk are all required in the making. A lace or embroidered net flouncing is used, with its edge pointing upward and sewed or hemstitched to plain chiffon for the skirt of the short negligee. By lengthening the chiffon portion, the negligee may be made full or three-quarter length. Cords covered with the silk used for the yoke portion are run thru the bottom of the net skirt to give it something of a flare.

The sleeve is cleverly fashioned by using several points of the flouncing with a puff of the chiffon. The sleeve cap, as well as the yoke with which it is cut in one piece, is of taffeta or soft satin.

Three collars top the negligee, one of the silk on top, another of the pointed flouncing, and a third of the chiffon bound with the silk. Tie ribbons of the silk are caught with roses made of the chiffon.

The little cap, which resembles the familiar student tam, also uses the three materials. The crown is a circle of the silk, while the chiffon makes the puff, and a graduated ruffle of the pointed edging falls down the back to cover the back of the coiffure. Chiffon roses run their pretty way around the silk crown.

NOVEL BAGS

BAGS, in their turn, have shown a frivolous side, which was heretofore least suspected. One cunning little one is made of old rose silk and has three ruffles of the same color gayly sewn across it just below the opening. Another, made of silk also and shirred from top to bottom, makes a fascinating little bag, tho not very practical. And even to handbags has descended the Russian effect. There is one made of white linen with a wide pink stripe. Just below the middle is a belt of the same material fastened by a button and buttonhole. None of these may be very practical, but for one looking for something dainty, these offer novelty at least.

Chocolate Stains

I would like you to print for me a formula to remove chocolate stains which I got on a pink linen dress. VERA L. K.

Sprinkle the stain with borax. Soak in cold water. Use boiling water.

Curtain Veils

I would like to know how to arrange a veil over the hat in a becoming way. Miss D. L.

CHILDREN ARE RUN DOWN BY MACHINES

The Son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Smith, 1010 Wilt street, was slightly injured Friday afternoon when he ran directly in front of an auto truck driven by H. W. Bolihaure. The accident occurred on Wells street. Dr. E. E. Morgan was called to examine the child, but found no bones broken.

A small girl was knocked to the pavement at the corner of Hayden and Lillie street when struck by the automobile of G. E. Graham. The girl would not give her name. She was slightly bruised.

A bicycle belonging to Herbert Belty, 3209 South Harrison street, was demolished and the youth injured about the face and arms when he was hit by an automobile at the corner of Baker and Harrison streets Friday evening. The machine hurried on with no attempt to disclose identity of the driver.

MINE WILL BE SENT HERE.

J. C. King, petty officer in charge of the Fort Wayne navy recruiting station, announces a "mine" will be sent here for exhibition the week of September 11, when the Buffaloes will give their circus. Mr. King will give a demonstration each day of the circus. The mine is furnished through the lieutenant commander at Washington.

LAFAYETTE PLACE LOTS IN DEMAND

Despite the fact that real estate men regarded August as a handicap for their business, the Lafayette Place company was much gratified because of the sales of Lafayette Place lots made during the past month. Property in this new addition is proving exceedingly popular among those who are looking for future home sites because of the numerous advantages and the restrictions placed upon this tract and many of the choice lots are being eagerly sought after. However, there are still many of the best locations unsold and the company anticipates another rush for these during the good weather promised for the next few weeks. For further details see the Wildwood Sales Company, Shoaff building.—Adv.

TO EXAMINE ALL SCHOOL CHILDREN

At the beginning of the term is the order from the board. This examination conducted by the school physicians cannot uncover every case, but does untold good. Teachers and those having experience with children agree they can't study when made nervous, irritable and unattentive by bad eyesight.

Meigs, the eyesight specialist, gives the most careful examination in the city. You, as a wise parent, want advice, not only for, but against glasses if not needed. You can have this advice without charge by calling at the Meigs' Optical Shop, 1012 Calhoun street.—Advertisement.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

DISSENSION IN UNION RANKS BECOMES ACUTE

High Feeling Manifested in Brotherhood Confab at Chicago.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 2.—Reported dissension in union ranks gave officials of the railroad brotherhoods in Chicago considerable anxiety today. T. A. Gregg, vice president of the Order of Railway Conductors met representatives of conductors on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road, who, according to officials of the road, yesterday voted to disregard the strike order. There were indications of high feeling among those present at the conference.

Timothy Shea, vice president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, today denied rumors of dissension.

"These tales don't scare me," said Mr. O'Shea. "Most of them originate or get their growth in railroad offices. Even if locals here and there don't vote to strike they will go out when the time comes. Unless the order is rescinded every one will quit Monday.

HITCHCOCK GOING ON WESTERN TRIP

Chicago, Sept. 2.—Frank H. Hitchcock, member of the republican national advisory committee, will leave in a few days for a trip through the west in the interest of Hughes and Fairbanks. He will visit every state regarded as close or doubtful or where there is lack of harmony in the local organization, and give the leaders the benefit of his experience in managing campaigns.

Miss Harriet E. Vittum today assumed charge of the women's bureau at the western republican headquarters, to direct the campaign in the twelve suffrage states.

DISTRESS CALLS NOT FROM ANY U. S. WARSHIP

Washington, Sept. 2.—Distress calls picked up by steamers in the vicinity of Cristobal canal zone and reported to have been sent out by a naval vessel did not come from any American warship, navy department officials say.

None was in the vicinity mentioned. Responses received by the department from a broadcast wireless query asking vessels whether they were in distress, indicated no trouble among them.

All evening classes will begin with the week beginning September 11. The children's classes will begin with the opening of the schools.

STATE FAIR READY TO OPEN.

Shipments of Blooded Live Stock Reach Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Sept. 2.—Shipments of blooded live stock for exhibit at the Indiana state fair next week began arriving here today. Officials of the fair said all preparations for opening the fair will be completed and carried out Monday morning regardless of the outcome of the strike situation. As interurban roads bring many of the fair visitors to the city, the officials said they had not been worried about the attendance, although the strike might materialize.

ARGUMENTS UNDER WAY.

Effort is Made to Get New Trial for Muncie Man.

Muncie, Ind., Sept. 2.——Arguments on the motion for a new trial for Gene Williams, formerly deputy prosecuting attorney, convicted last June on a charge of conspiracy to solicit bribes, began today before Fred Gauze, special judge. Irregularities in the selection of the jury, and alleged technical errors, are charged in the written motion for the new trial.

SUCCUMBS TO INJURIES

Curtis Gosnell, Muncie Race Driver, Dies at Cleveland.

CRIMINAL PROBE TO FOLLOW BOY'S DEATH

Witnesses Will Be Called to Tell How Auto Came to Hit Lad.

Stringent investigation to determine whether criminal action will be brought against Joseph Granney, 1226 East Wayne street, employe in the Wayne Oil Tank works, is to follow the death of Ralph Stoll, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs Otto Stoll, 614 Packard avenue, who was struck by Granney's automobile three weeks ago.

The boy died Friday night in the Lutheran hospital from injuries sustained when he was hit by the automobile on August 20. The accident occurred on the Bluffton road, near the Allen county poor farm.

Operation performed on the lad in an effort to save his life Friday proved futile. Post-mortem examination revealed that death was due to ruptured intestines and other internal injuries. Three physicians held the autopsy.

There is no dispute as to the cause of the boy's death. The question hinges on whether or not Granney is guilty of criminal negligence and should be charged with manslaughter. County Prosecutor Frank Emrick says he will make a thorough investigation.

Four Witnesses Known.

Four witnesses to the accident are known. They are Will Wright, Rudisill boulevard, employed at the Packard Piano factory; Ben Boyce, employed in the Wabash shops, and two daughters of Frank Adams, who lives on Gay street. The two girls were in Foster park and saw the accident at a distance. The men were passing along the road several yards away.

Emrick will call the witnesses to his office on Tuesday. He will also question physicians and attendants at the Lutheran hospital who are said to have heard the boy's story of the accident before his death.

Granney is said to have paid a visit to the hospital and to have attempted to convince the boy that he was not to blame for the lad's injuries on last Tuesday.

Granney says he is not accountable for the death of the boy. The youth stood directly in front of his machine, Granney says, while Granney was trying to get the car out of the ditch. When the automobile started it leaped forward and the boy, who was directly in its path, was knocked down. Granney took the boy to his home. The lad was afterwards removed to the hospital.

Different Version.

The unfortunate boy had a different version of the circumstances of the accident. A few hours before he passed away he related the same story to his father.

According to the father the boy's story is as follows: "Papa, I was coming along the road when I noticed the machine was stuck in the ditch. I rode on a little farther under a tree and kept sitting on my bicycle leaning against the tree in the shade. I was as far away from the machine as it is from the front of our lot to our barn (approximately 125 feet). All at once the machine got out of the hole and came awfully fast and struck my bicycle from the back and threw me down."

The lad was a member of Salem Reformed church, having been confirmed in the class last spring. Besides the grief-stricken parents he is survived by one brother, Harry, and two sisters, Matilda and Helen Stoll, both of this city.

ASKS AN INJUNCTION TO CLOSE BURLESQUE

Indianapolis, Sept. 2.—A suit asking that an injunction be issued to prevent the operation of the Columbia theater along certain lines described in the complaint, was filed today in superior court by Prosecuting Attorney A. J. Rucker.

The burlesque performances given at the theater are such that the place is a public nuisance, because it is resorted to for purposes of lewdness, he alleges. The Indianapolis church federation furnished the prosecutor with the information on which he based the suit. A hearing on the question of a temporary injunction will be held next week.

RIVALS IN PERFECT FORM.

Welsh and White Resting for Monday's Go at Colorado Springs.

Colorado Springs, Col., Sept. 2.—After their workouts today Freddie Welsh and Charley White will rest until they meet next Monday afternoon in their twenty round battle for the lightweight championship of the world. On Monday morning at 9 o'clock they will weigh in and neither expects to move the beam, which will be set at 135 pounds. The principals, their managers and trainers and their assistants are a unit as to the perfect condition of the rival fighters. The local betting has been at even or short odds in favor of the champion.

VILLA NEEDS AMMUNITION.

Bandit Chieftain Reported Headed for Galeana District.

Chihuahua City, Mex., Sept. 2.—Francisco Villa with his main band is reported near the Mexican Northwestern railway, about sixty miles west of here.

It is generally believed he is attempting to make his way to caches of ammunition in the Galeana district.

BECOMES CRAZED IN CROWDED STREET CAR

Colored Man Fires Shots at His Wife, Then Ends Own Life.

Indianapolis, Sept. 2.—One is dead and two injured as the result of Thomas Dorsey, colored, becoming crazed on a crowded street car here today and firing a number of shots down the aisle of the car at his wife. Dorsey committed suicide when cornered in the car by a policeman. His wife is injured seriously. Another colored woman was shot in the knee. A panic among the passengers followed the first shot and car windows were broken as men and women tried to get out of the car. The Dorseys had been having domestic trouble and got in the car together to go to a lawyer's office to get advice about a divorce, it was said.

TROOPS WILL MOVE 175 MILES BY MOTOR TRUCK

San Antonio, Tex., Sept. 2.—The First and Second regiments of Kansas infantry, now stationed at Eagle Pass, today will be brought to San Antonio to replace the two Illinois regiments ordered home, it was announced by Major General Funston this morning. The trip, 175 miles long, will be made in motor trucks in order that a thorough test may be had of the value of the machines for troop carrying in the border country.

Three Ohio and three Kentucky regiments now en route are expected to reach El Paso early next week.

WABASH IS FIRST TO LIFT EMBARGO HERE

Every freight agent in Fort Wayne will probably have received notice of the lifting of the embargo placed upon all classes of freight on account of the threatened strike by 6 o'clock tonight. The local Wabash officials received such information from headquarters at 2 o'clock this afternoon and the agents of the other lines are expecting similar news concerning their respective roads at any moment. According to information received here, the Erie road was the first through line east of Chicago to lift the embargo.

FOOD PRICES BEGIN TO DROP.

Passing of Strike Crisis Shown at Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Sept 2.—Food prices began to recede in Indianapolis today as a result of reports that the strike crisis was passed. The decline principally was in the lines which had shown abnormal tendencies to increase, among them being potatoes, which were quoted from $5.50 to $6.50 a barrel. The highest price reached in the last few days was $6.50. Many farmers appeared on market today, apparently hoping to dispose of their produce at the high prices. Meat prices, especially pork, will continue high, dealers said.

Washington, Sept. 2.—Bids will be opened Tuesday at the navy department for a fleet of thirty hydroaeroplanes for the navy aviation school at Pensacola, Fla. All must be delivered within sixty-nine days, make a maximum speed of sixty and seventy miles an hour but with limited endurance as they are designed for school work only.

WILLIAM K. TEEN.

William K. Teen, a few years ago a resident of this city, has been selected by the National City Bank of New York to enter its collegiate banking class. Mr. Teen completed his secondary education in the Jersey City high school and is this year a graduate of Columbia university. Having specialized in economics and banking and being proficient in foreign languages, he was chosen by his university according to the co-operative educational plan of the National City bank, to enter its collegiate banking class. As a member of this class he will spend a year in the National City bank preparing himself for service in its branches abroad. Mr. Teen is a son of Kaleel Teen, dry goods merchant.

COMMISSION APPROVES PERE MARQUETTE PLAN

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 2—Plans for complete reorganization of the Pere Marquette railroad, with capital stock of $105,000,000 and elimination of the receivership, unanimously were approved by the Michigan railroad commission today. The plan provides for issuance of new stock and bond issues. These securities will be exchanged for securities which now are outstanding.

The total bond issue, as approved, is $36,000,000, the preferred stock issue is to be $24,000,000 and common stock $45,000,000. The plan provides that the fixed interest charges will be reduced from $4,000,000 to $1,500,000 per annum and that $16,000,000 of the new funds will be used to discharge receivers' certifiates and to purchase new equipment.

ANTS ARE PROHIBITIONISTS.

Enforce Law Rigorously, Declares Scientist in Lecture.

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 2.—National prohibition is enforced by the death penalty among ants, according to a lecture given at the St. Jasper county teachers' institute by Dr. C. S. Schmucker, vice president of Notre Dame university. Dr. Schmucher credited his remarks to an authority on ants, who said he had experimented by placing sugar soaked with alcohol where ants could get it. Some of the little insects ate the sugar and became intoxicated.

Other ants found them, reported to the ant hill and soon returned with reinforcements. The intoxicated ants were dragged to a tiny stream and drowned, the speaker said.

WATER HAS WHISKY TINGE

Barrel Used at Brazil Chautauqua Brings Forth Protest.

Brazil, Ind., Sept. 2.—Advocates of strict temperance registered a strenuous objection to the manner in which water was supplied at the recent Brazil chautauqua. So that the water might be iced, it was run into a barrel on an elevated platform and drained out through a spigot. Care to please the temperance element was not exercised in supplying the barrel. It once had contained whisky, and the water had such a strong liquor taste that some declared it had been "spiked."

CARP PROVING NUISANCE.

Fulton County Farmer Pumps Lake Dry to Get Rid of Them.

Rochester, Ind., Sept. 2.—Carp in a lake on the farm of Bert Dudgeon near here have become so numerous they are a nuisance. Every effort to get rid of them has failed. Dudgeon now has a tractor at work operating a pump which is taking 1,000 gallons of water a minute from the lake. He expects to pump the lake dry, kill the carp, let the lake refill and then restock it with more desirable fish.

ADJOURN THURSDAY, IS PLAN.

Senate Democrats and Republicans Counting On It.

Washington, Sept. 2.—Senate democrats and republicans are counting on adjournment of congress Thursday, Sept. 7.

"We will adjourn Thursday," said Senator Simmons. "I do not think anything can delay the session beyond that time. The senate has made up its mind not to take up Senator Owen's corrupt practices bill."

Senator Smoot also said congress would adjourn Thursday.

HUNTINGTON COUPLE WED.

Hillsdale, Mich., Sept. 2.—Earl S. Larr and Leah J. Benner, both of Huntington, Ind., were married here yesterday morning at the Presbyterian Manse, Rev. J. W. Will officiating.

BROTHERHOOD MEN TO WAIT FOR SIGNATURE

Will Not Cancel Strike Order Until President Has Signed Law.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2.—At a meeting of the thirteen brotherhood officials in Washington today it was formally decided that cancellation of the strike order should not be sent out until President Wilson actually had signed the eight hour bill.

Another meeting of the officials will be held tonight after the senate has acted on the house bill. At that time there is a possibility that the decision might be changed.

In the debate on the proposed law in the senate today Senator Sherman, republican, assailed the efforts of the brotherhoods and of other labor organizations to prevent a compulsory arbitration law.

"It is the senate that is to be put under involuntary servitude," said he. "I have been sought to be put under involuntary servitude. If legislation has fallen to so low a degree, if we are ready so servicely to abandon our duty then American politics have reached the point where the few and not the many govern."

Senator Sherman charged President Wilson with making "a petty political bargain" on the eve of election and read a telegram from an actors' union in Chicago, opposing compulsory arbitration.

"So next," he continued, "it is the white rats that are to be legislated for. If we legislate for the engineers the firemen and the brakemen, we must legislate for all from the barnstormers to the genius who portrays the human passions."

He pictures congress legislating while the unions stand stopwatch in hand to see legislation is passed on time.

Senators McCumber and Brandegee, republicans, both opposed the pending bill.

Senator Weeks said the brotherhood men had put congress in the position of "stand and deliver." He said he believed that a majority of the trainmen do not want a strike and that if it were called it would last but a few days.

"If congress accedes to this demand," he added, "it is an end, temporarily at least, to representative government."

Senator Gallinger submitted a telegram from a New Hampshire bartenders' union protesting against any legislation which would impose involuntary servitude. Mr. Gallinger opposed the bill.

Senator Reed denied congress was showing cowardice in passing the measure. He said the bill was designed to meet an emergency, that the brotherhood leaders were not attempting to force congress to legislate and that there were many senators opposing the bill who would not dare vote against it unless they felt sure it would have enough votes to pass without theirs.

"I find myself in the position where I cannot support the bill," said Senator Kenyon, of Iowa. "I think the Underwood amendment would destroy union labor and I do not believe it should be destroyed.

"I am opposed to this bill because it is humbug," said Senator Kenoyn. The men will find theselves after nine months just where they were before, with a strike on their hands. Furthermore, I am opposed to the bill because congress is abdicating its right to reasonable judgment and mediation.

NO STRIKE THERE, ANYHOW.

Soo Line Forces Said to Have Reached That Decision.

Minneapolis, Sept. 2.—G. R. Huntington, general manager of the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Saulte Ste Marie railroad announced today that 'at a conference with representatives of our conductors and brakemen last night, it was agreed there would be no strike on the "Soo line" regardless of any action taken elsewhere."

Engineers and firemen did not take a strike vote because of a contract with the road.

STRIKE-BREAKERS EN ROUTE.

Erie, Pa., Sept. 2.—A train of seven coaches filled with men who said they had been employed as strike-breakers in the event of a railroad strike reached here on the Erie railroad, bound for the east just before noon. The men declared they were hungry, and demanded something to eat before proceeding on their journey. Efforts were made at the station to provide them with food. Some of the men, it was said, left the train here.

MISS DETROIT WILL HAVE TO SHOW SPEED

Contending Water Craft Has Shown 66 Miles an Hour in Competition.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 2.—Opposed by five of the fastest water craft in the world, Miss Detroit, defender, was expected to be taxed to the limit in her efforts to win again the gold cup in the national powerboat races, which begin with a thirty-mile heat here late this afternoon.

The boats, which have power plants ranging from 130 to 640 horse-power, received their final tuning up in the Detroit river this forenoon. One of them, Miss Minneapolis, is credited with having made more than 66 miles an hour in competition. The other contenders are Baby Maronld and Miss Hamtrack, of Detroit, and Hawkeye and Peter Pan VIII, of New York. Ankle Deep, too, another eastern boat, was eligible, but was not expected to start.

Three heats of thirty miles each are to be raced, the second and third being scheduled for Monday and Tuesday.

FOE PLANES DROPPED BOMBS ON PORT SAID

Some Casualties But No Property Damage, is Report.

London, Sept. 2.—3 p. m.—A British official statement regarding the situation in Egypt says:

"Hostile aeroplanes dropped bombs on Port Said on Friday. Twenty-five missiles were thrown. There were some casualties but no property damage.

"In the operations near Katia last month three more machine guns and 15,000 rounds of ammunition were brought in."

After an audience lasting two hours on Thursday with King Constantine, of Greece, which gave rise to persistent rumors, Premier Zaimis, according to a dispatch filed at Athens yesterday by the correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph company, said that Greece maintained her policy of friendly neutrality toward the entente powers while awaiting events.

THE COURTS.

Annoyed by Her Husband.

Important Addition Made to State Land Department Records.

Indianapolis, Sept. 2.—The activity of the state board of accounts has resulted in the placing on file in the land department of the state more than 500 maps, each one a graphic index to the complex and numerous ancietn records for more than 75,000 titles to property within the state. They present at a glance all erroneous titles and have become part of the records of the land department of the state. A report of the work will be made to Governor Ralston by G. H. Hendren, state examiner for the board of accounts, in the near future.

The work was done to place the state land department upon a uniform system of abstracting the titles to thousands of now valuable tracts which originally were donated to the state by the federal government. At one time these lands sold from 50 cents to $3.50 an acre. Many errors were made years ago by officers executing the land patents, and only a special act by the legislature now can correct the mistakes.

The records show that what was known as the Vincennes donation was located in what now are Pike, Knox, Gibson, Davies and Sullivan counties. The proceeds of the sales of that land were supposed to have been used for an institution of learning, and after about 4,000 acres had been sold the fund became the nucleus for the Vincennes university. The titles to the remaining lands in that district since have been the subject of much legislation and litigation.

Other donations made to the state school fund records show, consisted of 650,317 acres, which had been sold, and 719.6 acres unsold. The land is in all partes of the state. The donation of that land was in 1821.

A later donation in 1826-1847, consisting of seven grants, included 1,457,366 acres. The number of patents issued for that land is 36,000. In 1850 congress gave the state 1,252,708 acres more in 72 counties. It consisted of swamp and overflow land and was sold for $1.25 an acre. The state received $1,750,752.15 from those sales, the investigations of the state board of accounts shows. Because of innumerable blunders in the transfer of the land the title to many acres still is in the state.

Grant of land of which there is no record in the state land department included 45,000 acres in Clark and Scott counties, known as the Illinois grant, given by the state of Virginia to her troops in 1786, and specifically reserved for the troops which served in General Clark's campaign against Kaskaskia in 1789.

The land federal donation to the state was in 1862, and consisted of 13,000 acres for each senator and representative in congress. Indiana's share of that donation was in "land script," sold for $212,238. Indiana had no land within its borders which could be given to it, so the script had to be issued. The proceeds of that sale became the nucleus of the fund which established Purdue university.

POPE BENEDICT HAS FORMALLY PROTESTED

Objects to Seizure of Palace Used by Diplomat Accredited to Holy See.

Berlin, Sept. 2.—By wireless to Sayville).—Pope Benedict, according to the Vossische Zeitung, has formally protested against the seizure by the Italian government of the ancient palace of the republic of Venice, the Palazzo di Venezia in Rome. The palace was being used by the Austro-Hungarian ambassador accredited to the Holy See.

Austria-Hungary, the newspaper says, already has transmited a protest through the Spanish embassy against the seizure, declaring that Italy by the convention of August 24, 1866, recognized the inviolability of the palace and pointing that the seizure in addition infringes upon the right of the pontiff to maintain diplomatic relations with the foreign powers.

A decree issued by the Italian government on August 27, said the palace was confiscated as a measure of reprisal for "abominable violations of international law and devastation of monuments and buildings in Venice without any military motives."

Athens, Sept. 1.—(Midnight, via London, Sept. 2, 8:05 p. m., Precede London.)—The French flag today was hoisted on four German and three Austrian merchant ships seized by boarding parties in the harbor of Piraeus.

SHOP AND RAILROAD NEWS

Pennsylvania Road Foreman of Engines Hanna to Enlarge Crew List.

The increasing freight business on the Pennsylvania is the occasion for creating some more crews on the Western division. Road Foreman of Engines John H. Hanna issued a bulletin two weeks ago stating that he would add ten crews to the list. The assignments have been placed in the hands of Joseph C. Brake, who is now at work upon them. So far he has arranged for transfer of five firemen from the high class freight service to extra passenger firemen, but has not made the other assignments. The firemen promoted are J. W. Krick, S. J. Dill, C. R. Scheckler, C. Stahlhut and W. F. Herber.

IRON WORKERS' PICNIC.

Program One of Best Ever Gotten Up for Purpose.

The Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, No. 147, who changed the date of holding their all-day picnic and athletic tournament from Labor day to Sunday on account of another demonstration by labor unions, have completed arrangements for the event at Centlivre park and anticipate a big crowd and a good time. The local has taken the precaution to guard against storm interference with the festivities and has erected three large tents in which the exercises will be held if it rains, thus assuring their guests a good time, even if the weather conditions are bad. Barner's orchestra has been engaged to furnish the music. One of the officials of the union said this morning that the public would be welcome at the picnic and he hoped to see many people there from outside iron worker circles. Local No. 147, which only had twelve members early in the spring, now has nearly 100 members and is growing rapidly. At the meeting Thursday night seven applicants were initiated and seven others were voted upon and will be admitted to the union at a future meeting.

WARNS AGAINST DELAY.

New York Central Issues Notice Concerning Threatened Strike.

The New York Central railway has sent out a notice warning passengers that there may be delay in travel in event the threatened strike materializes, and states that all tickets are sold with the understanding that the railway can not be responsible for such delay. The notice as received at the local station reads as follows: "All tickets issued by this company or by the company lines for transportation to points on or via the New York Central are subject to restricted train service and indefinite delay. All employes will see that the public is fully informed as to this notice."

TO LAFAYETTE FOR A BRIDE

An affair occurred at Lafayette today which will have to be accounted for to the men and women connected with the transformer engineering department of the General Electric works when the person who took the chief role reports there for duty in a week or two. The offender is A. J. Magley and the offense is getting married without giving his associates due notice in advance. The bride is said to be a most attractive and popular resident of Lafayette, but none here knew her name. Mr. Magley has been employed in the transformer engineering department of the General Electric works ever since he graduated from Purdue university in 1914. He is a member of the Electric Works band and also of the American Institute of Electric Engineers. His return with his bride is awaited with considerable interest.

NOT STRIKE-BREAKERS.

The Bellevue Gazette says: "Local officials of the Nickel Plate deny any knowledge of plans for the use of strike-breakers in the event of a railroad strike being called. Bunk cars which recently have been fitted out here and now are standing in the yards are for the accommodation of negroes who are to be employed on track work at Cleveland, it was said at the company offices here today."

TRAINMEN HOLD MEETINGS

Notices have been posted at the Pennsylvania round house, announcing special meetings of all train and yard service men which are being held at United hall for the purpose of receiving special instructions pertaining to the eight-hour movement. The first meeting was held on Friday night, and other meetings were announced for Saturday at 9 o'clock a. m. and 2 and 7:45 p. m., also on Sunday at 9 a. m. and 2 and 7:45 p. m.

GOES TO DETROIT TO WORK.

William Bernhard, foreman of the grinding department of the hand screw room at the General Electric works, has resigned. He has secured a better position in a factory in Detroit, and will leave for that city tomorrow. Mr. Bernhard has been employed at the General Electric works for fourteen years and is quite well and favorably known to the employes there and many people in other circles.

WABASH SHOPS ARE RUNNING.

The Wabash shops were in operation for eight hours today to complete some repairs on locomotives that could not be laid over until after Labor Day. Ordinarily the Wabash shops do not run on Saturdays. There is lots of work on hand at present, however, and the works have been more or less crippled the past two weeks by men being away on vacations or for other reasons.

WRITES FROM BORDER.

R. E. Sullivan, who was formerly an airbrake inspector at the Pennsy roundhouse and who is now a member of Company E, on the border, has written a card to his brother, E. J. Sullivan, clerk in the master mechanic's office. The young man states that the soldiers are in comfortable circumstances, and tells something of their life on the border.

MISS SACKMAN RESIGNS.

Miss Myrtle Sackman, stenographer and clerk at the office of Division Storekeeper E. L. Ensel, of the Wabash for two or three years, resigned yesterday and was succeeded by Miss Gesine E. Rippe. Miss Sackman, as previously stated by The Sentinel, will be married Wednesday, September 20, to Earl Thomson, a machinist employed in the Wabash shops at Toledo.

TWO MEN INJURED.

Two employes of the Pennsylvania car machine shop sustained injuries while at work yesterday which will keep them off duty for a few days. J. A. Henry suffered a badly bruised foot, when an iron rod fell on him, and P. J. Schenk was injured about the legs by a piece of iron flying from a drill press.

HOPI INDIANS PERFORM ANNUAL SNAKE DANCE WITH POISONOUS RATTLERS GRIPPED IN TEETH.

Hopi Indians performing weird snake dance.

Winslow, Ariz., Aug. 30.—The annual Snake Dance ceremony of the Hopi Indians, in which rattlesnakes, poison-fanged, are held in the teeth of the dancers, has just come to a glorious finish on the reservation near here.

Assured that this "making of mighty medicine" will overpower the magic of the gods of the four world-quarters, the clouds and the lightning and bring rains for the corn crop, the Hopi priests and their tribesmen have once again returned to the routine of life.

The hundreds of tourists who saw the fascinating rites have gone their way into the outside world. Life is normal once more in the squat villages of eastern Arizona. It will remain so until next year at this time when the tribal ceremonies will be enacted again.

For years these swarthy sons of the "Painted Desert" conducted their celebration in carefully guarded and sacred solitudes of the sands, but as civilization came closer the high priests decreed that the white man and his squaw could see the spectacular features of the dances. But even now the more sacred rites are performed in underground kivas or temples, which no one but the elect may enter.

In five Hopi villages each year, two fraternities co-operate during August in the presentation of ceremonies which last nine days. The fraternities are the Blue and Drab Flute and the Antelope and Snake.

The snake dance, owing to the weirdness of the performance on the ninth day, has become the most popular of the celebrations and is the chief magnet for tourists, although the other fetes are vastly interesting.

From sixty to eighty snakes are caught on the desert mesas during the first days of the ceremony. They are held in jars in the sacred kivas until the morning of the dance, when carriers take the jars to the plaza. Barbarously bedecked priests, each trying to outdo the others in splendor of dress, march slowly to the dancing grounds. As they pass the carriers each priest receives a snake.

The writhing reptiles are gripped in the teeth of the dancers and the spectacle begins. At times snakes wriggle from the mouths of the dancers and are scooped up by the carriers and again placed into the hands of the priests. The dance continues, the priests marking a huge circle as they wave the snakes about their heads. Near the end, one of the priests draws a circle on the ground with sacred meal and the dancers toss the snakes onto the spot. As they wind around this place each man plunges his hands into the wriggling mass and brings up as many snakes as he can seize. At the finish the snakes are released on the desert mesas to wriggle away to freedom.

The big mystery of the ceremony is that the priests are seldom bitten by the snakes and when one does receive a wound he does not die. The Hopis do not remove the poison fangs and, so far as is known, have on antidote for the poison.

Magic, the Indians say, keeps the priests from harm. The rattlesnakes are afraid to bite them.

SENTINEL WANT ADS ALWAYS GET RESULTS

Long Brand, N. J., Sept. 2.—The complete text of President Wilson's address accepting the democratic nomination for the presidency is as follows:

"Senator James, Gentlemen of the Notification Committee, Fellow Citizens: I cannot accept the leadership and responsibility which the national democratic convention has again, in such generous fashion, asked me to accept without first expressing my profound gratitude to the party for the trust it reposes in me after four years of fiery trial in the midst of affairs of unprecedented difficulty, and the keen sense of added responsibility with which this honor fills (I had almost said burdens) me as I think of the great issues of national life and policy involved in the present and immediate future conduct of our government. I shall seek, as I have always sought, to justify the extraordinary confidence thus reposed in me by striving to purge my heart and purpose of every personal and of every misleading party motive and devoting every energy I have to the service of the nation as a whole, praying that I may continue to have the counsel and support of all forward-looking men at every turn of the difficult business.

"For I do not doubt that the people of the United States will wish the democratic party to continue in control of the government. They are not in the habit of rejecting those who have actually served them for those who are making doubtful and conjectural promises of service. Least of all are they likely to substitute those who promised to render them particular services and proved false to that promise for those who have actually rendered those very services.

No Disposition to oBast.

"Boasting is always an empty business, which pleases nobody but the boaster, and I have no disposition to boast of what the democratic party has accomplished. It has merely done its duty. It has merely fulfilled its explicit promises. But there can be no violation of good taste in calling attention to the matter in which those promises have been carried out or in adverting to the interesting fact that many of the things accomplished were what the opposition party had again and again promised to do but had left undone. Indeed that is manifestly part of the business of this year of reckoning and assessment. There is no means of judging the future except by assessing the past. Constructive action must be weighed against destructive comment and reaction. The democrats either have or have not understood the varied interests of the country. The test is contained in the record.

What Is the Record?

"What is that record? What were the democrats called into power to do? What things had long waited to be done, and how did the democrats do them? It is a record of extraordinary length and variety, rich in elements of many kinds, but consistent in principle throughout and susceptible of brief recital.

"The republican party was put out of power because of failure, practical failure and moral failure; because it had served special interests and not the country at large; because, under the leadership of its preferred and established guides, of those who still make its choices, it had lost touch with the thoughts and the needs of the nation and was living in a past age and under a fixed illusion, the illusion of greatness. It had framed tariff laws based upon a fear of foreign trade, a fundamental doubt as to American skill, enterprise and capacity, and a very tender regard for the profitable privileges of those who had gained control of domestic markets and domestic credits; and yet had enacted anti-trust laws which hampered the very things they meant to foster, which were stiff and inelastic, and in part unintelligible. It had permitted the country throughout the long period of its control to stagger from one financial crisis to another under the operation of a national banking law of its own framing which made stringency and panic certain and the control of the larger business operations of the country by the bankers of a few reserve centers inevitable; had made as if it meant to reform the law but had faintheartedly failed in the attempt, because it could not bring itself to do the one thing necessary to make the reform genuine and effectual, namely, break up the control of small groups of bankers.

Oblivious or Indifferent.

"It had been oblivious, or indifferent to the fact that the farmers, upon whom the country depends for its food and in the last analysis for its prosperity, were without standing in the matter of commercial credit, without the protection of standards in their market transactions, and without systematic knowledge of the markets themselves; that the laborers of the country, the great army of men who man the industries it was professing to father and promote, carried their labor as a mere commodity to market, were subject to restraint by novel and drastic process in the courts, were without assurance of compensation for industrial accidents, without federal assistance in accommodating labor disputes, and without national aid or advice in finding the places and the industries in which ther labor was most needed. The country had no national system of road construction and development. Little intelligent attention was paid to the army, and not enough to the navy. The other republics of America distrusted us, because they found that we thought first of the profits of American investors and only as an afterthought of impartial justice and helpful friendship. Its policy was provincial in all things: its purposes were out of harmony with the temper and purpose of the people and the timely development of the nation's interests.

Since Democracy Came.

"So things stood when the democratic party came into power. How do they stand now? Alike in the domestic field and in the wide field of the commerce of the world. American business and life and industry have been set free to move as they never moved before.

"The tariff has been revised, not on the principle of repelling foreign trade, but upon the principle of encouraging it, upon something like a footing of equality with our own in respect of the terms of competition, and a tariff board has been created whose function it will be to keep the relations of American with foreign business and industry under constant observation, for the guidance alike of our business men and of our congress. American energies are now directed towards the markets of the world.

"The laws against trusts have been clarified by definition, with a view to making it plain that they were not directed against big business but only against unfair business and the pretense of competition where there was none; and a trade commission has been created with powers of guidance and accommodation which have relieved business men of unfounded fears and set them upon the road of hopeful and confident enterprise.

"By the federal reserve act the supply of currency at the disposal of active business has been rendered elastic, taking its volume, not from a fixed body of investment securities, but from the liquid assets of daily trade: and these assets are assessed and accepted, not by distant groups of bankers in control of unavailable reserves, but by bankers at the many centres of local exchange who are in touch with local conditions everywhere.

Along Other Lines.

"Effective measures have been taken for the re-creation of an American merchant marine and the revival of the American-carrying trade indispensable to our emancipation from the control which foreigners have so long exercised over the opportunities, the routes, and the methods of our commerce with other countries.

"The interstate commerce commission has been reorganized to enable it to perform its great and important functions more promptly and more efficiently. We have created, extended and improved the service of the parcels post.

"So much we have done for business. What other party has understood the task so well or executed it so intelligently and energetically? What other party has attempted it at all? The republican leaders, apparently, know of no means of assisting business but "protection." How to stimulate it and put it upon a new footing of energy and enterprise they hae not suggested.

For the Farmers.

"For the farmers of the country we have virtually created commercial credit, by means of the federal reserve act and the rural credits act. They now have the standing of other business men in the money market. We have successfully regulated speculation in "futures" and established standards in the marketing of grains. By an intelligent warehouse act we have assisted to make the standard crops available as never before both for systematic marketing and as a security for loans from the banks. We have greatly added to the work of neighborhood demonstration on the farm itself of improved methods of cultivation, and, through the intelligent extension of the functions of the department of agriculture, have made it possible for the farmer to learn systematically where his best markets are and how to get at them.

"The workingmen of America have been given a veritable emancipation, by the legal recognition of a man's labor as part of his life, and not a mere marketable commodity; by exempting labor organizations from processes of the courts which treated their members like fractional parts of mobs and not like accessible and responsible individuals; by releasing our seamen from involuntary servitude; by making adequate provision for compensation for industrial accidents; by providing suitable machinery for mediation and conciliation in industrial disputes; and by putting the federal department of labor at the disposal of the workingman when in search of work.

"We have effected the emancipation of the children of the country by releasing them from hurtful labor. We have instituted a system of national aid in the building of highroads such as the country has been feeling after for a century. We have sought to equalize taxation by means of an equitable income tax. We have taken the steps that ought to have been taken at he outset to open up the resources of Alaska. We have provided for national defense upon a scale never before seriously proposed upon the responsibility of an entire political party. We have driven the tariff lobby from cover and obliged it to substitute solid argument for private influence.

Of Promises Redeemed.

This extraordinary recital must sound like a platform, a list of sanguine promises; but it is not. It is a record of promises made four years ago and now actually redeemed in constructive legislation.

"These things must profoundly disturb the thoughts and confound the plans of those who have made themselves believe that the democratic party neither understood nor was ready to assist the business of the country in the great enterprises which it is its evident and inevitable destiny to undertake and carry through. The breaking up of the lobby must especially disconcert them: for it was through the lobby that they sought and were sure they had found the heart of things. The game of privilege can be played successfully by no other means.

"This record must equally astonish those who feared that the democratic party had not opened its heart to comprehend the demands of social justice We have in four years come very near to carrying out the platform of the progressive party as well as our own; for we also are progressives.

Banking and Currency.

"There is one circumstance connected with this program which ought to be very plainly stated. It was resisted at every step by the interests which the republican party had catered to and fostered at the expense of the country, and these same interests are now earnestly praying for a reaction which will save their privileges,—for the restoration of their sworn friends to power before it is too late to recover what they have lost. They fought with particular desperation and infinite resourcefulness the reform of the banking and currency system, knowing that to be the citadel of their control: and most anxiously are they hoping and planning for the amendment of the federal reserve act by the concentration of control in a single bank which the old familiar group of bankers can keep under their eye and direction. But while the 'big men' who used to write the tariffs and command the assistance of the treasury have been hostile,—all but a few with vision,—the average business man knows that he has been delivered, and that the fear that was once every day in his heart, that the men who controlled credit and directed enterprise from the committee rooms of congress would crush him, is there no more, and will not return,—unless the party that consulted only the 'big men' should return to power,—the party of masterly inactivity and cunning resourcefulness in standing pat to resist change.

Cannot Meet New Conditions.

"The republican party is just the party that cannot meet the new conditions of a new age. It does not know the way and it does not wish new conditions. It tried to break away from the old leaders and could not. They still select its candidates and dictate its policy, still resist change, still hanker after the old conditions, still know no methods of encouraging business but the old methods. When it changes its leaders and its purposes and brings its ideas up to date it will have the right to ask the American people to give it power again; but not until then. A new age, an age of revolutionary change, needs new purposes and new ideas.

"In foreign affairs we have been guided by principles clearly conceived and consistently lived up to. Perhaps they have not been fully comprehended because they have hitherto governed international affairs only in theory, not in practice. They are simple, obvious, easily stated, and fundamental to American ideals.

We Have Been Neutral.

"We have been neutral not only because it was the fixed and traditional policy of the United States to stand aloof from the politics of Europe and because we had had no part either of action or of policy in the influences which brought on the present war, but also because it was manifestly our duty to prevent, if it were possible, the indefinite extension of the fires of hate and desolation kindled by that terrible conflict and seek to serve mankind by reserving our strength and our resources for the anxious and difficult days of restoration and healing which must follow, when peace will have to build its house anew.

"The rights of our own citizens of course became involved: that was inevitable. Where they did this was our guiding principle: that property rights can be vindicated by claims for damages, and no modern nation can decline to arbitrate such claims; but the fundamental rights of humanity cannot be The loss of life is irreparable. Neither can direct violations of a nation's sovereignty await vindication in suits for damages. The nation that violates these essential rights must expect to be checked and called to account by direct challenge and resistance. It at once makes the quarrel in part our own. These are plain principles and we have never lost sight of them or departed from them, whatever the stress or the perplexity of circumstance or the provocation to hasty resentment. The record is clear and consistent throughout and stands distinct and definite for anyone to judge who wishes to know the truth about it.

American Above All.

"The seas were not broad enough to keep the infection of the conflict out of our own politics. The passions and intrigues of certain active groups and combinations of men amongst us who were born under foreign flags injected the poison of disloyalty into our own most critical affairs, laid violent hands upon many of our industries, and subjected us to the shame of divisions of sentiment and purpose in which America was contemned and forgotten. It is part of the business of this year of reckoning and settlement to speak plainly and act with unmistakable purpose in rebuke of these things, in order that they may be forever hereafter impossible. I am the candidate of a party, but I am above all things else an American citizen. I neither seek the favour nor fear the displeasure of that small alien element amongst us which puts loyalty to any foreign power before loyalty to the United States.

"While Europe was at war our own continent, one of our own neighbors, was shaken by revolution. In that matter, too, principle was plain and it was imperative that we should live up to it if we were to deserve the trust of any real partisan of the right as free men see it. We have professed to believe, and we do believe, that the people of small and weak states have the right to expect to be dealt with exactly as the people of big and powerful states would be. We have acted upon that principle in dealing with the people of Mexico

In Mexican Territory.

"Our recent pursuit of bandits into Mexican territory was no violation of that principle. We ventured to enter Mexican territory only because there were no military forces in Mexico that could protect our border from hostile attack and our own people from violence, and we have committed there no single act of hostility or interference even with the sovereign authority of the Republic of Mexico herself. It was a plain case of the violation of our own sovereignty which could not wait to be vindicated by damages and for which there was no other remedy. The authorities of Mexico were powerless to prevent it.

"Many serious wrongs against the property, many irreparable wrongs against the persons, of Americans have been committed within the territory of Mexico herself during this confused revolution, wrongs which could not be effectually checked so long as there was no constituted power in Mexico which was in a position to check them. We could not act directly in that matter ourselves without denying Mexicans the right to any revolution at all which disturbed us and making the emancipation of her own people await our own interest and convenience.

"For it is their emancipation that they are seeking—blindly, it may be, and as yet ineffectually, but with profound and passionate purpose and within their unquestionable right, apply what true American principle you will—any principle that an American would publicly avow. The people of Mexico have not been suffered to own their own country or direct their own institutions. Outsiders, men out of other nations and with interests too often alien to their own, have dictated what their privileges and opportunities should be and who should control their land, their lives, and their resources—some of them Americans, pressing for things they could never have got in their own country. The Mexican people are entitled to attempt their liberty from such influences; and so long as I have anything to do with the action of our great government I shall do everything in my power to prevent anyone standing in their way. I know that this is hard for some persons to understand; but it is not hard for the plain people of the United States to understand. It is hard doctrine only for those who wish to get something for themselves out of Mexico. There are men, and noble women, too, not a few, of our own people, thank God! whose fortunes are invested in great property in Mexico who yet see the case with true vision and assess its issues with true American feeling. The rest can be left for the present out of the reckoning until this enslaved people has had its day of struggle towards the light. I have heard no one who was free from such influences propose interference by the United States with the internal affairs of Mexico. Certainly no friend of the Mexican people has proposed it.

In Spirit of the People.

"The people of the United States are capable of great sympathies and a noble pity in dealing with problems of this kind. As their spokesman and representative, I have tried to act in the spirit they would wish me show. The people of Mexico are striving for the rights that are fundamental to life and happiness—fifteen million oppressed men, overburdened women and pitiful children in virtual bondage in their own home of fertile lands and inexhaustible treasure! Some of the leaders of the revolution may often have been mistaken and violent and selfish, but the revolution itself was inevitable and is right. The unspeakable Huerta betrayed the very comrades he served, traitorously overthrew the government of which he was a trusted part, impudently spoke for the very forces that had driven his people to the rebellion with which he had pretended to sympathize. The men who overcame him and drove him out represent at least the fierce passion of reconstruction which lies at the very heart of liberty; and so long as they represent, however imperfectly such a struggle for deliverance, I am ready to serve their ends when I can So long as the power of recognition rests with me the government of the United States will refuse to extend the hand of welcome to any one who obtains power in a sister republic by treachery and violence. No permanency can be given the affairs of any republic by a title based upon intrigue and assassination. I declared that to be the policy of this administration within three weeks after I assumed the presidency. I here again vow it. I am more interested in the fortunes of oppressed men and pitiful women and children than in any property rights whatever. Mistakes I have no doubt made in this perplexing business, but not in purpose or object.

"More is involved than the immediate destinies of Mexico and the relations of the United States with a distressed and distracted people. All America looks on.

Test of Liberty.

"Test is now being made of us whether we be sincere lovers of popular liberty or not and are indeed to be trusted to respect national sovereignty among our weaker neighbors. We have undertaken these many years to play big brother to the republics of this hemisphere. This is the day of our test whether we mean, or have ever meant, to play that part for our own benefit wholly or also for theirs. Upon the outcome of that test (its outcome in the minds, not in ours) depends every relationship of the United States with Latin America, whether in politics or in commerce and enterprise. These are great issues and lie at the heart of the gravest tasks of the future, tasks both economic and political and very intimately inwrought with many of the most vital of the new issues of the politics of the world. The republics of America have in the last three years been drawing together in a new spirit of accommodation, mutual understanding and cordial co-operation. Much of the politics of the world in the years to come will depend upon their relationships with one another. It is a barren and provincial statesmanship that loses sight of such things!

Exacting Problems Near.

"The future, the immediate future will bring us squarely face to face with many great and exacting problems which will search us through and through whether we be able and ready to play the part in the world that we mean to play. It will not bring us into their presence slowly, gently, with ceremonious introduction, but suddenly and at once, the moment the war in Europe is over. They will be new problems most of them; many will be old problems in a new setting and with new elements which we have never dealt with or reckoned the force and meaning of before. They will require for their solution new thinking, fresh courage and resourcefulness and in some matters radical reconsiderations of policy. We must be ready to mobilize our resources alike of brains and of materials.

"It is not a future to be afraid of. It is, rather, a future to stimulate and excite us to the display of the best powers that are in us. We may enter it with confidence when we are sure that we understand it,—and we have provided ourselves already with the means of understanding it.

"Look first at what it will be necessary that the nations of the world should do to make the days to come tolerable and fit to live and work in; and then look at our part in what is to follow and our own duty of preparation. For we must be prepared both in resources and in policy.

Must Strive for Peace.

"There must be a just and settled peace, and we here in America must contribute the full force of our enthusiasm and of our authority as a nation to the organization of that peace upon world-wide foundations that cannot easily be shaken. No nation should be forced to take sides in any quarrel in which its own honor and integrity and the fortunes of its own people are not involved; but no nation can any longer remain neutral as against any wilful disturbance of the peace of the world. The effects of war can no longer be confined to the areas of battle. No nation stands wholly apart in interest when the life and interests of all nations are thrown into confusion and peril. If hopeful and generous enterprise is to be renewed, if the healing and helpful arts of life are indeed to be revived when peace comes again, a new atmosphere of justice and friendship must be generated by means the world has never tried before. The nations of the world must unite in joint guarantees that whatever is done to disturb the whole world's life must first be tested in the court of the whole world's opinion before it is attempted.

The New Foundations.

"These are the new foundations the world must build for itself, and we must play our part in the reconstruction, generously and without too much thought of our separate interests. We must make ourselves ready to play it intelligently, vigorously and well.

"One of the contributions we must make to the world's peace is this: We must see to it that the people in our insular possessions are treated in their own lands as we would treat them here, and make the rule of the United States mean the same thing everywhere—the same justice, the same consideration for the essential rights of men.

"Besides contributing our ungrudging moral and practical support to the establishment of peace through the world, we must actively and intelligently prepare ourselves to do our full service in the trade and industry which are to sustain and develop the life of the nations in the day to come.

"We have already been provident in this great matter and supplied ourselves with the instrumentalities of prompt adjustment. We have created, in the federal trade commission, a means of inquiry and of accommodation in the field of commerce which ought both to co-ordinate the enterprises of our traders and manufacturers and to remove the barriers of misunderstanding and of a too technical interpretation of the law. In the new tariff commission we have added another instrumentality of observation and adjustment which promises to be immediately serviceable. The trade commission substitutes counsel and accommodation for the harsher processes of legal restraint, and the tariff commission ought to substitute facts for prejudices and theories. Our exporters have for some time had the advantage of working in the new light thrown upon foreign markets and opportunities of trade by the intelligent inquiries and activities of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce which the democratic congress so wisely created in 1912. The tariff commission completes the machinery by which we shall be enabled to open up our legislative policy to the facts as they develop.

Leading Part in World's Drama

"We can no longer indulge our traditional provincialism. We are to play a leading part in the world drama, whether we wish it or not. We shall lend, not borrow; act for ourselves, not imitate or follow; organize and initiate, not peep about merely to see where we may get in.

"We have already formulated and agreed upon a policy of law which will explicitly remove the ban now supposed to rest upon co-operation amongst our exporters in seeking and securing their proper place in the markets of the world. The field will be free, the instrumentalities at hand. It will only remain for the masters of enterprise amongst us to act in energetic concert, and for the government of the United States to insist upon the maintenance throughout the world of those conditions of fairness and of even-handed justice in the commercial dealings of the nations with one another upon which, after all, in the last analysis, the peace and ordered life of the world must ultimately depend.

At home also we must see to it that the men who plan and develop and direct our business enterprises shall enjoy definite and settled conditions of law, a policy accommodated to the freest progress. We have set the just and necessary limits. We have put all kinds of unfair competition under the ban and penalty of the law. We have barred monopoly. These fatal and ugly things being excluded, we must now quicken action and facilitate enterprise by every just means within our choice. There will be peace in the business world, and, with peace, revived confidence and life.

Natural Resources.

We ought both to husband and to develop our natural resources, our mines, our forests, our water power. I wish we could have made more progress than we have made in this vital matter; and I call once more, with the deepest earnestness and solicitude, upon the advocates of a careful and provident conservation, on the one hand, and the advocates of a free and inviting field for private capital, on the other, to get together in a spirit of genuine accommodation and agreement and set this great policy forward at once.

We must hearten and quicken the spirit and efficiency of labor throughout our whole industrial system by everywhere and in all occupations doing justice to the laborer, not only by paying a living wage but also by making all the conditions that surround labor what they ought to be. And we must do more than justice. We must safeguard life and promote health and safety in every occupation in which they are threatened or imperilled. That is more than justice, and better, because it is humanity and economy.

"We must coordinate the railway systems of the country for national use, and must facilitate and promote their development with a view to that coordination and to their better adaptation as a whole to the life and trade and defense of the nation. The life and industry of the country can be free and unhampered only if these arteries are open, efficient and complete.

"Thus shall we stand ready to meet the future as circumstance and international policy effect their unfolding, whether the changes come slowly or come fast and without preface.

"I have not spoken explicitly, Gentlemen, of the platform adopted at St. Louis; but it has been implicit in all that I have said. I have sought to interpret its spirit and meaning. The people of the United States do not need to be assured now that that platform is a definite pledge, a practical program. We have proved to them that our promises are made to be kept.

Definite Ideals.

"We hold very definite ideals. We believe that the energy and initiative of our people have been too narrowly coached and superintended; that they should be set free, as we have set them free, to disperse themselves throughout the nation; that they should not be concentrated in the hands of a few powerful guides and guardians, as our opponents have again and again, in effect if not in purpose, sought to concentrate them. We believe, moreover,—who that looks about him now with comprehending eye can fail to believe?—that the day of Little Americanism, with its narrow horizons, when methods of 'protection' and industrial nursing were the chief study of our provincial statesmen, is past and gone and that a day of enterprise has at last dawned for the United States, whose field is the wide world.

"We hope to see the stimulus of that new day draw all America, the republics of both continents, on to a new life and energy and initiative in the great affairs of peace. We are Americans for Big America, and rejoice to look forward to the days in which America shall strive to stir the world without irritating it or drawing it on to new antagonisms, when the nations with which we deal shall at last come to see upon what deep foundations of humanity and justice our passion for peace rests, and when all mankind shall look upon our great people with a new sentiment of admiration, friendly rivalry and real affection, as upon a people who, though keen to succeed, seeks always to be at once generous and just and to whom humanity is dearer than profit or selfish power.

"Upon this record and in the faith of this purpose we go to the country."

HE WAS WORRIED AND HOPELESS.

"For ten or twelve years I was bothered with bad kidney trouble," writes T. F. Hutchinson, Little Rock, Ark. "I tried many remedies and doctors, but grew worse all the time. I was worried and had almost given up all hopes. I tried Foley Kidney Pills and they helped me a lot. I have since used five boxes and am now a well man." Foley Kidney Pills drive out aches and pains due to kidney trouble; also sleep disturbing bladder disorders. Dreier Drug Co.—Advertisement.

FOURTH OF SERIES TO BE PLAYED SUNDAY

Payne is Coming With Everything to Take Fall Out of Clearyites.

League park Sunday is to be the scene of one of the best ball games ever seen in this city. Payne needs no second introduction to the fans of Fort Wayne after the grand cleaning they administered to the Clearyites. The Clearyites are out for blood and when Payne steps out on the field they will know who and what they are playing—a baseball team crowded with stars. This game Sunday will be the fourth of the five series, of which three have been played, the Ohio town having taken two.

Many rooters are coming from Payne and also from New Haven. Those from New Haven are coming to see Heine and Hargrave in action. Both of these boys are from the village.

The biggest game in importance is the Giants-Fort Wayne tilt on Labor day. The managers of the Fort Wayne Giants have spared not a little coin to get together a team that can clean the Clearyites and have secured Harrison, Carr, Rady and Simmons, four of the fastest players on the Lima Colored Giants. The following lineup is for Sunday:

Georgia Peach is Working Hard for the Leadership of League.

Chicago, Sept. 2.—Ty Cobb is making a gallant spurt to win the year's batting championship in the American league. Averages printed here today show the Detroit player has increased his percentage by five points while Speaker, still leading the league, lost title in the last week, so that Cobb is now only nine points behind. Cobb has taken the lead in runs scored with 88 and holds the base stealing lead with 48. Jackson is in front in total bases with 243; Weaver, Chicago, and Chapman, Cleveland, in sacrifice hits with 34 each; Pipp, New York, in home runs with nine, and Detroit in team hitting with .260. The leading batters:

Speaker, Cleveland, .377; Cobb, Detroit, .363; Jackson, Chicago, .350; Strunk, Philadelphia, .308; Gardner, Boston, .306; Roth, Cleveland, .303; Sisler, St. Louis, .301; Felsch, Chicago, .293; Nunamaker, New York, .292; High, New York, .291.

Newcomers Feared in National Amateur Golf Tourney; "Chick" Evans Picked by Many to Equal Ball's Feat.

(By Harold Johnson.)

Fore! America's greatest golfers are at the tee. Before another week-end the links may boast of a new national amateur champion.

Starting Labor day on the course of the Merion Cricket club at Philadelphia, 155 players will strive for the title captured at Detroit last summer by Robert Gardner, of Hinsdale. Missing only from the list of topliners are the names of Jerry Travers, Francis Ouimet, Walter J. Travis, C. B. McDonald, Findley S. Douglas and H. Chandler Egan.

Every section of the country is represented in the gala event of the golfing season and dark horses in droves are slated to struggle for the laurels which many wise students of the ancient Scottish game predict will go to Charles (Chick) Evans, Jr., of Edgewater, Chicago, present open champion, and considered by many the greatest all around golfer in the United States.

But a dark horse may spill the dope again. Two of the most prominent entrants to oppose Evans are Oswald Kirkby and Phil Carter. Kirkby has already won two important titles this year in the New Jersey and the Metropolitan championships. He is playing his best game this year. Like Evans he never has been able to win the national crown, but his time, too, must be near at hand.

One must not overlook such good golfers as John G. Anderson, always a dangerous opponent; Henry J. Topping, who is at the top of his form this year; Reginald Lewis, Gardiner White and Max Marston. The latter, however, has not been playing in the form that he displayed last year when he missed a short putt to eliminate Gardner in the semi-finals.

Sawyer is one of the main western hopes. Next to Evans and Gardner he is the strongest entry from that section—a trifle stronger, even, than James D. Standish, of Detroit, who is now playing well. Sawyer is likely to beat a star even if the said star is playing his head off.

Should Evans add the national amateur championship to his open title annexed at Minneapolis, he will have done something that only one other man in the history of golf has ever accomplished before. The honor fell to John Ball, of England, about twenty years ago.

SPORT DOPE

Pennant races are becoming so close that a team can go to sleep in fourth place in the American league and wake up leading the Kitty circuit.

The Albany, N. Y., magnates attempted to introduce jitney baseball but the proposition fell flat. The natives balked on an increase in prices.

Groundkeepers around the National league circuit say they have a tough time keeping grass from growing on the base lines since Larry Cheney returned from the fountain of youth.

Mebbe it's a good thing for Jess Willard that the heavyweight division is one class he can't outgrow.

Connie Mack has secured eight men from the bush circuits. Our colleges seem to be going back in the matter of turning out ball players.

DRIVING CLUB TO HAVE GOOD PROGRAM MONDAY

Club Arranges for a Three Heat Program With Many Fast Ones.

The Fort Wayne Amateur Driving club is planning a fine card for Labor day and will furnish the horse fans with some good racing at Centlivre park. The organization is a member of the American Trotting association. In the 2:25 trot the Pledge, 2:26¼, is entered by Charles Ahr. The horse is one of the fastest of the lot and will be stepping off the mile in rather fast time. Another fast one is Ethel Coastman, 2:17½. Dr. Brudi is the owner of the horse. R. J. Ellston will drive the horse. The whole program is a star bill and the fans if they are lovers of horse flesh better go and see the stars perform. The events are as follows:

First race, 2:25 trot—The Pledge, b s, 2:26¼, by Exponent. Owner, Chas. Ahr. Driver, Ahr.

Portia Monbar, b m, 2:29½, by Monbar. Owner, A. J. Compton. Driver, H. Van Alstine.

Ethel Coastman, b m, 2:17½, by Coastman. Owner, Dr. Brudi. Driver, R. J. Ellston.

Second race, 2:30 trot:

CHAMPION ON EDGE.

White Develops New Attack to Use for Labor Day.

Colorado Springs, Col., Sept. 2.—With the twenty-round lightweight champion battle between Freddie Welsh and Charlie White but three days away and both principals already trained to a fighting edge, the men today began a tapering off process. Work will be lightened, rough boxing bouts will be eliminated from the daily program and only light sparring exhibitions indulged in.

Welsh, who has worked steadily now at a hard clip for a longer period than at any time since he won the championship, appears to be in great condition. Some experts have wondered whether he has not trained too fine, but his managers and members of his camp scoff at this.

A slight irritation of White's disposition shows that the challenger is on edge. White has apparently abandoned the idea that he can knock out Freddie with his famous left hook, and is developing a new offensive for the battle, using a right swing for his heavy artillery.

The final touches were put on the arena Saturday and a heavy canvas cover will be placed over the ring Sunday in order to avert possible storm damage.

The local sale of tickets continues heavy but there has been some falling off in the out-of-town demand, due to fears of a railroad strike.

Baltimore Hammer Expected to Take the Crown from Feather King.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 2.—"I would not take $50,000 for my chances to defeat Johnny Kilbane," said George Chaney Friday. His statement reflected the attitude of his friends, who are fairly overflowing with confidence that the Baltimorean stands a 50-50 chance to knock out Kilbane when he meets him at Cedar Point next Monday afternoon.

In other fighting circles, however, there is a decided difference of opinion. Kilbane is a reigning favorite. Though very little Chaney money is in sight, the latest odds are 10 to 6, with Kilbane on the heavy end.

Both Kilbane and Chaney virtually finished hard training Thursday. Friday they indulged in light sparring and exercising. Both are tipping the scale at 122½ and apparently are in perfect condition.

SANDUSKY GETTING READY.

Sandusky, O., Sept. 2.—Hotel keepers and restaurants are stocking up. The natural inference would be that they are preparing to meet any emergency that may arise as a result of the threatened railway strike, but this is not the case. They are getting ready to feed the thousands that are expected to pass this way, commencing Saturday, to the Johnny Kilbane-George Chaney world's championship glove contest at Cedar Point Monday afternoon.

SEMI-FINALS OF THE TOURNEY SATURDAY

Semi-Finals in Both Singles and Doubles Have Been Reached.

Saturday afternoon the semi-finalists will be playing their matches and incidentally trying to become a finalist. The matches in the singles should prove the best in the city tournament. Dr. Miles F. Porter, jr., is slated to meet Murdock Mulholland in one of the matches at the Country club. Dr. Porter is the city champion at the present time and is playing better tennis than he played last year. The champion will find Mulholland a hard proposition to tackle for the high school star has been burning up the courts this summer. Mulholland became a semi-finalist when he took Walter Berghoff into camp in straight sets, 6-2 and 6-4.

The other match in the tourney play will be the Stephens-Burton match. Burton was the runner-up in the city tournament last year and played a fine game. Earlier this season he was eliminated from the northern Indiana tennis tournament by Daniel Kiefer, the runner-up in the tourney. Burton is playing a fine placing game this year.

Dark horses are known facts in every tournament due to neglect or oversight. This tournament is inhabited by one of the said species and he goes under the name of Stephens. The youngster is fine and pulled the big surprise and defeated Arthur Parry in 6-4, 4-6, 6-2. The boy will give Burton one grand fight for honors and will be heard from before many years roll by.

The doubles have reached the semi-final stage and are stepping forward with bright lights glowing from all the matches. Popp-Plogsterth, the high school marvels, and Bailhe-O'Rourke combination hook up for one of the matches. Both teams are equally matched. Popp-Plogsterth are there and should give a good account of themselves. The Bailhe-O'Rourke pair are not far behind.

Another match that will attract attention is the Burton-Mulholland and Porter-Parry pairing. Here it is again with youth pitted against experienced players. The Porter-Parry combination is one of the best in the city and should Burton-Mulholland pull a win they will boost their stock up to the skies.

Dispatches from the east indicate that Smoky Joe Wood is still doing his spring training.

One Minute Talks with Ballplayers

"BUCK" WHEAT, BROOKLYN DODGERS.

"I would warn the ball player, and particularly the young boy, to eliminate the use of bandages. The second year I was in the National league I injured both my ankles in sliding to first in a game in Philadelphia. In a week I was able to play again with my ankles well bandaged, but they were not strong.

"They failed to gain strength as the season progressed and I feared that I might have to quit baseball, as I could see that I was slowing down and had the greatest difficulty in stretching my drives.

"Finally I took a tip from Joe Tinker and removed the bandages. In three days my ankles regained their normal strength and in a week my speed was as great as ever."

CLAUDE WILLIAMS, CHICAGO WHITE SOX.

"The boy who enters baseball will never be a success until he takes the profession seriously. I learned my lesson two years ago when I had my first chance in the majors. I had always regarded baseball as a game just for fun but Manager Jennings, of the Detroit Tigers, soon showed me the error of my way by shipping me to the Salt Lake club of the Pacific coast. Once in the minors I got wise to myself and determined to regain a big league job.

"I started in baseball as a pitcher for the school team at Springfield, Mo., and though I was only a kid I was a pretty successful southpaw. Now that I am back in the majors I'm certainly going to work my head off to remain here."

"OLD HOME WK" EDDYTORIUL

Tother evg as we set down in Hen Weathersbys store indulging in soshial intercourse with several of our most respeckted cittizens of Bingville who had colleckted there for the same purpose Deason Butterworth spoke up and desired to know why it wouldnt be a blamed good idee for Bingville to have a "Old Home Week?"

The Deacon said he had saw by the papers where other towns here and there had helt or was a going to hold in the near fuchure old home wks and he diddent see why in Sam Hill Bingville couldnt do the same.

The Deacons sujjestshion recd the hearty indorsement of everybuddy present inclooding ourself. Altho the sujjestshion diddent come from us nevertheless we be turrible in faver of it. Far be it from us to take sides aginst a good sujjestshion simply becuz we diddent happen to think of it 1st. We are more broad mindeder and magnanimousern that if we do haft to say it ourself.

A "Old Home Wk" as everybuddy who has enny sents ort to know is a occashion got up to bring the former residents who onct lived in a town & has drifted away to parts unknowd back to spend a wk with their former relertives friends & nabers in order to commingle & vissit and also to behold what changes has tuk place in our midst sinst they puld up stakes and left yrs ago. Thats what "Old Home Wk" is for.

In other words Bingville would set aside a hole wk during whitch bizness would be almost at a standstill probly being as everybuddy would be engaged in entertaining them as used to live here & throwing open their doors in horspitalitty to old time Bingvilleites who left here lo these menny yrs ago and went out into the crool world to seek their forchunes.

We have taiked to several of our foremost cittizens in a effort to git them to take holt of this "Old Home Wk" idee and boost it for all its worth. Some to who we have talked seems in faver of it and others vice versy.

Lem Higgins, for instants, was aginst it. Lem said the principal of the things was allright generally speakin, but there was one person hed hate like everythink to see come back to Bingville for "Old Home Wk" and that was Jabe Harkness who left these diggins for Iowy 10 yrs ago and to who Lem owes $12.50. Lem says Iowy is a good place for Jabe & he hopes hell deside to remain there indefynite & not return for old home wk.

As soon as our town seleckt-men has desided on what wk "Old Home Wk" will be held (whitch will probly be during September) they say they are agoing to send out invites by letter to former residents of Bingville who used to live here but who have went away yrs ago & have become famous.

There was Rufus Miller who was borned in Bingville. Rufus was a turrible genius and was allus workin at some invenshion or other inclooding perpetchool moshion. Rufus invented a masheen whitch would buzz like everythink for a couple of hours perpetchool and then it would peter out. Rufus left Bingville when he was in his prime & aint been heerd of sinst. The chanses is that he has sinst then invented meeny boons to humanitty and is a famious man and its too bad nobuddy knows his present address becuz he would be a great card for "Old Home Wk."

As for Jim Snifkins who used to live in Bingville we trust he wont come back here for "Old Home Wk," becuz his presents on this gladsome occashion, wouldnt refleckt enny credit on the town. Jim has became famous, but its a kind of fame the least said about the better. We heerd only recent that Jim had jest been dishonorably discharged from jail for forging a chk and it will be jest as well if he dont put in a appearants during "Old Home Wk" in Bingville.

In conclooshion let everybuddy put his (or her) shoulder to the wheel and do everything possibil to make "Old Home Wk" in Bingville a big sucksess.

Country Correspondence

SLAB CITY

Mrs. Sam Hankins informs your correspondent that she has lost five hens recent from causes unknowd, but probably either a fox or some chikken theef fiend in human form. Mrs. Sam says its awful discurridgin to lose them 5 vallyble hens and thus ete up all the profits she has made from eggs for several wks. She has the sympathy of the entire commoonitty in her bereevement, but of course that dont bring back the hens.

Jasper Tarbell while strolling thru his orchard last Sunday come suddintly upon a big black snake whitch Jasp says he calkilates wassent a inch shortern 8 ft. Jasp was jest about to step on the snake when he seen it, so he changed his mind and stept about 11 ft. on tother side of it. Jasp grabd up a fence stake and went to strike at the snake, but the snake glanced offen a appel tree limb and struck Jasp a turrible wallop on top the head nearly knockin him down on top of the snake. By the time Jasp recoverd his fakulties the snake was no where in sight.

Arioch Perkins desires us to announce in his behalf that he has a calf which he will sell cheap. It is a heifer calf and Arioch calkilated to raise her into a milk cow, but being as the calf is sickly at present and liable to die on his hands Arioch has desided to sell it. Here is a chanst to git a calf sheep.

Widow Jones who is a awful hand for beet greens had a mess of same for her dinner last Sunday of whitch the Widow partuk with great gusto & aint been well sinst. She thinks she over et of the greens. The chances is she is right about this.

Jabe Homans our oldest inhabitant has a birthday next wk on Thursday. Jabe says hell be switched if he can recolleckt whether hell be 89 or 90 yrs old on that date being as its been so long sinst he was borned he cant exactly recall the exackt yr it tuk place altho he was present at the time.

Jake Haines had a steer to fall into his stone quarry tother night and kill itself, so Jake dressed off the steer and sold it for beef. Its quite a treat to git fresh meat this time of yr.

Miss Susan Beebe made a trip to the co seat last wk with butter & eggs and also purchased a new bonnet.

It is right down warm wether in our midst for this time of yr and we could stand it a leetle mite cooler, without enny inconvenients.

VOX POPULI.

Sossiety News

The "Bizzy Bee Sowing Sirkle" of Bingville met at the home of Mrs. Ame Hilyer last Wensday afternon and Mrs. Ame supplide each gest with enuff sowing to keep all very bizzy from 1 p. m. until it was time for them to hurry home in order to git suppers for their various husbands before dark. There is a good eal of crittycism on the part of them present becuz Mrs. Hillyer diddent serve enuythink to ete. Most of them present et light at noon expeckting Mrs. Hillyer would serve lunch but she diddent. We persoom Mrs. Hillyer thort it would be more profittable to keep her gests bizzy sowing for her instid of wasting time eating.

Every Satterday evg for quite a spell back Enos Beebe has drest up in his Sunday best, hitch up his horse to his new buggy and driv down Snake Bend way. We understand Enos is keeping company with Miss Elsie Winslow. Sam Winslows darter and we wouldnt be a bit surprised if they would make a match of it.

Miss Amelia Tucker Bingvilles raining sossiety queen and leader of our soshial whirl says she wont take part in enny soshial events to speek of until the wether gits cooler. Meanwhile Miss Amelia will rest up for the coming winters soshial festyvities whitch she says will be very numerus in our midst.

These is all the sossiety news we can think of at this time. If you happen to think of enny more kindly bring em to this offis and we will print them next wk.

DO it NOW!

Did it ever eckur to you gentil reader how awful menny things the Bingville Bugle is good for? In the first place it's good to read—it gives you all the news of Bingville & surrounding country and keeps you posted up on coming events & past eckurrences.

Then it is also good to advertise in inclooding what you want to buy or what you've got to sell. Then it cant be beat for spreading on cupboard shelves or laying under carpets whilst in a pinch you can wrap things up in it and build fires with it.

In other words subscribe for the Bugle at once, paying cash strickly in advance. Do it now.

HEN Very Liberal

Hen Weathersby, prop of our general store, was siezed with a liberal streek tother night down to the store when he brung out a box full of seegars and passed em around amungs everybuddy in the store who each tuk one.

The seegars looked allright, but it seems that Hen has had em on hand for quite a spell and the moths or somethink had got into em, so Hen thort he would git shet of em and also git credit for being generus.

Bingvilles most respeckted cittizens who was in the store at the time couldnt understand why Hen should give them seegars so free that ort to sell for at least 5 cts each being as Hen is as tite as the bark to a tree, but they thankd him very perfuse for his liberality until they lit the seegars when one and all started to sneeze and choke and sputter.

Ike Skillings and Snide Petersby who aint very used to smokin seegars begin to git sort of white around the gills after they had smoked a few puffs, then they excoosed theirselfs and left the store and was sickern a cupple of dogs and could skeercely navvygate home.

One by one the fellers to who Hen had donated the seegars left the store lookin pale and dispersd to their various homes until only Hen was left behint. Hen diddent smoke one of em, but the very oder of same nossyated him so he shut up the store and went home in disgust.

Them to who Hen give seegars is purty mad and it looks like as if Hen had lost considerable custom by his liberalitty.

Lokal Breeflets

How do you like "Lokal Breeflets" for a change instid of "Lokal Items" or "Lokal Squibs" hey? As Editor of the Buggle we like it 1st rate whether you do or not.

The wether in Bingville as we go to press is very hot & sticky & muggy & also inervating as we might say. As a result bizness is almost at a standstill espeshially during the heat of the day. Yesterday for instants all we seen when we paused in our tracks and lookd up and down Main st about the noon hour was a hound dog and he was asleep in the shade.

Not only that but everythink is hummd up and stuck tite this dogday wether. Doors that had cracks all around em to let in the bitter blasts of winter last winter wont shet now and buro drawers wont come open without busting the buros. We persoom we voice the general sentiment of the commoonitty when we say that everybuddy will welcome the arrival of September with loud acklaim.

Hoke Peterson from Sorrow Hollow brung 3 lbs of butter to Hen Wethersbys store to exchange for mdse, but when Hoke opend up the basket to let Hen weigh the butter he found it had all trickeld outen the basket & run away owing to the hot wether. Hoke walked back home in deep disgust and when last heerd of at the lower end of town was still swearin like a pyerate.

Last Sunday at church Deacon Osgood who sits in the Amen corner went to sleep settin in a draft from the winder and when he woked up at the end of the service his neck was so stiff that he couldn't turn his head around without excrooshiating pain.

Brad Hinsley woked up Doc Livermore our veternary & huming speshialist tother night about midnight outen a sound sleep and told him to come quick being as Alice was awful sick. Doc he hurried & drest and when he arrove at Brads house Brad lit the lantern and started tords the barn telling Doc to foller being as Alice was in the stable. Doc wondered how it come that Brads wife tuk sick in the stable until he found that "Alice" was the name of Brads brood mare and not his wife.

Hen Smiley one of Bingvilles most respeckted cittizens tuk off his boots last wk and is going in his bare feet. Hen says its a turrible releef to his feet to go with em bare this hot wether. Yes, it may be a releef, but we should think a growd up man would be ashamed to go traipsin around town in his bare feet.

Bill Hepburn our artistick blacksmith diddent go to the co seat and git full last Satterday as ushual. Bill had a qt of rum left over and hid away from his debotch the wk before so instid of going to the co seat and gettin full Bill stayd at home and done the work. He made a purty good job of it too accordink to all accts.

Personal Mention

Little Jimmie Tucker while swimming with some other boys in the swimmin hole in Snake Crick back of town had a mud turtle or somethink to grab him by the toe while he was in the worter. Jimmy hollerd and skreemed and the turtle let go but his toe bled like everythink. Sinst then the swimmin hole aint been very poplar among the boys.

Tother day when Sairy Ann Gummidge went to Hen Weathersby's store in a hurry to git some spice for putting up pickels she found the store locked up and went to Hen's residence but Hen wassent there and Mrs. Weathersby said she diddent know where he was. The mistery was cleard up a hour or two later when Hen opened up the store from the inside. He had been takin a nap for a hour or two on the counter inside and diddent want to be pesterd by custummers whilst he was asleep.

DONT BE STUK UP

As you all know I'me a 1st class carpenter and being as Ime the only person of this descripshion in Bingville I aint got no competishion & Ime glad of it.

Well, Ive heerd a good menny complaints from my nabers & others during the past cupple of wks. or sinst Dog Days begin to the effeckt they cant git their doors open or shet or that the drawers in their buros or elsewhere is sweld to sitch a extent that they be stuk fast and cant be opend to save their necks and when they do git em open they cant git em shet.

Whilst I was a thinking about this perdickement whitch has happend to so menny in our midst I happend to think "Why couldnt I make a extry doller doctering folkses doors, buro drawers et cettery?"

Spose you want to git somethink outen your buro like a change of underwear for instants or some cleen sheets for the bed or a pr. of socks are you a going to set down and wait until Dog Days is over sometime next munth? No—1000 times, No! Call on me and I will come hot foot with my carpenter tools and either open that buro drawer or bust it into kindling wood! Thats the kind of a carpenter I am. Is your doors sweld so they wont shet? Call on me and I will make your doors shet or pull em offen their hinges in the a tempt. All kinds of stuk jobs like this solisited. He do the work in a bizness like & workmanship manner and charge you according to how big a job it is.

If you dont find me at home, you'll find me at my carpenter shop or somewheres else if you hunt hard enuff.

Don't be stuk up!

Yours for bizness,

Considers Her Cure Remarkable.

June 25.—"For almost six months I suffered from a severe case of skin trouble on my leg between the ankle and knee. It began by swelling, with severe pains day and night, followed by constant itching. My leg then became inflamed, and later water blisters and pimply sores broke out on it. At this time my leg was at least one-third above its normal size, and the continual itching and burning sensation was something terrible. I applied many remedies, but gained no relief until I commenced using Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap, from which I obtained relief by the first application. After a continued use of Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap the swelling was reduced, the itching and burning were entirely relieved and a complete cure was effected, having used only three jars of Resinol Ointment and two cakes of Resinol Soap. My trouble sure was serious, and I consider the cure remarkable."
(Signed) Mrs. H. W. Neefus, 825 Pearson St., Greensboro, N. C.

All druggists sell Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap. For samples, free, write to Dept. 4-S, Resinol, Baltimore.—Advertisement.

A few days ago Harry Metcalf, of Westminister, Vt., found on opening a bale of hay two black snakes, one four feet, the other three feet in length. Mr. Metcalf thought the snakes dead, but the fresh air soon revived them.

SMOKES FEWER CIGARS; BUYS BABY BONDS

"I got the habit of smoking too many high-priced cigars," said a local business man, "and I decided that if I cut part of them out and invested their cost in a good security that I would be considerably ahead in the course of a year." The cigar bill was thereupon cut in two and the savings were used to purchase Baby Bonds. Baby Bonds come in $10.00 denominations, bear six per cent. interest, and are secured by first mortgages on local real estate. There are also similar bonds of $500.00, which are secured in the same manner, and bear the same rate of interest. For details regarding either see the Wildwood Sales company, Shoaff building.—Advertisement.

BUSINESS COLLEGE OPENS NEXT WEEK

Tuesday, September 5, is the opening date of the International Business college and will mark the beginning of the twenty-eighth year of the Fort Wayne institution. The night school will open the following week on Monday, September 11.

The college will begin this year's work in its new home on West Jefferson street just one-half square from Calhoun street. There are twenty rooms equipped and lighted and ventilated to the best of modern standards.

Officials of the school are expecting an enrollment of nearly 500 students this term. The year promises to be the greatest in the history of the "International."

INSTITUE CLOSES.

County Superintendent Well Pleased With Results of Meeting.

The Allen county teachers' institute closed Friday afternoon with addresses by Dr. Carolyn E. Geisel, of Battle Creek, Mich., and Dr. A. T. Smith, of the Thomas Normal Training school, Detroit. D. O. McComb, county school superintendent, expressed himself as well pleased with the results of the institute.

Demonstration of Prof. C. L. Rogers, in penmanship, which was given Friday afternoon, included "Dancing Figures." With the use of the grafonola Prof. Rogers developed the forms of all figures, putting them into the rhythm and time of the instrument.

State Librarian H. E. Dunnack, of Maine, has begun the preparation of a "traveling library" of some 200 volumes, which he has tendered to Colonel Hume, of the Second Maine infantry, for the use of his men at Laredo, Texas.

IRISH POTATOES ON A RECORD HIGH JUMP

Spuds Are Retailing for $2.00 a Bushel in Fort Wayne.

Irish potatoes, familiarly known as "spuds," who have won fame within the past few months as a high jumper, swung into the limelight Saturday morning when he established a record high jump and cleared the pole at the $2 mark.

Nearly every dealer in the city has advanced the retail price to $2 a bushel, with a possible chance that the price may even go a trifle higher. The supply is slowly dwindling and getting less every day and it may be such a thing that before the little birdies come flying back north that the price will have gone up to $3.

There was a very large market Saturday morning and buying was lively. The supply was large and as a result prices were very moderate in nearly all things. Spring chickens sold for 60 to 75c apiece. They weighed from two and a half to three and a half pounds.

No startling advances have been made thus far in the fruit markets although reports are to the effect that the supply is to be very limited.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago, Sept. 2.—Indications that the strike settlement soon would be a reality gave a lift to the wheat marke here today. Misgivings of a hitch in congress had virtually disappeared, and there was a noticeable consequent lessening of pressure to sell. Opening prices, which ranged from ⅝c to 2¼c higher, with December at $1.45 to $1.46, and May at $1.47 to $1.48, were followed by moderate gains and then something of a reaction.

Removal of railway embargoes had a bullish effect on corn. After opening unchanged to ⅝c higher, the market sagged a little and then scored gains all around.

Oats hardened in value, with other grains.

New York Grain and Provisions.

LIVE STOCK MARKET.

East Buffalo Market.
